

Amazon Wildfires

Post by HP. Hoodedcobra666

Thu Aug 22, 2019 7:14 pm

This is enraging and deplorable. It appears that the enemy, who actually hates Bolsonaro a great deal, and does the usual destruction of the planet for infinite amounts of time, is now burning the Amazon Jungle in alarming rates in retaliation to Bolsonaro, who is frequently called "The Brazilian Trump".

Other cases are claiming that this was done BY Bolsonaro, in order to create newfound space for more cattle farms, and one would assume, casinos for fat jews or something. We gotta feed the 20 billion slaves we will have on this planet, and for this, we have to burn all meaningful life such as the Amazon alive. The humanist gang doesn't care for the Amazon either.

I'd like conversation or input in the comments, as Jew-NN and the related news articles do not give a clear view, but just accuse whomever they want to accuse. My personal opinion is that this is NOT Bolsonaro, but the usual jews parading behind NGO's, carrying the typical work of damnation for quick bucks as it is the case with Black Lives Matter or the Migrant Selling NGO's, only, this time it's the naturalist destroyer [and frequently Communist] NGO's playing this game.

Regardless of who is causing this, this act is an abomination. These things do not cost only for Brazil, they cost for the whole planet that we live on. Our quality of air, water and life, is struggling as it is, and to cope with the emergence of future problems. 3 million animal species, and one million people that live in the Amazon, are getting basically holocausted for more fat jew casinos, for future cattle farms to feed the unprecedented and uncontrollable amount of births taking place.

What is definitely a certainty, is that these fires were not lighted as a coincidence. These are clearly man made. Humanity has become a big and disgusting virus on the face of this planet, and this is escalating. Uncontrollable pollution, destroying the flora and fauna, all forms of other life. Extincting these forever, to make another smartphone that has a pre-determined 1 or 2 years of lifespan, thanks to jews and their model of disgusting production of goods.

Then people question why we need Paganism, Eugenics, and to turn this world around before it is too late. Nobody sane, under no circumstance, would go there to light a fire that will cost the life of the planet, for a couple bucks. Because rest reassured this is Brazil and it's probably some real dirt poor people doing it, it didn't cost much.

People don't quite get it. Replicating at uncontrollable rates, ruining one's home planet, creating an artificial tech dystopia, supporting reptiles in human form, destroying the environment upon which one lives for consumerism, and believing in jewish egregores, do not in particular turn out to be good for any species. This ends only in slaves and wastelands.

We are now witnessing one of the most major crimes we have done against our planet. This is extremely saddening.

Nowhere in the bible, or in any notion of Abrahamism, there is respect or understanding about nature. Nature is looked upon only as something entirely worthless, to be trampled and destroyed, while the planet itself is believed to be a heap of random trash that goes around as a flat structure on the universe, somewhere in a hebrew bearded man's armpit or something. Anything natural on the other hand is looked upon as vile, disgusting and unclean.

This general mentality of ruining civilization, and everything in it, for one's transient life, is the "Great Work" of the cancer of Jewish religions. A people without spirituality, become a nihilistic people, a grossly materialistic people, and violent and evil people, living as worms while alive, and dying towards a stupid form of death. So one does YOLO and burn Amazon for like 50 bucks in Brazil, and calls it a day, so some stereotypical hooknose somewhere can build a new Casino or something.

For those that do not know, Amazon is really a crucial place for the ecosystem of the whole planet. If the Amazon is ruined, this is affecting directly the whole planet. For years and years there has been consistent pressure to shrink, burn, and generally destroy the Amazon jungle completely, so that people like the ones who own the shop Amazon can own a second pair of golden flip flops.

When these types of fires emerge, it is rarely normal. These people who do these things are gangs, and in Brazil, it is not difficult to find downtrodden people and give them some shekels to do such devastation that literally may ruin our planet in the long run.

And by long run, we don't mean a very long run, but a couple decades at best. If the Amazon goes, one fifth of the planet will be affected, as the production of oxygen in the Amazon accounts something of one sixth of the total oxygen production of the planet, the estimates go.

---

Brazil's Amazon rainforest is burning at a record rate, research center says

<https://edition.cnn.com/2019/08/21/americas/amazon-rainforest-fire-intl-hnk-trnd/index.html>

(CNN)Fires are raging at a record rate in Brazil's Amazon rainforest, and scientists warn that it could strike a devastating blow to the fight against climate change.

The fires are burning at the highest rate since the country's space research center, the National Institute for Space Research (known by the abbreviation INPE), began tracking them in 2013, the center said Tuesday.

There have been 72,843 fires in Brazil this year, with more than half in the Amazon region, INPE said. That's more than an 80% increase compared with the same period last year.

The Amazon is often referred to as the planet's lungs, producing 20% of the oxygen in the Earth's atmosphere.

It is considered vital in slowing global warming, and it is home to uncountable species of fauna and flora. Roughly half the size of the United States, it is the largest rainforest on the planet.

Just a little alert to the world: the sky randomly turned dark today in São Paulo, and meteorologists believe it's smoke from the fires burning *thousands* of kilometers away, in Rondônia or Paraguay. Imagine how much has to be burning to create that much smoke(!). SOS pic.twitter.com/P1DrCzQO6x

— Shannon Sims (@shannongsims) August 20, 2019

Dramatic images and videos on social media show giant plumes of smoke rising from the greenery and lines of fire leaving blackened waste in their wake.

The smoke has reached all the way to Sao Paulo, more than 1,700 miles away. Images from the city show the sky pitch-black in the middle of the afternoon, the sun blanketed by smoke and ash.

The European Union's satellite program, Copernicus, released a map showing smoke from the fires spreading all along Brazil to the east Atlantic coast. The smoke has covered nearly half of the country and is even spilling over into neighbouring Peru, Bolivia and Paraguay.

From the other side of Earth, here's the latest on the Amazonia fires

Produced by @CopernicusEU's atmosphere monitoring service, it shows the smoke reaching the Atlantic coast and São Paulo

DATA HERE

<https://t.co/Q6qzFdPfIT>

<https://twitter.com/WMO/status/1163853178749825024>

— WMO | OMM (@WMO) August 20, 2019

The Amazon River stretches across several of these South American countries, but the majority -- more than two-thirds -- of the rainforest lies in Brazil.

According to INPE, more than 1½ soccer fields of Amazon rainforest are being destroyed every minute of every day.

People worldwide are sharing their horror on social media. Fans of the K-Pop band BTS, who call themselves the Army, are even rallying on Twitter to spread word of the fires, with tens of thousands of people tweeting the hashtag #ArmyHelpThePlanet.

Activists blame Brazil's president

Environmental groups have long been campaigning to save the Amazon, blaming Brazil's far-right president, Jair Bolsonaro, for the endangerment of the vital rainforest. They accuse him of relaxing environmental controls in the country and encouraging deforestation.

Bolsonaro's environmental policies have been controversial from the start. A former army captain, he made campaign promises to restore the economy by exploring the Amazon's economic potential.

Just weeks ago, the director of INPE was fired after a spat with the president; the director had defended satellite data that showed deforestation was 88% higher in June than a year earlier, and Bolsonaro called the findings "lies." Bolsonaro also criticized the agency's deforestation warnings as harmful for trade negotiations, according to the Agencia Brasil news agency.

Bolsonaro's pro-business stance may have emboldened loggers, farmers and miners to seize control of a growing area of Amazon land, Carlos Rittl, executive secretary of the environmental nonprofit organization Observatorio do Clima (Climate Observatory), told CNN en Español last month.

Budget cuts and federal interference are making it even easier for people to exploit the rainforest. Brazil's environmental enforcement agency has seen its budget cut by $23 million, and official data sent to CNN by Observatorio do Clima shows the enforcement agency's operations have gone down since Bolsonaro was sworn in.

On Wednesday, Bolsonaro said that the recent wave of fires in the Amazon may have been caused by nongovernmental organizations in order to draw international criticism to his government.

"Crime exists, and we need to make sure that this type of crime does not increase. We took money away from the NGOs," he said.

"They are now feeling the pinch from the lack of funding. So, maybe the NGO types are conducting these criminal acts in order to generate negative attention against me and against the Brazilian government. This is the war we are facing."

In July, Greenpeace called Bolsonaro and his government a "threat to the climate equilibrium" and warned that in the long run, his policies would bear a "heavy cost" for the Brazilian economy.

Environmental activists and organizations like the World Wildlife Fund warn that if the Amazon reaches a point of no return, the rainforest could become a dry savannah, no longer habitable for much of its wildlife. If this happens, instead of being a source of oxygen, it could start emitting carbon - the so-called claim driving factor of climate change.

- High Priest Hooded Cobra 666

© Joy of Satan Ministries

www.joyofsatan.org