

We Have a New Website

by High Priest Hooded Cobra 666

July 15, 2018

Introductions aside, get in it and you will find it interesting.

We will occasionally update it with more articles related. In fact, let us know if you have any recommendations (they must be on the point of the website) such as a sermon or sermons that helped you understand about the specific topic of the site.

This is a new gem that can be used to expose the enemy's occult stranglehold.

<http://www.kabbalahexposed.com>

There will be other websites coming. I have not forsaken the idea of a JoS tube either. The thing is with endless responsibility comes also lack of time. But this is definitely on the plans, let alone other interesting things.

HAIL SATAN!!!

- High Priest Hooded Cobra 666

Reply from HP. Hoodedcobra666

Yagami Light wrote:

First of all AWESOME!!! The new website is greaaat (although I haven't yet read the really really good information -I will soon enough- But it will surely receive lots of views as it is a hot topic! Really nice!!)

Secondly:

Ol argedco luciftias wrote:

I don't like looking through the Satan's Library website, it's much too sad seeing all the horrible crimes done by the enemy. It feels like looking through 50 of the saddest and most sadistic of the enemy's crimes to find 1 article hidden inside that's positive and helpful, and I refuse to let that sort of negativity in my mind. If I hear about something really disturbingly evil that was done, I've tended to have the memory of it pop up a lot during the few days after, I don't want to be reading such sad titles.

I am exactly the same way...! I hope this won't sound weird, but I am a bit happy that another person feels the same way.

On another note, I had noticed that when I had done the Venus square for my throat chakra, at that period of time it had helped me to not be like this. When I read a bad article/news, I wouldn't feel as bad as I always do and I wouldn't be thinking about this topic in the long run either. I am waiting for Venus to be in a good placement again to do the square again.

None of you need to 'fix' this repulsion you feel. If you feel repulsion against sewer rats is this something that needs fixing? No, it's good and healthy for you. You don't need to meditate on sewer rats either or focus too much of your time on them.

It's natural and good to be repulsed from these things. You don't need to dwell on it either. Just remember it and do what you have to do so that it doesn't happen again and/or is repeated, is all we have to do. And fight against it with a positive mindset.

So long this mechanism you have doesn't prevent you from doing the right and the necessary to solve this matter, it doesn't need fixing. In neither of your cases has it become reality denial like so many goyim out there. So you're just fine.

Dwelling on it is pointless. Fixing it and moving away from it is necessary which is part of fighting the enemy.

The RTR's exist because we dwell on a better future away from the sewer rats that infest this planet with pestilence. It's not for remembrance of the negative, it's to strive for the positive and to dwell on the positive. And bring it about.