

Demons and Vlad Tepe $Mode

Post by HP Hooded Cobra 666

Mon May 20, 2019 3:00 am

What is important for everyone to remember is that the enemy is a done deal. This has to be kept in mind in all interaction and all things seen from and by the enemy.

Asmodeus in the book of "Solomon" told the crapper "Solomon" (this is a fable but in these there can be found notions of actual events) explicitly, that the tyranny of the enemy over our Gods is just a short joke.

The enemy and jews are as typical blinded by the present. They believe they are too high for a few decades of half-assedly doing a few steps forward. Imagine however how do beings that are 20 thousand or 50 thousand years old do look upon them. People come and go but they are forever. And when some wars are declared against some beings like that, it is done before it ever began.

Demons have been filling the grounds with their enemies for centuries. The height of the enemy's power or motivations did not matter. Not long ago I read how a top Rabbi in New York attempted to summon a Demon in order to abuse him and get him to do something.

The Rabbi died, his family got plagued to death, and a series of other events followed. Any punishment that can be imposed by humans is just irrelevant to what these beings can do. Nobody sane would want them as his enemies, if only if they knew.

Few jews have tried to appease them and stop this old war they have waged to no avail. This is because some of them understand this was the most possibly wrong decision. The Gods turn them down. There is fury for retaliation on the side of the Demons against them, and this has extended for centuries. If the Demons are in a bad reputation, this is only because of the enemy.

The enemy's thoughtform has basically been almost collapsed. The Ancient Gods are more powerful than ever before in recent history and the enemy cannot do anything about this.

The weapons of a spiritual nature, plus the knowledge required, has also been successfully distributed.

What remains is for more and more people to come to put these into use, which will of course happen, coupled with unavoidable awakening of the masses due to the enemy's blatant terrorist work. The only option of the enemy is to intensify this terrorism they do and dig their hole deeper.

Nothing can save them now and there is no turning back. Efforts, I.e., education and the final RTR are going to just accelerate this conclusive end result.

The Demons have been wronged and attacked by the enemy beyond any reason. They are resolute and happy to take the enemy down. The wise ones of the enemy also know they have fucked up, despite of how many of them are very arrogant.

Just by maintaining the Final RTR, the Race Awakening Ritual (will be done very soon again) plus what else needs to be done, what is unavoidably coming will be accelerated to the fullest extent.

The enemy is on a spree of doing spastic moves that will not only not further their plan to help themselves, but will just accelerate their own demise.

One of these things is for example censorship and how carelessly they reveal themselves to the public of being terrorists and criminals. This has been backfiring on them real bad.

The enemy is also so stupid that they further this situation irrespectively of if this is going to destroy them. 99% of Gentiles are sure to survive as a species any event of any magnitude. The same cannot be said for the enemy, despite of arrogant words.

All Dedicated Satanists must stay steadfast in warfare against the enemy to deliver Justice on this world. Too many have died and too many have been mistreated, higher up beings and lower.

All these souls seek vengeance and all people have to do is simply open the doors and let loose the abyssal chaos. The Gods have been waiting for the dish of revenge which will be cold for a very very long time, hungering than ever for violent revenge against the enemy. There is no turning back from this for nobody involved and that is perfect.

Think how some Demons like Andras and Beelzebub do see the enemy after all they have done. Their old and worn out enemy servants will cross the other side and find themselves startled that their enemies were there to greet them. The enemy has lost astral power and they know this. Satan in the end has Won.

Vlad Țepeș Mode of spirit warfare will be initiated. All efforts against the enemy are to be intensified, doubled or tripled.

Do not mourn the twilight, live in it and embrace it.

High Priest Hooded Cobra 666