

If You Take the Vaccine?

HP Hooded Cobra 666

July 12, 2021

[\[Soulfire\]](#) wrote:

"What exactly would happen to you if you were to take the vaccine, will it damage your soul or something?"

[\[Blitzkreig\]](#) wrote:

"The mRNA changes your cells to output Covid spike proteins. These spike proteins hurt the body, so this is where the side effects occur. Unlike regular vaccines, damage occurs over an unknown amount of time, not just the day of the jab.

There are more details to this, but this is the super simple version.

It will not cause any permanent damage, especially to a Satanist, but it will certainly not be good for you. For those who are already in poor health, it can cause even worse issues. This is the nature of health damage: the strong can tank it, and the weak suffer exponentially more."

This.

As a general rule of thumb, the worrisome things are not only the unknown factors of the longterm effects, or how this interacts with the rest of the body on a health perspective.

The rights and surveillance capabilities behind the policies that are implementing these, potential linking of acceptance between the vaccine and let's say, digital injected identification, pushing people to do experimental treatments to "gain back" their rights, these are troublesome subjects etc. These are the real big problem.

Also, partaking in the vaccination when it's not forced [and therefore one has no choice], means one is accepting these policies to those in power, as a vote of confidence. Then, they may push it even harder.

Even during a bubonic plague, people have had more rights than they did today. Liberty, contrary to modern preaching and how the enemy tries to concote it to be of secondary importance to health, is equal to health. Some would argue it's even superior, and this is why people fight wars.

Because health, while most precious, leads to living life, but a life is not worth living if people are in a lockdown perpetuity like caged animals. It's of no consequence to live without having a life at all.

The inhumane practices of the NWO on all fronts are really visible. Many people, have caved in because of fear, or restraints. This is unavoidable. This if anything makes them want to go further and further.

Others are informing, resisting, holding the line, and are showing teeth in regards to what is going to happen. Equally unavoidable, and a good thing. Because it's only through this behavior that they are going to consider their actions or stop them.

The limits of this? Will the Globalists just say "Now, we have done enough"? Well there don't seem to be any, things up to now are showing. They will only stop where they find they can go no further.

Humanity is called to define the new limits now, by approval or rejection of all that is happening.

There is also the ad infinitum claim to new mutations and new booster shots. This has already begun. Clearly, this is not a good idea to keep implementing a solution when one has poor scientific data and zero long term data. There is a strong clear propaganda view here. Perpetual fear, eternal claims to rights strangulation, the list goes.

While a few may be able to easily be maintained by the body to what appears to be little to no observable damage to some short term [we don't know about long- term effects], others who are weak physically, may have serious ramifications that are of a really problematic nature.

These can range from mild things to damage one can "tank" as stated [and still one should NEVER opt willfully to accept], all the way to death or immunological disorders or who knows what else. Scientists are faking it when they say it's all understood and under control. It's not. mRNA is new technology, and it would need a solid 10 to 15 years of proper experimentation to know just about how this goes.

For children and developing people, these forced applications of this new medical technology, appear to be if anything, entirely pointless, given the mortality rates of the "virus" and its "mutations". Except of pointless, it can be dangerous.

There are also a few people who compare these new emerging cellular alteration technologies to older vaccines [tried and true in many cases for 20, 30, 40 years]. These are not the same. This is only emotional language speaking here. The methods of delivery of the instruction to the antigens are different.

The fact nobody wants to accept liability over demanded and forced medical practices, reveals it all. They want humanity to assume the full risk, while them holding literally zero liability. This, to any logical person, should sound a horn, that even if vaccines were safe, is a really dangerous and tyrannical precedent. What if a future booster or whatever, even if these are safe, isn't safe?

Despite of the popular claims of safety [many people who have done this may be afraid and this is why these are pushed so much], the immune system is a system you want to be really careful when manipulating, and one of the most complex within the human body. Clearly, they didn't want to wait nor amass data for 10 years and went in YOLO.

The human body can tank all sorts of adversities of the environment, biohazards and so on, and not die. Recurring booster shots and intense experimentation with new things, might even cause permanent damage, minor damage, medium damage - nobody knows for sure. Because nobody can speak of all individuals, and do this and be honest about it.

Generally, all these actions should be done on recommendation from a family doctor or a doctor that closely inspects and knows the history of a patient. All of this medical methodology is out of the window. Vaccines are given like candy in every other corner now.

A general healthy living style, proper general health, and taking care of one's self, is mandatory not only to withstand these things which unfortunately may be for many forced medical decisions [NWO Tyranny], but also to ensure one can do so while having the least amount of damage. People should in general do everything in their power to avoid these.

But like other pollutants which are simply there and people were never asked, in many countries, it will be no different. For example, chem-trails and so on, could be modified to have similar effects in a cellular level and the human body is quite capable in healing, but gets besieged frequently by all sorts of intrusions and invasions, like rays, signals, GMO, polluted food, what have you.

The clear answer to this is that nobody knows: neither scientists nor many conspiracy theorists who claim that they are certain this is going to wipe out, as the scientists also say for certain that this "will be just a little jab" and "nothing will come out of this".

The people who have been falsely labelled as "conspiracy theorists", or even doctors, generally focus on the mass ramifications this is going to have, and oftentimes make extreme statements in the opposite direction.

Both are equally living on expectations, and not on proof. When will we know for sure? The answer is, if we go by physical solid proof, well, in the closeby medium term future.

We would also know, if we did more lengthy trials and so on.

Science claims it has "irrefutable" proof, but they can't predict factually how this may reverberate in the future, nor against the virus, neither inside humans. They can't tell you how this affects your immune system 5 to 10 years onward, that is for sure.

As proof has shown on the dead people, some bodies immediately respond and die, or experience other observable damages, others take the shots and appear as if nothing went in at all. Anyhow, the cases where things went wrong, would be the scientifically interesting cases. These are swept under the rug, conveniently to keep a tyrannic narrative going.

And for this reason, the sensible thing would be to avoid this or try to mitigate damage as much as possible, as one would do with any questionable form of treatment. Or anything not yet verified.

Now, there are many people in the world, who will literally consume street drugs from people they don't even know, playing 1 in 2 chances to die off in the pavewalk. With such low amount of self-care, it's no question, that many people will not care at all and simply go "vaccinate", as they would do any other reckless uninformed decision.

These people can't honestly turn back and say "Yes, I made a smart decision". At this point, we are too early in all this. The only viable thing one can say is "I would lose all my rights", or "Lose my job and my family would die", and this would be a sensible argument. That aside, vaccinated or not vaccinated, people will have this problem henceforth: NWO Tyranny.

Many people don't even have a clue that they can actually say NO or REFUSE and get away with it, and be unaffected of course by doing this. This is the case in the US for example.

They believe the enemy narratives that tell them that they are slaves that will be freed by the vaccine or something. Well no, that is just a kosher narrative. You have freedoms in most countries to refuse, despite of what the enemy projects.

In most countries, you are still able to say NO and they can get the fuck away. You might not even have to provide any documentation anywhere. Research is required here, because the masses don't really think about these matters. You might be able to get away without losing that much or anything.

In others, this is not so. Recently, I was sent e-mails from some of our SS in Russia, and the situation there is dire to say the least.

Everyone has to evaluate their position, to know their country's terrain, and play accordingly.

That's life here it's not something any of us decided. That aside, all of this game of who is vaccinated is not really the core of the issue.

The NWO tyranny will not divide between loyal and disloyal folk. The people who got vaxxed, they will see them as weak people who caved in, or as "stupid citizens". As we know, these don't fare well in the enemy system, despite of what they are promised. The "Good Christians" have been railed and besieged in all levels despite of being good sheep. Going naively to a slaughter again? Well yes, maybe.

The bad sheep, or unvaccinated, will also be treated likewise with cruelty by the NWO, blamed to be the cause of continuation of the pandemic, blamed of being not "Socialized enough" [The undertones of the Communist mindset and complete lack of human rights is echoing strongly in this argument] and how one is even a biological terrorist etc. Such disobedient goyim, tsk tsk tsk.

All this, over the literally weakest "mass pandemic" in the history of mankind, that only affects people who were already with a fast lane ticket to the next lifetime, due to old age, bad overall health, etc.

Point being, vaccinated or not, that is not the main issue of where this world is going. You might or might not vaccinate, but the corrosion and mass control they want to do, has a dialogue to cover both.

The above only constitutes just another divide to sink Western Civilization and make people fight incessantly while our freedoms [medical, scientific, human rights freedoms, quality of research etc.] are all melting away.

Lastly, right now, in African countries, there is an experimentation of mRNA for HIV going on. For all we know, this might backfire, people might die, or nothing may happen [chances are, they wouldn't be in Africa if they knew it would all go well or at least without problems], or subtle effects might occur that will come back to bite humanity 5 or 15 years down the road, such as a killer form of HIV that can't be controlled at all.

Why Africa if this technology is so good? Because the NWO wants a place where if things go wrong, nobody will be held liable. They'll simply "disappear" the people as they have been doing with Western Scientists of a contrary opinion to the NWO establishment.

<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/2021/0... trials-uk/>

Another thing that within this context of generalized insanity, and tyranny of the enemy, that nobody is willing to accept is this: That the virus may keep mutating in perpetuity, and that the "Vaccines" are as good as nothing, especially for the long term. Or that they might even cause mutations of the virus itself.

The final interpretation of these events will be a battle between the NWO and the rights of the people. Deaths and anything in between, from Vaccine or Virus, appears to be a "Welcome thing" and a mass human trial they are executing, worldwide, recklessly, forcibly, carelessly.

This also gives them the perfect cover, because in case anything goes really bad, they will simply say "it's the unvaccinated people's fault" or "the virus mutated so do more vaccines", and they will never admit a backfiring might have been caused by let's say, the virus meeting defences, or someone's immune system manufacturing some sort of excessive defence layer that makes the virus into a supervirus.

As with anything else like that, strong people will deny these effects on their being, or survive their ramifications. Others might not be as lucky.

People must remember, that despite these jabs and anything, the real thing they are after, is manipulating human freedom, eroding the foundations of Western Civilization, and creating a future for the Great Reset, alongside other problematic affairs.

Our world has been lost already over this "virus" situation, and as the story goes, none of this is actually to save anything.

Lastly, for people who are questioning their reality: Know these are not normal times.

There is an unveiling of the NWO going on, and this is not going to be smooth sailing, or even commonplace and logical. It's not a mistake that these fiends refer constantly to a "New Normal".

That is a replacement of the old stature of things, with a "new" one, which involves all sorts of things that will be a giant shocker for people, and the cause of war between those of the enemy and humanity. Our world is changing by itself [advancing] but also being changed negatively by these fiends.

There are no human beings on earth currently exempt of this. And if any cavemen have somehow escaped, this would be an exception so minor that one can't really factor this in and say this explains the future of our civilizations as countries or as a planet.

The idea of every SS would be to survive more than this phase of insanity will, and in the best possible condition one is able to do that.

Hold tight, do your best, remain healthy and safe, and above all, keep applying Satan's Spiritual Knowledge, because this is the major key to protection. Their insanity will last, but it won't be eternal.

© Joy of Satan Ministries
www.joyofsatan.org