

Some Security/Internet Advice

Now people need to read this carefully and take this in consideration, especially those living in countries where there is no law in any substantial way, or worse, censored countries.

We have taken some steps to help you more in everything. For example, the forum has encryption, and the name we picked is non-intrusive to the eyes of potential people who can see this in bookmarks, or other monitoring people.

Normally if people live in a free country, there should be no issues whatsoever. But many people do not live in free countries. The majority of countries, to be exact, are not free at all.

We are in 2018. Everything on the internet is monitored and can be monitored. Now, hackers aside, the real dangers lie with the world's surveillance networks, oppressive governments, and those who seek to castrate and destroy the flow of information.

We have members from Islamic countries, or countries where religious freedom is not allowed, or is punishable by death and public stoning in some cases. If you live in a Communist country, better watch your back, better take some precautions. There is enough stupidity going about 'universal love' and 'loving kindness', unless you are a Satanist. Then you can see the other side of the coin.

Thing is many other poser/socially cancerous (((("Satanic Sects")))), which we denounce, find detestable, and worthless animals, have made sure to associate Satanism as a notion with ghoulish worship and other detestable things. This has reverberated on how the public sees "Satanism", and thanks to media disinfo and lack of information, good and shit can find themselves in the same sack. These clowns have done this so that people who look into Paganism or act a bit goth, so they can be identified and marginalized, or even worse, persecuted for it.

When you are a Satanist, you must keep this private, and it's better, especially depending on the country you live, to keep it fully secret. Just don't say anything to people about it, it's simple.

Satan states in the Al Jilwah, a guide given to Yezidis who were living in the middle of Christendom, and beheading Muslims some centuries back:

"Do not mention my name nor my attributes, lest ye regret it; for ye do not know what those who are without may do."

With the rise of Islam, religious intolerance, and the fall of secularism in many countries, heed that advice. Many people live in places where you can literally lose your head over your beliefs.

Did you find out someone who may be interested in Satanism let's say. Don't say anything. Make sure in a clever and anonymous way they find a link to the website. And that's it. You do not need to expose anything. I repeat this, especially for Islamic countries. There are people who pretend to be 'curious' in your beliefs just to learn more about them, such as pastors and other snoopy, and/or potentially even dangerous people.

Two kids in an Islamic country join together, become friends, then someone goes into a tantrum and reports them to the local Imam. What do you think is going to happen here by the lovely Muslims? A conversation and in-depth logical analysis of the beliefs of the accused person? In many countries in the world, you are not innocent until proven guilty, you are guilty until proven innocent.

If you find yourself in such countries, you need to take some easy precautions. And take them every single time you visit the forums. While it's unlikely for anything to happen, one has to still be careful about what they do and what they say online.

Since nothing here is 'illegal', but only hated by a world based on the fact Jewish books about rape, war, and destruction of the Gentiles are accepted as 'religion', while things like ours are considered by a few close minded people as 'bad' or 'threatening'...These people of love and acceptance, the Christians, have accepted it's better to accept ISIS terrorists in your country than people who may have Pagan-like beliefs, for example.

So being hated by people who do not take any law seriously (such as Christians who believe the Jewish Bible superior to state law), please mind the following. And spare yourself of any such problems.

Clearly this will not 'anonymize' you completely online, neither that is the purpose. It will give you the necessary freedom to browse the forums and read without you leaving any leads for snoops or other people to see this. That's all.

For one, do not leave any browsing history or go simply go "incognito" when browsing. This is too basic, but it has to be mentioned. This has to do mainly with snoopy relatives, and other people who may get access to your phone or pc. While these are yours, others may be able to physically access them. For those who want to avoid a VPN service (this basically just connects you to the internet through another network, so your activity is encrypted), you can simply use the following website:

<https://www.proxysite.com/>
<https://hide.me/en/proxy>

This should cover partly the parts of snoopy people. The thing with proxies is that however, they can, for whatever reason, get logic credentials. The above are quite reliable, I would say. One can look around for others too. But if you do not login, feel free to browse everything with peace of mind. Actually, people can even be snooping in your work network or public Wi-Fi and mining information. So, when you are on such, use the above sites to check the forums.

If you live in countries with extreme monitoring, where your spiritual beliefs might as well get you killed, you can even install "Tor". Tor is basically just a browser with which you can browse the internet, but it has heightened features for your privacy. I'd say it's an overkill for simply visiting the forums. Tor also has an application for your phone, for those who use phones mostly. You can also access the sites above from your phone, if you are using phone internet.

Tor would be necessary in cases where someone literally lives in a country where over suspected belief in "Satan" or "Paganism", one can literally find themselves in the fire.

Lastly, if you use an e-mail for the forums, it would be better to just make a random e-mail that you do not use and/or have linked with anything else. A US based e-mail provider like Gmail or whatever of this nature can work for this. It's better you do not use this e-mail for anything else either. Just leave it hanging there in case you need to retrieve your password.

From a physical perspective, let's say you have a USB with some PDF's in it. Do not have anything personal that can identify you in this USB, in case you lose it. This is one example.

Yet people need to know that there are people who are evil and very snoopy out there. Or in the bus. Let's say you are checking the JoS in the bus you take to school or university, and all smartphones now have a giant screen. Someone looks at this screen. They may miss it once, may miss it twice. Then they can check it with others, start a rumor, the list goes.

Another example, some people login with their personal name e-mail in the groups or forums.

Do not do this. If you have done such, create another account.

There is no need for alarming concerns, or worry. Just act sensibly.

Remember the "WWW" is under strict control. We won a battle with Net Neutrality a few days ago, which makes things, as they were, stable for the freedom of the internet, at least for the time being.

Lastly, keep up the Communications RTR's as instructed. These have made fundamental changes in the tech world, will put tech under regulation, and make things better so that the world doesn't turn into a technological slavery farm.
