

Exposing the Jewish God, Part 3

The Jewish "god", as the Kabbalah states, is the world tree with the ten worlds, which is nothing more than the individual soul of the Jew. The YHVH as shown from the Kabbalah is just a series of letters that is used to empower the ten worlds on the Kabbalah tree, the chakras. It's a four-letter name of the ten worlds. The Torah is nothing more than the encoded Kabbalah, where the Kabbalah is the oral Torah which is the oral teaching of the Rabbis on the ciphers of the encoded information in the Torah.

In Kabbalah, the term "God is One", which is the most important statement of Judaism, is simply a code for the number 13. God is 13. This is something the Jews deeply hid in their own texts.

In Kabbalah, there is another way the world tree diagram is shown, which is called the "union of the sefiroth in the heart of god," where the tree shows the seven main chakras and the minor chakras in the head. This diagram shows all 13 chakras. It's also found in the East.

This diagram is an eight-spoke wheel with the hub of the wheel being Tifereth, the solar chakra, the sun. The other sefiroths are on the outer spokes of the wheel. This is the ancient map of the soul in the East. It's showing the map of the soul with all the 13 chakras. This includes the six side extensions on the head, shoulders, and hips. There are three on each side of the body, with the seven main chakras on the spine and head, which this diagram relates to. Keter and Malkuth are shown on the vertical spoke as the root and crown chakra. Note this is called "The Union of the Sefiroth," Which is showing that the solar chakra is the key to the soul. Sefiroth means "radiance," which is what Tifereth means. It is showing the connection.

Note that the real heart of "god" is the solar chakra. It is the key to the soul, not the chest.

The "god" of the Jews is simply the 13 chakras of the individual human soul. In the East, the 13 chakras are the 13 Gods that created the universe, which is code for the soul. The "god" of the Jews is simply the individual Jewish soul, as the Jewish Rabbis state in their Kabbalah.

Does All This Constant appearance of Number 13 have anything to do with why The Jews have always Tried to Demonize Number 13 and make it carry Negative vibrations? Or is it because it's one of Father Satan's Favourite Number?

Hail Father Satan.

That is why. Satan is the symbol of the Gentile soul, which is symbolically the 13 chakras, or serpent centers.
