Many of you around the age of 15-20, are experiencing a lot of personality issues which you don't understand are normal but these are.

At this age you are not a complete man. In fact, you are likely a heap of ruins. The first violent reactions you will have against yourself is when you start understanding this very thing around this age.

You cannot reasonably expect to be anything but yet another simpleton in this age, and I don't say this to offend you, but I just mention this as a realistic fact. Even prodigy children are only prodigy personalities on specific tasks.

Chances are overwhelming your finances suck or that they aren't that good, and love life is likely in ruins. You might also experience an array of social and other problems that are big, and without the proper guidance to solve these, likely getting bigger with seemingly no escape.

Unless you belong in some sort of exceptional category of rich parents, or you have a name on you, or you have saved your school from a large fire, you likely go around unnoticed and experience cruelty from the world that you don't understand why.

Women in general will go with older dudes and you will scratch your head as to why they fuck disease ridden DJ's or who knows what.

I have good news for those below the age of 20, at this age, just with daring and having a motorcycle or something basic like that, looking reasonably fine, being a little smarter or pretending to be, and basic social skills, you will get a girl.

Therefore, do not despair. If not then, then later, you can have a leverage after you have built yourself further and looking downwards.

You likely have 500 areas you can improve on right now, and that's actually a good thing. After you comprehend around 500 areas are lacking, you will see that most of them aren't really truly needed to do well in life or to live a proper existence. Then, you will start finding as time goes you only really needed improvement in 5 categories in life to have an excellent life.

By improving on only 5, you will understand what a blessing it is to be a man. By not improving on even 5, the universe has curses and plight and infinite pain prepared for males who don't do this, and therefore I cannot tell you to engage in that stupidity.

Now, further, no matter one's age, self acceptance is very important here. One must be willing to accept one's self for better or for worse. Instead of beating yourself with a stick all day long, or whine like incels do in forums, you must finally face these difficulties and seek to improve in these 5 areas.

5 areas could be as simple as going to the gym, dieting properly, meditating daily, and doing something good for your career future. These by themselves will set straight many other issues by default. So suddenly the 500 problems will appear to be way less.

If you are a good and proper male in some area, there are likely many areas you are still lacking in, and these can have abysmal gaps into them.

If you can see the abysmal gaps this means you have self awareness, in contrast to those who have no clue that these even exist.

For example, if you are famous or talented, maybe you are broke, and if you are famous, talented and rich, maybe you will have other problems plaguing in your life.

The life of a male in contrast to that of a female has a lot of war inside it, men also enter into a form of an unforgiving game of life, in that if we fuck up, then we have fucked up and we must usher our powers to get out of the hole.

There is no Romeo that is coming to save you, and even if a woman does that, she will not tolerate you on the gutter of existence. To hold no exceptions here as rules, that is the case.

The major aspect of this is also internal, as men are tormented by drives and emotions that if left unchecked can actually start whipping you into oblivion. Void meditation and inner knowledge is paramount here. Men going to prison, getting fucked, becoming ruined, is everyday reality out there, because of no education and no knowledge.

But I have some very good news, and some news others won't want to hear. The reality is that for many of you, you will notice rectification of these issues by applying JoS knowledge and also living life and trying your best. It may take a while. Don't act like the world is ending right now.

But in your 30's, 35's and 40's, or even 50's, you will be a far more clarified and sane person, on far more ease with yourself. Many confidence issues will likely settle down as time goes same as your self awareness of your self image and where you are in the world.

When you are very young, you have no clue what the fuck is going on. Many immature people maintain the same problem as they grow too, due to not much friction with the realistic existence of life. Try to not be one of them.

You cannot expect to be any of the following at that age: A supreme mystic, a billionaire businessman, Mozart, the head of the military in your country, elected president, a complete philosophical man who is in full content with himself, wrong-less and blameless like a Yogi, supreme divine commander, what have you.

Yet, here are more good news: You can actually become an ever better version of yourself if you set this early in your mind and walk to this.

You can't even expect reasonably 10% of this at this age. If you are at 1% of this, then you are already doing GREAT. Does that sound insane? Yes, only 1% is required at a young age. 5% is even more miraculous.

That is fully delusional and heaping upon yourself more of these irrational demands, will drive you progressively insane and into a constant feeling that you are never enough. As most Satanists also are focused on development, it's advisable to not allow the traps and snares of time to dictate to you your existence.

Expecting 100% and not doing steps for 1% is what will jeopardize your whole journey.

Lastly, you have not everything figured out and it's part of growing into adulthood to understand and start becoming more comfortable in the situation of accepting life as is, and also accepting the fact that not everything will be figured out immediately. Things will make you question life and question what you know, if you are honest with yourself. And that's great.

As one grows you will see there is a lot of work to be done and that nothing was "supposed" to happen by default. We men have to be actors on our own self to sculpt ourselves step by step, and none of this happens automatically.

Look in the future with confidence and with a sigh of relief and never believe in penultimate perfection of other men, let alone those who pretend they have this by default, for only the wise have dug beneath the ground to find the truth and see the length of the path to personal growth and development.
