Again, the same pile of shit drugs. It's funny after a point.

You can have a vibrant, immortal body, with a sane consciousness, without mental or physical problems, a totally healthy life, an open spiritual understanding and bliss just by not living on the toxicity of the samsaric level.

There is not the slightest need to violate your all precious body with chemicals. Neither you need to enforce your brain on trips because of reactions to foreign random chem.

Some patience, steady work, beautifully building up yourself, enjoying life in the process. No need for this bullshit to leave you with half your brain. Because I warn you, don't cry later that you cannot be all you could, because you chose to fry your brain with drugs, destroy your lungs with cigars, destroy your liver with alcohol. You can take this route, but why? It's a million times more pleasurable not to engage in such things.
