

Disrespecting Your Satanic Blessings?

I noticed a few things that need to be dealt with.

The most angering thing one can do to Satan, is not curse him, because curses don't reach him, but misrepresent him. This really attracts his wrath more than anything else. Notice his enemy of course, went into 99% of misrepresentation, and turning him into a hideous monster and so forth. They knew they couldn't damage him anyway. So they damaged how the world saw him, instead.

Now there is something that needs to be talked about, is that people need to get off some memes they keep recreating.

Many people do not respect what they have been given. One hundred or two hundred years ago, if you go to your bloodline, you may actually see people didn't know how to write, spell their name, or other things. Even if they were some sort of royalty, they didn't know how to clean their aura, or chakras, and if they had spiritual knowledge they were of the VERY lucky ones, the 0.1% of the planet.

This is not a joke. Satan decided in the Age of Aquarius to help humanity get back on it's feet. Many people have lost understanding of the past due to never understanding history. This is in the larger spectrum of living in a world where nothing except of the shekel has value. This makes people retarded and (((greedy))).

People didn't know how to write, in many places, let alone how to clean their aura or work on their chakras. This was higher and top knowledge. For a few thousand years, only the jews knew this, and very few people by oral admission, or random mages. Many people who knew so, rather chose to sacrifice and die, than share this knowledge with the enemy (Such as the Druids).

Now that it's given for free, we have three potential outcomes.

1. People that value this and respectfully advance, without much crap.
2. Drama 21st century queens who assumed automatically they were Gods or the axis of the universe, because they use the means of the Gods.
3. People who don't give a fuck and just discard the information, or are treating it with utmost disrespect.

Depending on which category you fall, you will advance (or not advance) accordingly. The first category is obviously the best and the holiest of all, so to say.

People need also some propaganda lessons.

You're a human being for a reason. Of course through an overflow of manga, anime, or whatever else, childish disrespect, a lot of people have lost contact with reality. In extreme delusional cases, plus with meditation, addictions to delusion such as with drugs and other things, escalate into other venues (which they would escalate anyway with or without meditation as this is a character flaw).

Some people start thinking they are Santa Claus or anything else, that they deserve the planet on their feet. An idea starts to be formed. This is no different than drug addicts, but at least, spiritual advancement doesn't do bad to people. It rectifies.

That's not negative in itself... partially. A five year old that thinks it's Lionel Messi, that's good for them so that they will learn to exercise. By the time they are 12, they will understand though that maybe they are not Lionel Messi, and go into a tantrum from 12 to 15, realizing they aren't to lead Brazil or Argentina in the World Cup or something. So what does remain? 3 years of tantrum wasted.

If they knew the Truth since they were five, now, they would be excellent in a field or something. Rather, nobody stopped these people from going down a route of retardation. So the person spends the age from 15 to 30, compartmentalizing a mistake done earlier. And saying "Fuck you god" at every turn of their life for not changing earlier.

Because guess what, except Satan (whose name is Truth) nobody else is concerned for people to understand any Truth. At all. The world is based on lying and works around lying for centuries now.

The same thing happens spiritually. 90% of people do all the talk, and claims. No action, no work, and no advancement is given. I have met over 200 supreme Gods behind PC screens, writing in incoherently too, all these years. Materially, they can't even tie their own shoelaces, even-though they hold the keys to even immortality as a few times has been claimed. As they become saggy and grow, they realize they weren't Lionel Messi or Akhenaton or something. This is a disturbing experience.

When there is urgency and they need real spiritual power and help, it's just not there. Why? Because they devoted their time shitting themselves instead of advancing. The fast route to advancement is to advance, not bullshit yourself. This is weakness manifested in the reverse direction of lying to one's self all the time to fill a void, to fill gaps in the soul.

You don't need crap to fill the above. Just work for a greater vision and it will fill you. Advance and you will be powerful without needing false reasons for it.

Knowledge is disrespected and discarded by those who are not wise. I notice for example, people throw around to outsiders or people they don't know, about the greys and the reptilians. Of course, making themselves sound completely, flat out retarded. In other words, this is like going in the face of someone and mumbling strange mantras you learn at your initiation. You will be taken as a retard, a cult, a fool, and worse.

Let me put it that way. Between a retard who thinks they are supreme overlord of the cosmos and is worthless, and a simple magician in the woods who is in tune with nature and experience, they can destroy the retard at one go. Let Wiccans and others be in deception. Spiritual Satanism is for Truth.

You're a human, you're practicing the arts of the Gods, you're their children and initiate, you're partaking in a great spiritual war for the liberation of humanity, that most people cuck to even think about solving. There is no need for further fuss. You're amazing only at that. Now further amazingness is attained by overcoming obstacles, and by working to advance yourself and in general.

Importance is not built over vain ideas, or even past life memories... It has to be maintained, it has to be furthered, it has to grow again, it has to be kept alive, so to say. Anything that keeps you from advancing is an enemy, even if it's the sweetest deception ever. So long it acts as a cripple to your advancement, it has to be left to wither away.

As for past lives, they will come to you, so to say, without the need of necessary deception. The important thing is to grow. All people when they become reincarnated, they forget (this is done by evil entities mentioned in Judaism, which are angels of the enemy basically) people do FORGET about things. The jews further this by channelling deception in the world, and spiritual blindness. We are fighting this.

Keep a critical eye about anything. Satanism is about keeping a critical eye. Your first priority is NOT to deceive yourself, but to ADVANCE by applying the knowledge. Make believe stories and crap doesn't make one a God. WORKING TO BECOME ONE IS WHAT MAKES ONE A GOD...

Thinking you are important and entitled will not make you entitled. Advancement and progress will.

Now when one knows the Truth, there is a sense of urgency. We see this world from above, and in more than one ways, it is sinking. This sight is extremely consuming, but you need to learn to keep your cool, and remember the Gods also are in control of the situation too. I understand it completely, and everyone of us feel the same. I do, you do, and everyone does. If you do not, you're not really getting what's at stake. This doesn't justify the above.

Lastly, if Satan wanted people to be thinking they were astronauts or "Gods" without being as such, he wouldn't have me here writing this for all of you. We are human, and we are here to fight off the analogous enemy, which is the humanoids of the enemy. In other words, let the Gods do their job, and we do OURS. The 'heavenly' matters are for discussion and because Satan wants people to know a larger image. Not because he wants them to actually waste their time thinking they are princesses.

In other words, knowing something doesn't make you worthy of it. It makes you worthy to be worthy of it, apply it, and give it the necessary respect.

Those who don't do the above, will be delayed from seeing Satan's Powers, promises materialized, and his knowledge. This is sad, as people are delaying themselves.

Treat the knowledge with sanctity, and respect. The Demons too, if you ever wish to know the 'real powers' so to say.

Apply the power of Truth and seek TRUTH first and foremost, for Truth is power, and not power in itself Truth.

Lastly, the most commendable thing that all spiritual people get in, is the alchemical period of Chaos. This period is filled with doubts, delusion, or paranoia (depending on the negativity or instability and issues each person harbours in themselves to begin with). After this period the practitioner raises as if from the dead, and he is a new person, which is capable of taking destiny in their own hands.

HAIL SATYAN!

HAIL TO ALL OUR PEOPLE AND SATANIC COMRADES!!!
