In many ways Abraxas appears to be a symbol for God itself. Any comment on this?

All Gods are symbols of the unified akasha, not only Abrasax. Beelzebul is oftentimes called the "One God", same as Astarte and so on. That is a codeword to point to the Aether.

This is a concept of meditation too that the meditator has to understand. That's why Abrasax is important among other reasons. Monotheism later on corrupted this well known Truth of the past to create slave systems where "one god" was enforced as a literal reality, while there are many Gods and the unified akasha is a principle, not a deity.

All of these concepts were later taken and perverted to no end. The 3rd eye is commonly called "The only real God" and other statements are used in prayers and litanies of the Ancient Religions. This is to create emphasis and behind these statements there is a lot of spiritual depth the initiate has to understand.

In Spiritual Satanism, we go further than merely "God". Father Satan's Name is based on the Satya [Truth] and the five letters of the 5 elements of the cosmos. This moves beyond the real of what is known, encompassing it completely, and then encompassing fully what cannot even be comprehended, what there is, is not, and never will be, but also what will be.

As one can see, to impose a "monotheistic system" is just political bullshit and incompatible with reality. The slavery based and slavish worship religions of the enemy, preach constantly that one spook like Allah or Jesus is all one needs to "believe in", just "worship" like a slave does, do nothing for one's self, and one is an eternal slave to this "unknown".

Spiritual Satanism draws humanity to these higher levels so that we can grow, we are partakers of creation, under the hierarchy of the Gods, and we move upwards and learn. Our version of "worship" is like fellowship, brotherhood, attachment to what is better, self growth and advancement to transform.

In Hinduism, Shiva who is Satan has all the similar connotations, which are meant to exercise the mind and make a human to understand about infinity. Even in the enemy teachings, or even in the enemy's stolen teachings from us, "Lucifer" leads to God. I am a follower of Satan and yes, Satan Lucifer does lead to "God" or the Godhead; and He is incomprehensible.

When people ask me if I "Believe in God", I say definitely yes, because I have known and have "experienced" God. And because what the deceived believe to be as "God" is definitely not "God", they lie to themselves, but this lying does not matter.

We Satanists are a spiritual people and a people of the Gods, we are not godless. The enemy's words are only good for their duped followers. They believe they follow "morals", "god", even have the audacity to say they are "spiritual". They lie to themselves and they know it, but they need the lying in their life, that if they just "believe in da lawd" this will earn them whatever just because they must worship the "ONE" jew or something.

In the eyes of the real divinities, the above is the fall of the lowest levels of consciousness. It is not related to the awareness of God or the Godhead whatsoever.

We are only "godless devils" in the definition of the enemy, which is a definition borne of lies and is collapsed in the eyes of the Divine, which knows all and sees all.
