

Communicating the Truth to “Normal” People, Like Uncle Chuck

HP Hooded Cobra 666

March 27, 2017

Our ideas have proven in the last several years, during the pandemic craze, and in many other intervals, to be highly attractive to many people worldwide. Those who have been around in 2017, remember how the Internet was literally "Booming" with our ideologies, left and right.

Eventually the mass purges took place and people had to be forced in the "suburbs" of isolated internet websites, rather than let's say social media. Actually, not so "isolated" anymore as the above kind of multiplied our coverage by a factor of possibly 10 compared to 2017. This says a lot.

Many people like them, generally people think we have things to give. Others who will come to know us may desire to follow us, or not follow us, and others will become [as they have been] opposed to us. All of that is fine.

First of all, those here who expect people to "wake up" as in suddenly admitting in public, interest about Satan, Demons, what have you, this is wrong and it's not going to happen.

Especially in a "Non-Kosher" manner, this didn't even happen in Black Metal stars, people which are already "Freaks" and "Unconventional" by every popular standard. What can be said to people who haven't been not even half as unconventional?

This says that the fabric of reality is slowly opening up. At the same rate, some laws remain however strict and slow in how they change or how things get better. So, one has to be ready to encounter this reality also.

Another super autistic thing, is people going out, meeting 5 people, and trying to deduct if social change is happening based on this isolated example. This reflects one's circles, and not necessarily the fate of the planet or the world, although there can be some ties between the two. There is a form of relationship, but not a direct link of cause and effect.

Your weed smoking friends from last week... Will keep smoking weed next week also. People change really slowly. These do not constitute a reflection of issues that we already don't know, or haven't been already encountering, or weren't there before in the past also.

Uncle Chuck at work or on Barbeque Sunday, didn't find Satan last week. Are we doomed now? Where are the Rituals?

Uncle Chuck was never meant to find any truth and his mind is more resistant than the Great Wall of China in finding anything. So, fuck it with Uncle Chuck, become read below, and don't allow these things to confuse you.

Uncle Chuck may be great for a program such as that of xianity, where for example, he is siphoned of his lifeforce, but unless he is decided to inwardly advance, getting Uncle Chuck on our side is as pointless as asking why the sky is blue.

Satan may also not want Uncle Chuck for numerous reasons [if he's a cool guy then possibly not now], because as any Satanist would know, those who are "With them", will be pulled "To them", and this can happen under any and all circumstances.

Those who are with Satan, DO KNOW, one way or another, Satan will definitely reach out to them. It's also one's Soul that reaches out to Satan, and this magnetic pull will pull someone to Satan under any and all ages, information barriers, or what have you.

Uncle Chuck does not have to be this guy, and if you are, know the difference between you and Uncle Chuck.

Maybe Uncle Chuck in a future world will be a Pagan, doing basically all the same things plus a little stuff more that Uncle Chuck was doing previously.

Uncle Chuck does not understand astral worlds, couldn't give a shit less about any "Magick", and his pineal gland is something he never cared for, but if you give him a playboy magazine he may consider a few things further. Uncle Chuck was not born to be a rocket scientist and THERE IS ABSOLUTELY NO PROBLEM WITH THIS. Unlike the enemy, we have NO PROBLEM with Uncle Chuck, nor we believe he will burn in hell, because there is no such place.

It may take a few lifetimes until he finally wonders about some things. And that is FINE by us, unless Uncle Chuckie is against us. Now if one goes to Uncle Chuck and asks if he suddenly understood that Satan is the master of the universe, does that make any sense?

In fact, one is very very deceived, naive, or even totally stupid to assume that this was bound or meant to happen. What you experience with the Truth and understanding, does not mean other people experience it also. We are talking about completely different wavelengths here.

The expectations born out of this mentality are expectations of not understanding human psychology. Humans, and especially normal people, think in ways and are motivated by things that may be completely alien to a normal Satanist or any person who has ever advanced spiritually.

Most people live entirely into their own world and don't care what happens past it. When you come with mountains of evidence about supernal and other important things, they won't care. Most humans are not even versed for these interests nor they will care, nor now, nor in the future. These people will go with the flow, no matter what, and they will never think for themselves.

And if they think for themselves by accident, they will let it go, simply to be on with the mass.

We also live in an era where one's attention can be discarded into the void 24/7, nonstop. Facebook, TikTok, Instagram, worthless people, stupid stuff, all these will all see to it so that you waste every single moment of your lifetime, without reaching a single thought or realization. The major "communication" platforms today are built by the top global psychologists to attain these ends. The large majority finds these inescapable as they have zero control of their mind. There are endless places and things to waste one's time.

Now pull one person out of this coma and start telling them shit about other dimensions, meditation, spirituality, let alone mention the word "Satan". This is as going into a funeral dressed as a clown, ramping up the music, and wondering why nobody in the funeral is dancing with you. Is this falsified expectation a measure of any progress or reality however?

One can also look at themselves to understand. Do you suddenly elevate stages of being in 1, 2, or 7 days? No. Change that is fundamental, even for an individual, takes a lot of time. Be it that this is the case, humans also have to have their own time and pace in which they will reach [if ever] specific understandings.

That aside, many people also, are afraid of things, thoughts and ideas such as ours. This fear factor is very important. Look at our society, and how it's for example punishing people who are "White", just because over that. Governments have turned against it, which Governments are the primary tools of survival of human beings - abusing authorities and powers to crash on these things, controlled of course by the enemy. It takes a specific amount of bravery and personal power to overcome these ideas. Many people don't have it.

In regards to how mindwashing works, just consider that you can literally show the facts to someone, about let's say a topic such as jewish control of the West, or how White people are looking at a future genocide, or a million other things. But it will be as if one is talking to the "Walking Dead" and this is what brainwashing can attain.

Only specific individuals, who have a stronger than average mind [and are willing to] can understand most of this information, at least to a "JoS Desired" level. Politicians or others of our own can focus on the lesser segments of population, and disseminate these ideals in a lesser lever of understanding, but we cannot be doing everything ourselves. Others have to do this.

And there are many places who are doing exactly that. Which is why the enemy has shown more teeth in the last 4 years than in possibly the previous 40 years.

Our aim is not to hope that every NPC out there will suddenly become a playable character because this does not happen. The aim should be to disseminate information so that this exists, and those who are fit to take it in, will rather take it in on their own. The method of this is the opening of the door, and then drawing attention to it, because those who are meant to walk through, will do it. Those who are not, won't.

And you can't beat them in with any facts, evidence, or any other way. Our beliefs compared to that of the enemy, are different. You cannot beat someone to "meditate", but you can definitely beat someone into approving "Mohammed as their prophet".

The enemy also wants to destroy, we want to create and to cultivate, and these aims are completely antithetical to themselves. For this reason the enemy wants as many people and as dumbest people as possible, while we want a select segment of the population, but built up on the highest level of mind and soul as possible.

We are here to receive the better types of people, not to chase down every simpleton and convince them of our ideas. And even this process is a process of inner self maturation and seeking, and it cannot be forced.

Most people also, especially in the "strange stuff" space, are actually horrible communicators. This is not meant to offend anyone, but just go around and see how let's say "Conspiracy Theorists" behave. In these groups, we frequently have highly autistic people that are very poor in methods, techniques, communication, and constitute a very sub niche category of people interested in specific things and materials.

The above "strangeness" has to do with the fact that these ideas are very foreign to the average mind, but adding on top of it bad communication, makes it even harder for people to "accept" these ideas.

More that this is continued, there will be no hope of reaching out to the "average" person, unless this level of strangeness actually becomes "commonplace", but this is happening on a slow pace.

The Truth, which we are making easily accessible to all, will be seized only by those who have a high intelligence, a soul with something important in it, or other different kinds of people. These in our present timeline will be highly "unusual", or will have highly "unusual" private thinking.

Some people write also that they tried to talk to X and X about "Satanism" and so on. Why do you even bother?

The expectation that these people will admit things in public, if fairly insane, can be threatening, and even the private entertainment of these ideas can come at a price of fear. Then, the people who may be brave enough to do that, will still have to look through specific things, and the rarity of finding people of intelligence can be terminally low.

We are also living in a society where retardation, being a retard, lacking empathy, and behaving like a total animal and servile slave, is taken in as some sort of evolutionary strategy. To expect people in this environment to show publicly admitted and non-kosher interest, in the Occult or Hitler or something, is thoroughly misplaced and autistic. How has this ended for most people who do that?

The enemy is rigging the game so that it's suicide. And most people don't want to suicide, in general. Only very specific "trend setters" could pull this one publicly, and survive, let alone also motivate others to do the same, especially when we are talking about masses.

If one in general wants to make other people listen, especially outsiders, the dish has to be served from their own perspective and not from our own perspective. They have no spiritual understanding, they are not studied in the occult, and many of them entirely block the subject.

Their perspective is 30, 40, 50 years of being brainwashed in the Holocaust, that Rabbi Jesus is good, and that importing people in one's land until one's biology type goes extinct, are all "good", "desirable", "positive", and above all "normal".

The reconfiguration of their values and methods utilized can only be on their own level of consciousness, and not from "ours". Do not expect the above people to change "overnight", because it will never happen en masse.

There is a level of Truth every person individually and every mind can take. This level increases with personal power, understanding, and for those who are of a strong nature. Most people out there can take little Truth, because taking it otherwise, would constitute a shatter in their mind way beyond the nuthouse, or potentially render their lives unlivable.

Our world is increasing in weakness because of the seeds having been sown to that end for centuries now. This did not happen yesterday. Nor it will go away in a couple of years. Because you advance and you become smarter, this is not necessarily the case for everyone else. In reality, many people are actually becoming worse.

Satanism is a path that is contrast to the decaying force of nature. One Satanist after 30 years will be a higher up level individual, a normal person in 30 years will just be older and probably way lower than they are today.

The Gods and Satan are in understanding of this situation, so we have specific segments of things that we are going to do, are doing, and further things, such as spiritual warfare. But they don't expect us to move the wand and change anything at once because this is not even possible.

Worry not that others have not found the Truth yet - but help them find it in the appropriate manner. Worry a lot however for yourself and how much more you have gained out of it while you are at it, because that is really important.

Nature, the Gods, our Rituals, and activism, will do the rest. There will also be more new things coming out this year, specifically versed for reaching out people and speaking to them "in their own" language, and in things that they understand. More will be out in the upcoming months.
