Ok so, thanks for the heads-up HP Maxine..that saves me time.

So now tha day, March 13th..will most likely be a Saturn working for me. I need to bind someone..a co-worker, who is just straight-out, straight-up, naive and unaware..married a Jew.

She can be helped, if she can get away from him. but I figure he did it in a manner to try to stay with her, astrologically binding and cementing their relationship.

worth a shot, trying to bind him to be a completely inept and undesirable human for ALL living creatures, though, methinks..and I got no other squares going on.

again, I run into the question..Saturn is Saturday, but the closest sign is on a Monday..is it worth waiting or is going ahead okay? It's not Venus related so I'd imagine it'd be okay.

I made a post on the teen group and someone said that what i have in my 7th house will determine if i will or have the ability to be with a demoness. Can someone tell me anything about my 7th house especially if i can be with a demoness. Forgive me if i word this incorrectly im still a newb in astrology.

Taurus in saturn and libra is my 7th house
Thank you for the links but i gotta admi im having trouble with the answer im looking for with the description given.

"The marriage partner may have a strong Jupiter/Sagittarius emphasis in his/her chart. There is a need for freedom and independence in relationships, but at the same time, these people desire a sense of security. Marriage may be to someone of wealth and/or high social standing in some cases. The marriage partner may be directly involved in education or religion. Much help and good will can come from others, including the partner. These people value justice and fairness."

Can you or someone explain or tell if im able to be with a demoness? Ive already decided that i want to be with a human im just curious.

Hello. I recently just joined this group because I started learning astrology. I just have a small question that I would like to get clarified. Is your Midheaven your common zodiac sign because you almost always display this in public? Or is your Ascendent your zodiac sign because it's your first house.

To my knowledge, I don't think it matters a whole about what's in your seventh house and what not. If you want to be with a demoness perform a ritual and ask Satan for help. Be very specific and state what kind of relationship you want e.g open (can have other partners) or not, for how long, sexual, etc etc. There is a ritual in the PDF file 'Demons' in Satans library. I suggest you study that if you're interested in learning about them.

Man not to offend you or anything, but you see, unless you look at all aspects and take them into consideration, the overall insight on a certain area of your life will never be clear...But finding up it's up to you... Good Luck! ;)

You can ignore everything mainstream astrology told you about sun signs, your zodiac sign, etc. Modern astrology puts far too much emphasis on the sun sign and is in general inaccurate. Azazel's Astrology for Satanists teaches you real astrology.

I said your natal chart would indicate whether you’re likely to have an inherent Succubus relationship or not, 7th house moons are one of them but you also have to look at venus and its aspects as well. It also indicates what you may need from your lover. And as you've said you have no inherent Succubus relationship so you're going to have to obtain one.

This is my aspect

Moon:
Seventh house
The lover/marriage partner often has a strong zodiac sign of Cancer and/or lunar background. They may seek a lover/partner with a strong maternal aspect and they enjoy being taken care of. Others often care for them and/or benefit them in some way. There is a strong desire to marry for emotional and domestic security. The family on either side often has a direct involvement in the marriage and can influence partnerships for better or for worse. This placement favors dealings with the public in the area of business.

Also my Descendant being Leo, Venus Pisces, void moon etc..

You should get Hoodedcobras astro reading for love relationships for more insight in yours.

HP HC's love report is a synastry between 2 people, not a report on your love preferences.

If you're looking to know if you would be best with a succubus, you need to be astrally open enough for one. And you have to be ok with not having a physical relationship, ie not going out on dates or dinner parties etc.

Plain and simple.

Oh mb didn't see that. I guess it's all the better looking at one's own chart themselves especially when it comes desires hehe.

Just understand Succubus relationships are far different from gentile relationships, remember to take into account what I said in the other thread. We are in war times, don't expect every day to be love and bliss until these jewish shits are done with and sometimes they can't always be by our side. The enemy can be very perverted and can masquerade, know how to tell the difference between them and the gods.
One of the most important of Manswers, would you be okay living your life or eternity not knowing what it’s like to make love with your race? A lot of individuals have never taken that into perspective until they’ve gotten older and making Satan upset is very regretting.

Study the Jos, learn about Satan and the occult. Awaken your soul and empower your senses. The meditations from the jos brought me closer to mine & you can actually hold a Succubus and feel her like you could with a physical person but it requires a lot of work.

Technically speaking if i do decide to be with a demoness wouldn't she be of my race? Im an asian and the way asians and blacks are able to be with demons and demonesses is because they were humans that ascended into godhood. Besides sex has never really been important to me. But this whole thing made me confused. I dont even know what i want anymore. Mabye it has to do with the fact im a gemini. I read my natal chart and it said i tend to change my opinion frequently. But ive noticed it only changes when i get more info on the matter. Idk i need to talk to satan about it.

What it's like to not make love with your race*

As far as I know, there are gods that govern different races. And yeah best you do talk to Satan about it.

Gentiles are creations of the gods and some govern different races. You could always just ask for a demoness friend with the potential to escalate into a monogamous one or temporary. Just make sure you've thought it through.

Subject: Solar returns

Hi everyone, I am still very new to learning astrology. Before I dwell on transits, I would like to learn more about solar returns and how I can interpret it. Could anyone guide to the right location for more information. My birthday passed last month, so I still got time to do the work.

Subject: Re: Solar returns

Solar returns are explained in the "Predictive Astrology" section of Azazel's Astrology for Satanists. A solar return is a chart for your year. Instead of showing personality traits and the makeup of your soul like your natal chart does, the solar return chart shows your events for the year.

Predictive Astrology

High Priestess Maxine Dietrich goes into more detail regarding specific solar returns in some of her posts.

Thanks you are very helpful to me! :)

Maybe I missed something but this was confusing to me.. If you do a Lunar return do you take the lunar position from the natal chart or from the solar return chart?

I'm studying very hard, trying to make sense of everything involved in astrology, but there are a few elemental points that I can't seem to discern. If the 'true' node is the northern moon node, does that make the southern node exactly opposite in position on the natal chart? The degrees of zodiac elude me as well. For instance: if I had, say, Mercury at 22° into Libra; does that mean Mercury is 22° past the beginning of Libra, reading counterclockwise? And does that sign being on the cusp of a house have any effect on the measurement? Also, are there specific parameters for a conjunction? How far away is too far? And in the wake of such, would it be non-influential (in terms of aspecting another entity) until it reaches an aspecting angle, e.g., semi-square or sextile?

Last question: to do a transit divination, I take the current transiting chart and draw correlations to my natal chart, correct?

A solar return is a chart cast when the current position of the sun returns to the exact degree and sign of your natal sun. A solar return shows your upcoming year.

A lunar return is when the current position of the moon returns to the exact degree and sign of your natal moon. A lunar return shows your upcoming month.
The south node is exactly opposite the north node.

If Mercury is 22 degrees into Libra, Mercury is 22 degrees past the beginning of Libra by 22 degrees. The sign on the cusp of a house does not have any effect on the measurement.

Here is a post from High Priestess Maxine Dietrich regarding orb degrees: https://groups.yahoo.com/neo/groups/JoS_Astrology/conversations/messages/1729

A conjunction is when planets are within 8-9 degrees of each other.

Transits are the current positions of the planets. For interpreting transits, you look at aspects between the current positions of the planets and your natal planets.

Subject: Helping for love

Ok this might be a little personal or off topic, but I need someone's advice or help in getting a girlfriend. There's a girl at my school I would like to talk to but I'm a shy and timid guy when it comes to girls. I didn't have a good father figure, so I never really knew how to talk to girls. And since Venus is in retrograde, I can't do a love spell to help me out. Can anyone give me some advice on how I would talk to this girl? Most of the time I see that she doesn't really talk to anyone in the classroom, pretty sure she has no boyfriend. But I'm very nervous, any help would be appreciated. :)

Talking to women is not something you need to study in the Himalayas. High Priest Mageon gave an excellent explanation here: http://josministries.prophpbb.com/post21538.html#p21538

"I note some guys complain about not being able to get a girlfriend. To be honest its really easy to get a chick. Most of what holds a guy back from this in their own mind. The insane example is the guy who flipped out in College town. He could have had two chicks on each arm if he got past the mental barriers he put up. The reason the so called jerk gets chicks is because he simply walks up and talks to them in a normal, cool, friendly, and self confident manner. I had a friend who was the master at getting chicks this is all he did. Its not some esoteric science you need to study in the Himalayas. If you just want to have fun and go crazy get several girl friends at once. Its easy.

The fact is thought from experience the more you date if your looking for something more then just dating. Its gets real fast as to the situation."

You can use the runes ANSUZ or URUZ or the Sanskrit mantra MUNKA to break down mental barriers and free yourself from hangups.

Thanks this will be very helpful for me and my wild mind. I'll just do a little research on the runes so I would know how to use them. Also, I'll definitely need to read the one about the obliteration of my Saturn for many reasons. Thanks again!

Subject: Questions

I planned on doing a love working a day after venus was out of retrograde(april 16) but i noticed that on that day the moon would be waning. Will that affect the working in any way? I know waning moons are good for ending things so i am a little concerned about it.

If that will affect it should i wait for the next waxing moon then?

Before venus went into retrograde i started a working for money. Would venus now being in retrograde affect that working even though i did it beforehand?

Subject: Re: Questions

A love spell should be started during a waxing moon. If you are going to go through the time and effort to perform a love spell, you should start when the universe is working with you, rather than against you.

As long as you started your money working before Venus went retrograde, you are fine.

If you want to do the love spell on 16th, it won't help you find love, but it would sooner help you broke up with someone... Just wait for next waxing moon so you'll have better conditions for success ;)

And noppe, if you started a working before the retrograde you're good :)

what does midheaven leo in the 10th house mean?

The midheaven is the cusp of the 10th house, so that means the sun rules your 10th house. You should look at the house/sign your sun is in as well as aspects affecting your sun to determine the influence on your 10th house. The 10th house rules your career/social standing, so factors influencing the sun in your chart will impact those areas of your life.

Srry it took a while for me to reply. Thanks for answering guys. Though i gotta say it sucks having to wait a long time for this working.

In March 26, 2017, around 1:56 pm PST time, the Sun was exalted in Aries, A Sunday, and the Ascendant was in Leo, according to the Astro.com charts. Wouldn't a Sun Square to increase your riches still be beneficial?

On March 26, 1:56 pm, the moon was waning in Pisces which is a terrible time to start a money spell. When starting a money working, the moon should be waxing in Taurus, Leo, Libra, Sagittarius, or Aquarius.

In my [very amateurish] understanding, the earliest someone in the US can do a money working is on April 27th in the morning or afternoon. In the evening the moon transitions into Gemini.

Correct?

"The chart ruler in conjunction to the Sun helps to offset negative aspects. "
http://www.angelfire.com/empire/serpentis666/RULER.html

This article gave me the impression there will be at least SOME effect to the working, since the ascendant was in Leo, Chart ruler was the Sun at that given time.
http://www.angelfire.com/empire/serpentis666/Satans_Squares.html

These articles are all about how to correctly use the kabalistic squares, no mention of the moon's importance when starting a sun square on it's own article, if what the above message is true, shouldn't it have been mentioned as a side note (in the article on how to correctly use the kabalistic squares) since you'd assume you're doing a planet specific working?

The Sun by itself was favorable.
Since its a Sun square, not a moon square.......
I know that the ideal time to begin a Moon square is when the Moon is in Cancer or Taurus, on Monday during the hour of the Moon, whilst the Moon is full. However, this Monday is the Moon will be in Cancer and the Moon will at least be waxing on it's own day. So I am just wondering if it would be worthwhile to go ahead with a Moon square or work with the Moon's energy on that day? It's not the most powerful Moon but it is still going to be a fairly strong Moon.

The only reason I ask is because the most ideal Moon is infrequent.

You can start a planetary square even if astrological conditions are not perfect for the square. For example, you can do a sun square even if the sun is not in Aries or Leo. The sun square will be weaker than if you started the sun square during an optimal time, but it will still have effect. I made it through some horrible transits by doing sun squares non-stop except for when the sun was debilitated in Aquarius or Libra. As long as the planet is not in its sign of detriment or fall, you can start a square for that planet.

Started studying Azazel's Astrology and have come up with few questions about saturn return. I hope i may get the answers. Thanks in advance.So, here are the questions.

1. Is Saturn Transit an another name used for saturn return?
2. Does the Saturn return for an individual begins only when it's at the exact degree on return when it was at individual's birth time OR it begins for him when it enters the natal sign it was in at his birth time?
3. What affects does it make on an individual's life? I've already read that it depends on the houses/signs it was in person's natal chart. But is there anything to be caustious about? Is it life threatening?

Group: JoS_Astrology  Message: 2819  From: sable.wolf616  Date: 4/3/2017  Subject: Re: Saturn return question
1. No. A transit is simply movement through a House and/or a Zodiac Sign. A return is when a given planet returns to its exact natal position in our chart. Every planet returns, though not every return will we live long enough to experience, ex. Neptune - c. 165 years, Pluto - c. 250 years.

2. Exact degree. If you have Saturn in 15 degrees 12 minutes in Cancer, it will make its return when you are about 29.5 years old.

3. You have answered your own question. It can bring disaster at worst, or at best stabilisation, a permanent OR life-altering change.

As Spiritual Satanists, it can stabilise, provided we enhance ourselves and kick some reptilian butts.

@ maxine.dietrich666 Hey, I don’t know anything about Mercury Retrograde.
Just letting everyone know, there are problems with the email servers and approving messages to the groups. Much of this sort of thing is deliberate from the enemy in trying to foul up communications.

Please save any messages you post to the groups. It may take up to a day for your messages to get posted. (Hopefully not that long). We are doing what we can.

All forms of communication are ruled by Mercury so, yes psychic communication can be affected by Mercury retrograde. I post a lot and I have found that during Mercury retrograde I will forget entire sentences out of my messages or phrase things in ways that mean something entirely different than what I meant to say. I will realize 10 minutes after I sent the message that I neglected a key part of the message or submitted a mess that is unclear or misleading.

This does not mean you should freak out every time Mercury goes retrograde. Freaking out will do more damage than a retrograde Mercury as freaking out will put massive amounts of energy towards fouling your own communications. If you are absolutely convinced that you are communicating just fine, then that is exactly what will happen. By focusing on something or thinking about something, you are directing energy towards making that something happen.

Venus was retrograding and returned to Pisces where it's exalted and has now gone direct. It will be there for around two weeks or so which gives you next Friday and possibly the one after for an opportunity to use the energy of Venus at it's peak for Love Spells, Attracting a partner, Marriage, Money, Beauty, Arts, Creativity, Pleasure, Sex and pair bonding, connecting with the feminine aspect of the soul, heart chakra, basically anything in life which gives you happiness and enjoyment or things you value.

You can ignore whatever modern new-age astrology comes up with about astrology. Modern, new-age astrology is crap and is highly inaccurate. There is far too much emphasis on sun sign and the meaning of planets or aspects is butchered.

Casting a chart for an event, like the founding of a country or a business, is valid but modern resources on horary astrology are crap. You can cast a chart for an event and use the resources on Azazel's Astrology for Satanists to interpret the chart. For example, countries have natal charts, solar returns, transits. etc. High Priestess Maxine Dietrich talks about the chart of the USA in the post below.

It really depends on what you're trying to do. Each planet has characteristics that defines it's personality, so nothing is equally effective all the time.

You should not start anything when the moon is void. If you start something when the moon is void, anything that can go wrong will go wrong and the thing you started will more than likely fail.

Being unable to make changes is more likely due to bad karma. Karma is NOT divine retribution for bad behavior in a past life. Karma is programming, trauma, and other dross carried into this life from past lives. For example, if someone was worked to death in a past life they may be born as a cripple this life. The trauma of being worked to death was so massive that the person wanted with all their soul to never be worked to death again. As a result, they were born crippled in this life so they can not be worked to death. Lydia posted an excellent guide for nullifying negative karma and freeing yourself from "fate."

Thank you for your reply! I am trying to train myself to eat better, including better foods and smaller portions, as well as workout more often and make time for meditations and yoga in the am and pm. I am currently doing a working to make myself more motivated which i have a lot of issues with. Other things include working more frequently, i am a stay at home mom who is trying to start my own business, be more productive, kind of goes with the later one, be more frequent about cleaning my house, and other things that i have always had issues with. Over all i am just trying to better myself by breaking bad habits and creating better ones. I know not to start anything during a void moon and i also no not to try and start during saturn ,is it retrograde?, sorry i know saturn will null out anything that you try to do. Like i said i am very new and alot of the more complicated stuff really confuses me for some reason. Anyways, any info at all would be very very appropriated!

Having little motivation is due to a weak solar chakra. Empowering your solar chakra will increase your motivation and your energy.

Both your Solar and Crown would be strong, but there is no point is trying to tell by astrology which is stronger. The point of Satanism is to advance, which includes strengthening all chakras. And you can tell which chakras are strongest just be meditating on them.

I would say that both seem strong but the strength depends on if youve worked on them in past lifes.

However, since the crown is the hardest to fully open, it could very well be that your solar will be much stronger than your crown chakra.

And most of this is what I know from reading.

Anyway. If other people say different things doesnt mean theyre wrong.

@garland871. Ref magnum opus

The magnum opus is physical and spiritual perfection. One reason it is being kept hidden is because of infiltrators. Another reason is that it will literally emotionally, physically and spiritually tear you apart if you progress too far before you're ready.

The Gods will help you when you're ready.

Paying karmic debt? One last chance? Don't listen to that kind of crap. It's usually a cover-up for a lack of knowledge.

12th house Pluto people usually have a very shy aspect to their personality. This placement can also, like Saturn in the 12th, cause feelings of alienation and loneliness at times. On the upside, Pluto in the 12th bestows strong psychic gifts.

Astrologers and related who talk about "growth" karmic debt" and other crap use these terms as a cover for a lack of knowledge.

Pluto is intensity. Whatever house it is in (look to all aspects of the house), there is usually a very strong focus on one or more aspects the house represents. Sometimes, even an obsession.

A very positive manifestation, for example, of a 9th house Pluto is an obsession regarding education. This placement is often in the charts of scholars. Obsession, properly directed into productive goals is what is needed to reach the top, along with perseverance.

High Priestess Maxine Dietrich
www.joyofsatan.org

Pluto in my 12th house is very strong. I've been told by someone who has never seen my birth chart that I am paying my karmic debt from a past life and that I have one last chance. I have disturbing thoughts at times but they are well contained. I'm known for being quiet. Morbid, yet well liked. I'm an avid practitioner of subconscious abilities and manifestation. I have vivid dreams almost every night of my life, along with frequent sleep paralysis. I can control social atmosphere when I want to. My strong emotions lay behind a true beast. I also have a 2nd house stellium, all in capricorn with venus, neptune, and uranus.

Finally, I've realized how familiar my chart looks.... Please share your theories on this. I've never talked about this to anyone and would appreciate all feedback.

Do NOT post your natal chart or personal information online. There are infiltrators here with the purpose in life of harming as many Satanists as they can. Your natal chart is a map of your soul and shows your strengths, weaknesses, past, and future. Someone with a little knowledge of astrology can use your natal chart to make curses against you much more devastating and can use the weaknesses shown in your chart against you. Also, your natal chart gives away your birth place and exact birth time. That information can be used to track down your real identity. You can delete your message and repost it without your natal chart attached. You can ask questions about specific parts of your natal chart without posting the entire chart and endangering your safety.

Okay, so I've been trying to work with/understand my own natal chart for the past few years, on and off, since first "accidentally" stumbling across Azazel's Astrology for Satanists page one night when searching for a more detailed/accurate version of astrology than the mainstream b.s. that kept popping up in the usual search(es); only just this year/late last year getting much more serious about learning (real) astrology. And I'm trying to better understand the significance of degrees/fixed stars in placement of natal planets.

My question is this: I know that it says that 13 & 26 degrees of Cardinal signs "give special importance to planets or house cusps OCCUPYING these degrees". But if one has a planet that is not EXACTLY on the degree but is only a few minutes off from being on that degree, does the above mentioned still apply, just to a lesser extent than if it were literally ON that degree??

Thanks in advance! :)

A planet or house cusp does not need to exactly be on a particular degree to still be affected. A planet or house cusp can be well into the degree and still be affected. For example, a planet can be at 26 degrees 30 minutes and will be affected.

Okay, I was just wanting to make sure I fully understood before I just started assuming things. Now I can work even more thoroughly on my chart. Thanks a lot! :)

Hail Satan/Lucifer!!

Hello.
I found out that Saturn is my chart ruler, and is in conjunction with Venus. It influences at least 4 planets and 3 Houses -> planets: 1 because Saturn is ruler of Capricorn, 2 because it's co-ruler of Aquarius and last one is Saturn in planetary house (I'm not sure if it's good idea to tell which planets, so I didn't)

-> houses: First House(ruler), Second(Co-ruler), and Fourth House(Saturn is in planetary house)

PLEASE NOTE: I'm really new to astrology so I'm not sure if I got it right, especially what I wrote above. I think it influences more than that, not sure.

Now since he is my chart ruler does it influences every planet and every house since the chart ruler is the most important? Does that mean I'm screwed with Saturn as my chart ruler?

HAIL SATAN!!
Hello.
It's my first time posting here. :P

I know that one should NOT judge, only from one degree [or one planet] how the other person is and make assumptions etc... However, this person is not sure about their time of birth [it is in-between 12 pm and 2 pm], so the only thing I know for certain is the degrees of the planets into the zodiac signs.

That person has a Stellium in Aries [either in the 9th, or the 8th House], and they have Jupiter in 25 degrees in Leo.

My knowledge in astrology is minimum, and it is a subject that requires devotion [to study], but for this period of time I can not devote myself to it [other priorities].

Nevertheless, this person is veeeeeeeryyyyy psychic, and he is actually very aware and intelligent. He doesn't just "feel", but he uses critical thinking of what he feels, when he feels it, etc. He is very aware as a person.
I have talked to him about meditation [he is very interested in it] and I can tell how the enemy doesn't want me to help him out.

Now, the thing is... this person has SO MUCH DIFFICULTY meditating. No matter the time, whenever he tries to clean his aura, or cut links with other people [from the chakras] he falls asleep. He doesn't have a health problem with sleep etc; he tells me, it's never happened to him before.

Also, this person seems to be holding extreme anger within him, and I believe there may be a possibility he's created thoughtforms because of that anger of his. I've noticed he focuses too much on things that don't matter [people that anger him, for example, or situations that anger him, and he talks about these things for too long]. I sit and listen when he talks, in order to advice and so on, but I see how much he has... as if, devoted himself, in being that angry about all these things.

One last thing... I had cut the link in his third eye and heart chakra [the one that HP Vovim had suggested in his website; say whatever you want about it, but I've seen it helping people] and he told me that while I was doing that, [he had his eyes closed] he could see something like... an eye, watching him. It was just one eye and it was moving slowly, right and left, watching him at all times.

I am at a bit of a loss here.
I'm trying my best, but not even my own level is high enough to understand most of the things that are happening to him. I thought the eye could be a thoughtform he has created, or a thoughtform that the enemy could have created.

However, taking into consideration his astrology chart, along with how psychic that person is, how could I really advice him, and what could I do to help him, progress further, and eventually learning the Truth about our Gods?
Wow explains why i've always been rebellious and part of the reason it was inevitable for me becoming a Satanist this time around, thanks johnson

Subject: Re: Saturn

Having Saturn as your chart ruler does NOT mean you are screwed. That just means the sign Saturn is in will have a lot of influence on your personality. That also means that the house containing Saturn (4th house) will assume importance in your life. Also, having Venus in conjunction with your chart ruler is beneficial as Venus in conjunction with the chart ruler brings beauty, artistic talent, and charm/charisma. Having Venus conjunct Saturn can be unfortunate for the houses with Taurus and Libra on the cusps, but you can offset that by doing Venus squares to strengthen your natal Venus. Also, building a very strong aura of protection in general keeps bad things from happening to you. Your chart ruler does not influence every house and every planet in your chart. In this case, Saturn affects the 1st house (ruler), 2nd house (co-ruler), 4th house (Saturn in the house), the houses with Taurus and Libra on the cusps (Saturn conjunct Venus), and any houses where Saturn aspects a planet in that house. For example, if Saturn was opposite Mars in your 10th house, then your 10th house would be affected due to the Mars-Saturn aspect.

A stellium in the 8th house would bring an interest in the occult and psychic talent. An Aries stellium brings a quick temper and hotheadedness unless there is a strong water emphasis in the chart to offset this. If this person is very cerebral and critically analyzes everything he feels, it sounds like he has an emphasis on Mercury or intellectual air signs.

The eye watching him is most likely an enemy thoughtform. The enemy sends thoughtforms to watch people who the enemy considers a threat. The thoughtforms can be destroyed using elemental fire or Satanic electric-blue fire. Daily Banishing rituals also keep enemies and their ilk out of his room/house. He should not wield Satanic electric-blue fire if he has not performed the Dedication Ritual.

If the person falls asleep whenever he tries to meditate, he is not getting enough sleep. Falling asleep the second you relax is indicative of inadequate sleep. He should dump useless crap from his life (like the 4 hours of television the average person watches a day) so he has plenty of time to get adequate sleep.

Be aware, there are psychically talented people, half-assed Satanists, and other people with potential who are not worth the amount of time it will take to babysit them and deprogram them until they are comfortable enough to become real Satanists. If you are sitting for hours listening to this guy go on and on about petty crap, he is absorbing your valuable time that you could be using to advance yourself. If he is willing to put in the effort to improve himself and do the research necessary to succeed as a Satanist, he will not need hours and hours of hand-holding. If you have to spend an hour a day for two months just to get him deprogrammed enough so he does not soil himself when you say the name "Satan," he is not worth your time. You can give him the workings and meditations to free himself, give him the resources he needs to study, and ease him towards the truth, but he needs to grow over time and be an effective use of your time.

For example, Lydia is approximately 2,000 times more powerful than the average noob who comes to Satanism. Lydia got to where she is without someone holding her hand every step of the way. She does research on her own, meditates devoutly, and actively fights in this spiritual war. A lot of people who pretend to be Satanists perform the Dedication Ritual and then cannot be bothered to meditate consistently or spend 10 minutes a day saving the world by doing a reverse torah ritual because the antisemitism involved in the rituals is really uncomfortable or something. Lydia doing 4 RTRs a day is equivalent to 56,000 half-assed Satanists who do one RTR a week, if that. It is not worth it for Lydia to go out and spend hours talking to a handful of people to try and get them to stop balking at the idea Satan was lied about and is not evil.

I even sent a message saying as much...

But, with my GD's guidance and some help from someone here (Thank you) I now understand quite a lot more about myself.

Where I got confused was where the placement of planets in each house, where they were close to other houses.

It seems, if a planet is close to another house, besides the one it's in, some of those other qualities can bleed through, as well.

Also, multiple planets in a house can end up a "mixed bag of nuts," in regards to personality characteristics. This is the reason some people are so complicated that sometimes seem self-contradictory. They're not. It's just complicated.

There are also those things I just did not WANT to face up to. But, here goes...

That person is very psychic, it is a shame for his 'talent' [past lives' work, most likely] to go on waste. I will see how much more time I will invest on him, depending on whether he is acting on the things I suggest him.

As for the sleep, this guy sleeps, it is not a sleeping disorder, or a lack of sleep. I felt it is evidently a spiritual attack. It is just very weird, I don't know how to help him deal with it. And I wondered if 25 degrees in Leo, in Jupiter, would have any impact on this matter... but I guess it does not. It sucks that I don't have time of birth.

You can start a sun square even if the sun is not in Aries or Leo. As long as the sun is not in Libra or Aquarius, you can do a sun square. You can start a sun square on a Sunday when the moon is not void. Starting any magickal working when the moon is void will cause the working to fail.

Void Moon Times
You need to keep meditating regardless of what happens. Meditation raises your vibrational level and this shields you against negative planetary energies. You also need to clean your aura and build a very strong aura of protection everyday. A strong aura of protection keeps bad things from happening to you and reflects negative energies, including the negative energies of a Saturn transit.

Subject: Saturn retrograde as my chart ruler

Hello! I have Saturn retrograde as my chart ruler. I made my birth chart and it says that Saturn is retrograde in my 3rd house. Does this mean that Saturn is always retrograde for me or not? I know energies from planets who retrograde are different, so how does Saturn affect me? What happens when Saturn I'm sorry if some of this doesn't make sense I just started with astrology.

Please be careful with this data there are people that would use it against you.

And no. They go direct when you turn about 30 years old.

Depending on how many retrogrades and such you had could make you a late bloomer though.

Subject: Re: Saturn retrograde as my chart ruler

Your natal chart is the positions of the planets at the exact moment you were born, your natal chart does not change over time. If your chart ruler is retrograde Saturn, your chart ruler stays retrograde Saturn for the rest of your life. The energies of retrograde planets are directed inward instead of being outwardly expressed. For example, someone with Mars retrograde have difficulty expressing their anger and hold their anger inside. They can be boiling with rage but will not show it on the outside.

If your chart ruler is retrograde, that can cause delays in life and cause you to be a "late bloomer" where success comes in the later half of life. However, you are a Satanist and are capable of fixing your natal chart. If you have weak planets, you can strengthen those planets and improve those areas of your life. For example, if your natal sun was weak in Libra, you can do sun squares to strengthen your natal sun and improve your confidence, health, and willpower while also improving the areas of your life ruled by your natal sun.

Literally any problems in you natal chart can be fixed. If you have planetary placements saying you will have trouble with love, you can do love spells to fix that and have lots of happy love in your life. If your natal chart says you will be an alcoholic, you can meditate and do yoga to induce real bliss and make alcohol seem disgusting in comparison.

For future reference, this group is for discussing astrology. Questions not related to astrology should be posted in the appropriate group. This question is related to health and should be posted to the Health Group or the main Joy of Satan group.

Do NOT suddenly stop taking any medications. Doing so can cause life-threatening withdrawal symptoms. You can gradually taper that dosages over a period of weeks. For example, if you currently take a 50 mg dose daily you can cut the pills in half and take 25 mg daily for a month. Then cut the pills into quarters and take 12.5 mg daily for a month. Then cut the pills into eighths and take 6.25 mg daily for a month at which point you can try stopping the medication completely.

The rune WUNJO (WAUNYO is the more powerful version) banishes depression and anxiety.

How to use Runes/Mantras

http://josministries.prophpbb.com/topic16810.html

You need to meditate and do yoga daily. Depression is caused by low levels of bioelectricity and both yoga and meditation raise your bioelectricity. Yoga and meditation also clear trauma, hangups, and other dross out of your mind and heal the root cause of anxiety and depression. No matter what happens, you need to meditate and do yoga daily. Skipping a day causes your bioelectricity to drop, causing depression, and reverses progress you had made which sends you back to square one. You need to schedule your life around your meditations, not the other way around.

Also, you need to clean your aura and build a strong aura of protection. Cleaning your aura rids your aura of negative energy. Neglecting to clean your aura allows negative energy in your environment to stick to you and that negative energy causes depression, disease, difficulty with meditation, and other problems. A strong aura of protection reflects negative energy and keeps bad things from happening to you. This includes accidents, disease, physical attack, psychic attack, bad luck, disease, and other misfortune.

Methods of Protection
http://josministries.prophpbb.com/topic16800.html

You should do a Banishing Ritual daily to keep malicious entities out of your house. Malicious entities will do anything to try and discourage people from Satanism and that includes inducing depression, knocking object off shelves, causing nightmares, and otherwise doing anything that will get you to leave Satanism or give up. You can also visualize Satanic electric-blue fire filling your room/house to banish a malicious entity.

Additionally you can detach from obsessive thoughts, depression, irrational anxiety, and other crap and void meditate to get rid of them. The flame meditation is good for improving focus. You can do void meditation daily to improve your focus.

Also, psychiatric medication, like ADHD medication, depletes your body of nutrients over time. It does not help that agricultural soils are depleted and our food is not as nutritious as it used to be. You are likely severely deficient in B vitamins, vitamin D, and magnesium. You should eat a good diet free from fast food, processed food, and other toxic foods. Your body cannot heal itself from the damage caused by the medication if you are constantly consuming toxins that damage the body further. You should eat a good diet with meats, eggs, nuts, potatoes, whole grains, dairy, fruits, vegetables and other good foods. Here is a thread with recipes and helpful cooking tips: https://groups.yahoo.com/neo/groups/SSHealth/conversations/topics/2433

In order to heal itself, your body needs the raw materials to rebuild itself. You should take a high-quality multivitamin as well as extra magnesium and cod liver oil.
@dr4g. Ref astrology

Azazal and HPS MD had put together a wonderful and detailed tool to help all SS to learn astrology.

I'm on my phone so can't pull it up, per sea. Go to the jos main page. Scroll down to Satanic Witchcraft. In the middle of the page is Azazal's Astrology.

Also, a pdf download is in the Satan's library.

The ruling planet of the sign of your ascendant is your chart ruler. For example: if your ascendant was Pisces, your chart ruler would be Neptune. If it was Aquarius, you would have 2- a ruler and a co ruler- Uranus and Saturn. Gemini is Mercury, Aries is Mars, Capricorn is Saturn, etc. Google ruling planets social signs.

Also, to find your ascendant you need to know your birth time. Then just type into google "natal chart" and be sure to include the time when you enter your date of birth. Then just scroll down thru the write up and it will say ascendent in ____. Time of birth is also necessary to determine houses, moon sign, and occasionally it makes a difference in which signs your planets are in etc. Some things change in mere minutes. For years I thought my moon was a sign it wasn't and my planets were in signs they weren't because I thought checking "12 noon" as my birth time, thinking it wouldn't alter things so much was fine. No.

beginning these will connect you to the sun, as a source of energy for the duration of the square yes?

and it should allow you to use and draw in the energies of the sun to clean your soul, even when you are not in the sun right?

if so I should be able to get away with not doing 108 vibrations of suryae every day.

It is exhausting, especially if your doing vibrations for your chakras too, or any other vibration meditations,

Those in the know, mainly Jews, know the importance of changing location for a solar return. Solar returns are location-specific: change your location, change your karma.

Many times, a single person will go on holiday for their birthday. They meet the love of their life while on vacation. This would not have happened if they stayed in the town of their residence, and this can be seen by comparing both solar returns (for residence location or trip location).

Take a look at your upcoming SR. If your AC is at a bad degree, or other unfavorable planetary placements, change the location to another city or even country. It's a good idea to look at your upcoming SR months in advance, so you can plan accordingly, such as booking a flight in advance to get a good price. This is easier in Europe where flights to other countries go for as little as 10 euro. If you're in America, consider Belize or Panama, you can get cheap flights to these areas if you book in advance. Or hop on a train to another state. You can even do a working in advance to find the best location and a cheap ticket to get there. I have literally flown to other countries for free, including a free good quality hotel room. Don't think it's impossible. With our Gods, nothing is impossible.

You just need to be in the ideal location at the exact time Sun conjoins natal Sun. This can be the day of your calendar birthday, or the day before or after. Get to the location for that moment, and you can leave shortly after. It does not need to be a long vacation if you have a busy life. Even a quick crammed vacation can literally save your life, or set you up with your soulmate, or get you a dream career, or get pregnant if you're looking to start a family.

As well, this will put you more in tune with being the master of your own destiny. You can go about knowing that you did what it took to alter your fate. You are in charge of your life, you are not at the mercy of a crappy solar return.

Substituting one vibration for another is not going to fix the exhaustion problem. You should reduce the number of vibrations you do and then gradually increase the amount as your endurance increases. You can substitute other meditations for the vibrations so you are not exhausting yourself. You can absorb golden-white energy and program the energy to protect you in all ways. You can visualize golden white energy saturating your soul to clean your soul, you do not need to be standing in the sun to do that. There are breathing exercises and other techniques you can use to empower your chakras that do not involve vibrations.

Well sun squares are certainly less effort, I want to know which one is more powerful, and worth my while, sun squares or a suryae rosary?

Group: JoS_Astrology  Message: 2886  From: johnson_akemi  Date: 6/24/2017
Subject: Re: sun squares

A sun square is more powerful than an equivalent SURYAE working unless the sun is weak in Libra or Aquarius. In that case, a sun square is a complete waste of time. I would recommend using a SURYAE working for protection instead of a sun square. This is because an incorrect number of vibrations ruins an entire square. With a SURYAE working, missing or adding a few vibrations on accident doesn't ruin the working.

Do you mean planetay square?

If yes the response is no because you can do alone the work.

Why did you say you "don't feel secure to have contact with the Gods"?

Have you dedicated your soul to Satan [I don't think so]? Did you sign your name in blood?

If you did, if you are dedicated to Satan, then there should be no issue communicating with the Demon Gods. Satan Loves and Protects His own.

If you are not dedicated [and I suspect you are not] then the Satanic magick will not work in a positive way for you.

You can do planetary squares even if you are not psychically open enough to see and hear the Gods. Doing planetary squares will empower you spiritually and help you progress to where you can see and hear the Gods.

I just downloaded chronosxp, and it wants me to put in my longitude and latitude for my city, am I supposed to put in the coordinates for my birth city, or the city I live in now?

also I am only seeing

i am also seeing the phases of the moon, but it is not showing me weather or not the moon is void of course, or what sign the moon is in.

I'm not sure how to use this program, can someone explain how to use this thanks, and hail satan

VoC is not build in in it. You can use lunarium.co.uk for it.

Yes you are supposed to put in the coordinates of where you are living RN. (Right Now) notice the words sunset and sun rise? Think what they are for a moment. If you moved halfway across the world you wouldn't be doing night things in daytime either now would you?

when you input the longitude and latitude, there is a link that says "find my latitude and longitude online" but when you go to the link it asks for your birth town, I also recall people saying that planetary transits are different for everyone, so I assumed that must mean that I enter my information based upon my place of birth.

also when it gives the hours of the planets, does this mean that it would be the hour of the planets corresponding chakra.

or are the chakra hours on the joy of satan correct for everybody, for every time zone, for any age and DoB?

salem burke said that when he gave the jos the chakra hours he only wanted to get people accustomed to doing workings in tune with specific times, like practice, and that the hours weren't accurate.

also where can I go to find what sign each of the planets are in?

also I do not see where it says sunset and sunrise, but I see "day begins at()" and "night begins at()" this does not necessarily mean that the times are inversed for me, I live in the us, and I have my whole life, so the sunrise, and sunset are nearly the same, and doesn't really provide any clue to indicate what you said to be the case, i am not in china.

I understand the reason you would tell me that, but the last thing that this whole astrology business is, is LOGICAL, it makes zero sense to me at the moment so whether or not the planets influence me in chronological order starting from my place and time of birth, or they effect me from my current location is totally unknown to me, do the planets change my soul when I'm born? or is it just that I can only reincarnate when the planets are suitable for me?

I don't know much about it, and its all totally alien, so please just treat me like a kindergartener for now.

HAIL SATAN

The planetary hours are in reference to your current location. The planetary hours are calculated based on the sunrise (day begins at) and sunset (night begins at) times. Those times are heavily influenced by your current location.

The chakra hours page on the Joy of Satan is outdated; ignore it. The hour of a chakra is the hour of the planet that rules the chakra. For example, the hour of the heart chakra is the hour of Mercury.

The current positions of the planets are all over the internet. An internet search for "(planet name) sign" will bring up many websites with the current planetary positions.

Your birth location is important for your natal chart. Your natal chart is the positions of the planets at the exact moment you were born. Your birth location determines the location of your MC/IC axis and the corresponding sizes of your natal houses. Transits are the current positions of the planet. Transits are looked at in comparison to your natal chart. For example, right now Jupiter is at 13 degrees of Libra. If transiting Jupiter is making an aspect to any of your natal planets, that will have an effect. If your natal Mars was at 14 degrees of Capricorn, transiting Jupiter will be square (90 degrees from) your natal Mars with a 1 degree orb (1 degree from an exact aspect). Jupiter is the greater benefic and transiting Jupiter square your natal Mars will bring luck, protection, and good fortune for the affairs of the house containing your natal Mars, and the houses with Aries on the cusp (Mars rules Aries) and Scorpio on the cusp (Mars co-rules Scorpio).

Zodiac Mantras

Also, you should look at your natal chart and see if engineering is the right career path for you. You will want to look at your 2nd house (finances), 6th house (everyday work), and 10th house (career). Lydia does career readings for $27 if you want a professional reading.

After you have mastered the basics of how to read a chart, you start looking at your solar returns, transits, progressions, and lunar returns to see what your future holds.

are all of the websites for the planetary signs accurate?

also how does one know what sign a planet is in, can this be felt, or seen?

also I need to do a bit of research into how to read my chart so I can know weather or not shitty things are happening bc of planets.

just recently I lost my voice and hurt my shoulder, put a damper on meditation.
When looking up astrological data, look at multiple websites and compare them to each other. If all of them say the same thing, they are accurate. You can also download the free software ZET 9 to look at the planetary positions for any date. ZET 9 is accurate.

http://www.zaytsev.com/downloads.html

You know what sign the planets are in by looking it up. If you are very sensitive to energy, you can tell when a planet is strong or debilitated and sense the moon sign/phase. This kind of sensitivity takes practice as you cannot know when a planet is strong or weak if you have no point of comparison.

Subject: Re: planetary hours

thanks, are the degrees of the planets important?

another question, I looked online for what exactly a void of course moon is, and I read that it is when the moon is transitioning into a different sign, but I also read that the moon is always in a sign, I don't quite understand this.

I appreciate you helping me understand this, HAIL SATAN

Subject: Re: planetary hours

The degrees are not very important in comparison to the signs of the planets. For example, starting a working when the moon is in a sign bad for the specific working is a waste of time. Planets in early degrees are better for starting things while planets in late degrees are better for ending things. For example, if the moon is in an early degree of Taurus (0-10 degrees) that is a good time to start a working for money. If the moon is in a late degree of Pisces (20-30 degrees) that is a good time to do a magickal working for ending something.

Moon Phases and Signs in Magickal Practice

A void moon is after the moon has made its last aspect to other planets before moving into the next sign.

The Void of Course Moon
http://www.angelfire.com/empire/serpentis666/VOID.html

thanks, ill have to look in to what it means for the moon to aspect a planet also is there a way to look into the "future" and see when the next time a planet will have a certain set of conditions?

like the moon being full on a Monday in cancer/Taurus.

thank you and hail Satan
You can look at the planetary positions for any date in the past or future. The planets are physical objects that move at known speeds and their positions can be easily calculated for any date. Planet Watcher is one such website that allows you to look at the planetary positions for future, past, or present dates.

On a similar note, how are predictions actually determined when reading a transit? The way I think it works is that you find the aspects between the transiting and natal planets, then apply the characteristics of the transiting planet to the areas ruled by the natal planet to determine a possible outcome.

For example, say I have Mercury transiting natal Venus. Mercury rules intellect and communications; Venus rules one's love life. So this could indicate the initiation of a romantic dialogue- beginning to converse with someone in an affectionate manner? Or perhaps it foreshadows a lesson of some sort to be learned about one's love life?

So, is that how that works?

I found its actually easier to just rotate the wheel in zet 9, I found it by accident.

but I meant is there a way to type in a certain set of conditions for a planet and have it show you the next date that the conditions are met?

its a pain in the ass to manually change the date day by day looking for what you want.

sun square - Copy.zip can I do more than one planetary square at a time? I ask because the moon moves into Taurus on the 17th, but the sun goes into Leo at 10 o clock on Saturday on the 22 of July, (for me) also I have set up a bit of a failsafe to guarantee that I don't mess up my square(that's the attachment), I'm going to print out a page for each day, and once I finish one mantra ill cross off a number.

I haven't done that for the moon square yet though....
You can do multiple planetary squares at the same time as long as the squares are for different planets. You can do a Mars square, moon square, Venus square, and sun square all at the same time if you wanted to. You cannot do two sun squares or two Venus squares at the same time. This is because the squares are extremely sensitive to the number of times you vibrate the mantra per day. By doing two squares for the same planet simultaneously, you are doing an incorrect number of vibrations for both.

@makesyouperfect. Ref squares

Johnson answered your question about the squares... You can do several different planets at once...

As for the method that you're doing it, I must answer. Whatever works for you, do it! Your way is too much for me to keep track of. What I do is to put the dates with how many for that date all on one sheet. It can get a little confusing sometimes and it makes me concentrate. Shael does it another way.

Whatever works for you to accomplish it. It's the amount and the mantra that's important. And remember the times go from sunrise to sunrise.

Also, while doing the entire process be sure not to be distracted. Picture in your mind [make it become real] and in the astral what you're wanting to accomplish.

Am I the only fool who decided to print the entire pdf on astrology on JoS for easier use. It really works a lot easier than endlessly scrolling endlessly and confused through a 200 page pdf.
Can i initiate a kabbalistic square without having carried out the 40-day empowerment program without any risk?, in case the answer is yes, what square would be indicated for my first goals?, my first two goals are to heal ADHD and hyperhidrosis to be more qualified for my university studying

I dream to be immortal some day and fight for freedom forever

Hail Lord Enki

Having physical copies of the PDFs is highly recommended in case the internet becomes censored, the power goes out for an extended period of time, or you otherwise do not have access to an electronic device capable of opening a PDF file.

Thank you for the advice dena :)

I hope that you are given the title hp once you are risen, you deserve it

You can then deepen your understanding of astrology by studying and comparing charts, strengthening your intuition and asking for a demon's guidance.

Because occasionally it is that one time when _____ planet is switching from sign to sign like Capricorn to Aquarius or what ever. For most of the planets, especially the outer ones; it is not often at all. But what if you are the person who is born a few minutes before or after it switches. It's gotta be someone. I am more talking about the moon sign particularly because that changes every few days. My moon sign would be different if I were born a few hours later. Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, Pluto, no. Those don't move a lot. But they do move some time.

That's not what I was really trying to get across when I emphasized time, though. Typo. I meant houses. The houses which the planets are in definitely change multiple times a day. Houses!
@rawrgarlargar, you use the method you described to interpret transits. You look at the natures of the transiting planet and the affected natal planet and make an interpretation based on the planets involved. You will want to look at the house containing the affected natal planet and the houses ruled by the affected natal planet. In your case with Mercury transiting natal Venus, you will want to look at the house containing Venus as well as the houses with Libra and Taurus on the cusps. Mercury rules communication as well as short distance travel. If you had Taurus on the cusp of your 6th house, you could experience a sudden increase in communication as part of your job or go on some work-related trips. The 6th house also rules your health, so you may become more concerned with your cleanliness.

the sun square is very powerful for someone who never even activated their chakras, I advise against that but if you really need it do it.

Any one can begin the planetary squares if they have done the "opening soul meditations". The next time to begin a sun square is july 23 when the sun is in leo. just make sure you have done the opening soul meditations" before then. take care.

the moon goes into Taurus (the moon is not void of course) download the file and print it 12 times, this is to help make sure you do not mess up the number of vibrations.

do one vibration, then cross out one number, do as many as the square calls for that day.

and visit this page http://www.angelfire.com/empire/serpentis666/Moon_Square.html this should greatly empower the third eye,6th chakra and the ida serpent.

A natal chart is as unique as your fingerprints. You need to take the whole chart into consideration in order to interpret specific aspects.

A Uranus-Neptune-Pluto stellium (three planets all linked by conjunction) will cause your personality to be most heavily influenced by the sign the stellium is in. Also, the house containing the stellium will be subject to much activity in your life. Uranus rules sudden changes, the unusual/eccentric, and genius as it is the higher octave of Mercury. Neptune is a weakening influence, rules the unexpected, and can bring a susceptibility to mental illness or drug abuse. Neptune, if sublimated through meditation, becomes psychic sensitivity and talent. High Priest Hooded Cobra has written an excellent sermon on the properties of Neptune. Pluto is power. Pluto is a neutral planet and amplifies anything, positive or negative, it contacts. With a Uranus-Neptune-Pluto stellium, you will want to watch out for sudden, unexpected encounters with power. Making the energies manifest positively or negatively is your decision. If you neglect to meditate and protect yourself, the energies can manifest as sudden conflict with authorities and incarceration. A positive way for the energies to manifest is rapid breaking away from restrictive situations. If you meditate (putting yourself on a high level of vibration, shielding you from lower-vibration negative planetary energies) and build a strong aura of protection, the planetary influences in your life will manifest positively.

Subject: Wishing Death Upon Others

Hello I am a pretty new and inexperienced, yet dedicated Satanist. Satan has been very good to me and I am eternally grateful for him coming into my life and improving on it. Anyways heres my dilemma:

I work in fast food as a manager. On my overnight shifts, there is this senile old geezer of a customer (maybe 70-80 years old) who comes there almost every early morning, hes been doing so for years, longer than I've been in the business. Hes vulgar, rude to employees, will flip out if one thing is wrong (rare occasion) and wont accept compensation (if we try to make things right hell tell us to fuck ourselves). Since I am new to this store and routine (last location I was at was not 24 hours service) I dont know the regulars inside and out so I am still learning their preferences, but they expect it from me. Anyways I dont know if this is right or wrong but I truly wish death upon this angry old man. The thought feels right to me and brings me peace and doesnt bother because hes got one foot in the grave and hes a total dick. I meditate on his death and when he is in my presence I focus my energy on him dropping dead. He is not the type one would miss, I get the feeling hes ready to go anyways, but assuming this is foolish.

I was wondering if it is okay to feel like this and want this. Im not blood thirsty and wouldnt handle it through physical means. However meditating and focusing my energy on his death feels right to me and justified. Is it okay to practice and wish this? Is there a better way to expedite the process? Any suggestions? Im not tring to sound naive.

Yes I am working on a "Plan A" professional solution but the "customer is always right". I've tried being kind and I stand up to this old bag but its just dragging on. There is no reasoning with this saggy old geezer.

Thank you!
Any comments are appreciated!

HAIL SATAN!!!

You are free to hate anyone you please. The suicidal christian teachings of "turn the other cheek" and "walk the extra mile" are to turn people into good slaves who will put up with any kind of abuse. These teachings can be seen in secular forms, such as it being illegal to shoot the brains out of a burglar because he supposedly had a bad childhood and is just expressing himself by trying to murder you and rape your wife. According to liberalism, you are supposed to sit there and let the burglar take your belongings an rape your wife, because it would hurt his feelings that he isn't allowed to fully express himself.
You can bind or curse the bastard so he stops harassing you. It is a good idea to bind anyone who could make your life miserable if they hated you for some reason. This includes family members, neighbors, bosses, co-workers, and the annoying traffic cop who likes to hide on your route to work.

But how to sublimate Neptune? Between the info you've provided and what I've drawn on my own, I've come to realize that this Neptune influence has already wreaked havoc on me (I've been searching for the root of my problem).

Neptune is too slow to have a square, so that leaves me with a Munka working. Would Munka help with a planetary influence? Or is there something better for this situation?

Sorry to be a bother, I'm just not sure how to construct a working for this

To "sublimate" is when the energies of a planet are made to manifest positively instead of negatively. An example of this is the energies of Pluto. Pluto brings intensity and this can drive people to unhealthy obsessions, but in a positive sense can be channeled towards specific goals. High Priestess Maxine Dietrich gave some good examples of this in her post here: https://groups.yahoo.com/neo/groups/JoS_Astrology/conversations/messages/2102. Meditation raises your vibrational level and this negates the lower-vibration, malefic effects of planetary energies. The MerKaBa-Star of Astaroth meditation is especially good at raising your vibrational level.

Also, malefic planetary placements in a natal chart are due to past-life karma. Freeing the soul workings (like MUNKA workings) negate the past-life karma and remove the negative influence.

Subject: Using Neptune's Energy

Invoking Neptune's energy is AMAZING even better than getting high or drunk haha it totally puts the ego to sleep and you feel like you are in a dream world with it, anything I imagine I can literally feel like it's happening. I feel like I was free from everything of this world.

But this makes me think of something though, Neptune could be a TREMENDOUS help in virtually any kind of magick because it's like it's energy heightens your imagination all by itself. We know that in magick you're supposed to visualize and FEEL your workings and Neptune's energy makes that so easy, it's like it switches off the critical thinking in your head. But the problem is how would you stop Neptune's energy from undermining a working if it's something that conflicts with it?

Say for instance, you invoke Neptune's energy to help you heighten your imagination and then want to use your imagination for something like money where you have to then use Venus or Sun's energy. Neptune's energy will interfere with the working?

Group: JoS_Astrology  Message: 2942  From: johnson_akemi  Date: 7/30/2017
Subject: Re: Using Neptune's Energy

Energy does exactly what you direct it to do. If you are worried about the energies of Neptune interfering with a working, that is precisely what it will do. If you are certain the energies of Neptune are not interfering, and are instead helping you to more effectively direct your magick, that is what will happen.

Neptune energy is not the best to use as a primer before a destruction working. You don't want to be in a state where you will feel and connect with the disaster you are bringing upon the target.

Group: JoS_Astrology  Message: 2943  From: makesyouperfect  Date: 7/30/2017
Subject: Re: Using Neptune's Energy

if you are so Intune with the energy, then you must be qualified to make such a judgement call for yourself, do you think it will, do you think it will FOR YOU?
also if your working is for money, and Neptune massively heightens creativity and imagination, then its possible that you may be struck with an truly brilliant business idea, or invention to help you make that money.
so it depends even if your doing a working for love, or sex, then this (if its really as incredible as you say) will help you think of truly genius and outside the box ways of getting your lover.

it sounds to me like having energy to make you a highly imaginative genius will only enhance your ability to succeed in your other planetary workings, dont you think?

just be careful, you may find criminal ways of making lots of money with such an enhanced mindset.
+makenrouper1 I'm still quite new to it, I just invoked it for the first time a week or so ago to see what it would be like and it was really nice like what it does to your imagination. Thanks for your help.

Are planetary times influence my birth chart everyday?
If planetary times is saturn, thats mean my saturn 5 house and saturn pisces affected??
Are planetary times and birth chart separate things?_

Are planetary times and your birth chart are separate. Your birth chart is the planetary positions at the exact moment you were born. Your birth chart does not change. Planetary times have to do with the energies at specific times of the day. During the hour of Saturn, magick ruled by Saturn is more effective at that time. During the hour of the sun, magick ruled by the sun is more effective at that time. During the hour of the sun, meditations to empower your solar chakra or strengthen your aura of protection are more effective.

Something I want to address here. The weather lately has been unusual. Violent storms have torn through parts of Europe and the US and other places.

Getting to the point. I came across a news article this morning regarding the weather that had the word "biblical" in it.

Those biblical prophesies are subliminal. The Jews have used this to control an ignorant world for centuries.

With advanced technology, humanity has been taking strides in attempts to influence the weather. The Chinese used technology in the 2008 Beijing Olympics to stop rain. That was noted.

Don't ever be fooled into believing any of this is "An act of God." No doubt, those in power, Christian idiots and Jews will keep trying to use the violent weather, earthquakes, floods and so forth to push their lies and to try to influence people.

This sort of weather is nothing new. But, to the ignorant masses, most unquestionably believe what they're told, and with the advanced technology, the powerful subliminals and a lack of spiritual knowledge, many are vulnerable to being manipulated.
Subject: When Saturn is retrograding over your natal Venus

I need no more convincing of astrology now that Saturn is retrograding over my natal Venus and it's without a doubt the worst I've ever felt relative to relationships and my own attractiveness, my confidence has just plummeted and I feel so lonely and worthless. The whole time Saturn has been going over my natal Venus has been a lousy period for relationships for me, but since it's gone retrograde I've been feeling the hurt like crazy.

Does anyone have any advice on how to handle this aspect or Saturn in general? Is it even worthwhile to do any magick for love, beauty etc while I'm going through this? Or should I just accept it until it passes?

I've been through other Saturn transits and aspects before and it seems almost impossible to overcome Saturn's influence.

Group: JoS_Astrology  Message: 2951  From: johnson_akemi  Date: 8/13/2017
Subject: Re: When Saturn is retrograding over your natal Venus

It is not "almost impossible to overcome Saturn's influence." Saturn transits can be completely nullified and you can take control of your life so you are not swayed to and fro by negative planetary influences.

1. You should do the planetary square or use the planetary mantra for the planet being affected by Saturn to strengthen the planet being attacked by Saturn.

2. You need to clean your aura and build an aura of protection every day, no exceptions. We are in a spiritual war and Satanists are constantly getting cursed, we are living on an enemy-occupied planet and the Earth is in the equivalent of a giant astral box of enemy negativity, the planets are constantly flinging energy that will manifest negatively if not sublimated, and in general your life will quickly turn to crap if you do not protect yourself. Cleaning your aura removes any negative energies, including those from Saturn, from your soul. A strong aura of protection reflects negative energy. For example, Transiting Mars making a hard aspect to your chart ruler(s) or your ascendant brings conflict like arguments. I maintain a very strong aura of protection, and because of that I do not even bother to check where transiting Mars is. When transiting Mars makes a hard aspect to my ascendant, I don't encounter conflict or arguments because all of those malefic energies just get reflected back into space.

3. Sun squares are excellent for permanently nullifying negative Saturn transits. I have done several sun squares specifically for nullifying all future Saturn transits and it makes my life very easy. If you do not want to risk ruining a sun square (doing an incorrect number of vibrations ruins the square), you can use the mantra from the sun square without doing the square itself.

4. Keep your energies high through meditation. Meditation puts your entire being on a higher level of vibration and this nullifies lower-vibration, malefic influences of the planets. For example, the negative traits of Neptune are weakness, loss of vitality, drug addiction, and a loss of touch with reality. For a Satanist on a high level of vibration, Neptune becomes psychic sensitivity and talent. the MerKaBa-Star of Astaroth meditation is excellent for raising your vibrational level.

I'm a little confused. To make it short and simple: I don't know what makes the chakras more powerful. For example: I have the Sun 1 degree in its exalted sign of Aries, but it's not in its ruling house. I have Venus in its ruling 7th house. Do the houses have any effect on chakras if the planet that rules a certain chakra is in its ruling house?

Group: JoS_Astrology  Message: 2954  From: johnson_akemi  Date: 8/14/2017
Subject: Re: When Saturn is retrograding over your natal Venus

Natal planets and their influences do not go away. If you have natal planets that are retrograde, those energies will affect you throughout your life. Retrograde planets do NOT mean you are going to experience disaster, loss, or other misfortune. Planets that are retrograde have their energies turned inwards. For example, someone with Mars retrograde holds their anger inside. Someone with Jupiter retrograde has the positive energies of Jupiter turned inwards, bringing inner contentment and less interest in the material of life (more interested in the spiritual).

Retrograde planets can cause delays and other problems with the houses ruled by the retrograde planets. Those problems and delays can be nullified if you are aware of it and take action to offset the problems. For example, someone with their 10th house ruled by a retrograde planet can experience delays regarding their career. Most of the problems regarding someone's career are due to switching careers multiple times or being very lazy and not bothering to look for a career. Through meditation, you learn about yourself and will know what career you will enjoy, so you do not need to constantly switch careers. By knowing about potential problems, you can take action and prevent those problems so your life is very enjoyable.

Subject: Re: Home planets & Chakra Question

Factors that make a planet stronger:

1. In its home or ruling signs.
2. Aspected by Jupiter.
3. Conjunct an angle or aspecting an angle. (AC, MC, DC, IC)
4. In an angular house (1st, 4th, 7th, 10th)

Factors that make a planet weaker:

1. In its signs of detriment or fall.
2. Aspected by Saturn or Neptune.
3. Intercepted.
4. In a cadent house (3rd, 6th, 9th, 12th)

The relative strength of your chakras is affected by meditation. For example, if your natal Venus is weak but you meditate a lot on your throat chakra, your throat chakra will be stronger than your other chakras. To know the real relative power of your chakras, meditate until you are sensitive enough to feel energy. When you can feel energy, you will be able to easily feel which of your chakras are stronger and which are weaker.

Thanks for your response. When you said that if I am worried about messing up a square, I can use the solar mantra on it's own without doing the square, is this the same with all the planets? And does it help to invoke the planets energy whilst meditating on it at the same time? I can already do this quite well. But squares I tend to screw up.

Also what about Saturn's mantra and energies itself? Should I also meditate on Saturn?

Thanks.

Subject: Re: When Saturn is retrograding over your natal Venus

You can use all of the planetary mantras independently of doing a square. Invoking the energy of the planet in addition to vibrating the planetary mantra will add more power to the working. When invoking the energy of a planet, make sure you affirm that you are "invoking positive energy from (planet name)," or "Invoking the positive energies of (planet name)." You don't want to absorb the negative energies of the planets. For example, the energies of Mars can bring vitality and sexual energy, but can also cause you to experience accidents and violence. Invoking only the positive energies of Mars will keep the energies from causing you a horrible accident.

Do NOT do a Saturn square or vibrate the mantra for Saturn. Saturn is karma, bad luck, misfortune, loss, the decaying forces of time, hard work, and the 3rd dimension (cut off from the spiritual power of higher dimensions, the astral is the 4th dimension). The enemy is a vicious Saturn cult that has been using the energies of Saturn for the last 10,000 years to curse and bind humanity to become spiritually powerless slave cattle. Doing a Saturn square or vibrating the Saturn mantra will bring those destructive energies of Saturn into your life. The point of spiritual empowerment and eventual godhood is to overcome the malefic, decaying influence of Saturn and become free of karma (negative imprints on the soul).

Subject: Using Light Props

Last month, I posted on this topic. One very important thing to remember here is NEVER use any LED lights or bulbs! They have an ultraviolet wave length that is bad for eyesight.

If you use a desk lamp, use one with a regular normal lightbulb.

Shining a light in your face with your eyes closed can be a huge help in the visualization of light, especially if you are sick with a dirty aura, or cannot access the sun, etc. Especially for new people.

Always stick to using a regular soft white lightbulb. LED lightbulbs are damaging to the eyes.

What does conjunctions actually mean? I don't know much about astrology, but I've read about conjunctions being a blend and connection of energies, does that affect the chakras in any way? I also have my mercury conjunct with my Saturn, and I think it affects my speech, because I sometimes can't find words to say when in a conversation with someone.

Group: JoS_Astrology  Message: 2960  From: dark_pagan_666  Date: 8/17/2017
Subject: Re: Natal Moon and Jupiter in conjunction Conjunction is the most powerful aspect because it indicates the same degree of the same sign for two planets. This aspect can be very intense and sometimes on the negative side, combustible. Conjunction expresses the creative energy of both planets involved.

http://www.indigoray.net/aspects.html#conjunction
By meditating and keeping your energies high, you can sublimate the negative energies. Mercury/Saturn conjunction makes one pessimistic focusing on the negative sides of life, prone to worry especially about the future and can cause anxiety from time to time. Vision, hearing and communication may or may not be affected, if sublimated these can turn for the better.

Never just look at one aspect alone, look at your entire chart. There can be offsetting aspects to this. Good thing from this aspect though is it makes a person hard working and disciplined.

Moon/Jupiter Conjunction on the other hand favors good relation with the mother, self-indulgence, generous and a love of family, home, friends and material possessions. Can become overly emotional and over react to things.

Conjunctions may show blockages or strengths to specific chakras especially if there are other signs and aspects to strengthen this for better or for worse.

Such as Mars/Saturn conjunction shows a blockage in the lower chakras, the energies may not flow freely as they should and since Mars rules the blood, there may be problems in regards to the blood circulatory system. There can be headaches. There can even be problems with the sexual energies. Again, look for other aspects that supports or offsets it.

22 degrees is a general negative degree, meaning the negativity is not specific, and planets or house cusps at 22 degrees can experience unfortunate events regarding the parts of your life that they rule. You will want to look at the houses ruled by the sun in your natal chart as well as the house containing your sun for potential unfortunate events. The good news is that if your sun is well aspected (such as aspects by Jupiter or Venus), that offsets potential negative events. Also, you can do workings for the parts of your life the sun rules to prevent any negative events. For example, if Leo is on the cusp of your 6th house (rules you health and work environment), you can do a working for your health to prevent any misfortune regarding your health. You can also do a sun square or use the sun planetary mantra to strengthen your natal sun and prevent any negative events.

It is a negative degree in general, I assume?

Would this negativity be boosted, in regards to one's love life, if one has, say Venus in Scorpio, and in conjunction to Unukalhai, a fixed star?
I know I'm giving a hard-core example, or so I think, but if this as the case, what could be done to such a person?

22 degrees is a general negative degree, meaning the negativity is not specific, and planets or house cusps at 22 degrees can experience unfortunate events regarding the parts of your life that they rule. You will want to look at the houses ruled by the sun in your natal chart as well as the house containing your sun for potential unfortunate events. The good news is that if your sun is well aspected (such as aspects by Jupiter or Venus), that offsets potential negative events. Also, you can do workings for the parts of your life the sun rules to prevent any negative events. For example, if Leo is on the cusp of your 6th house (rules you health and work environment), you can do a working for your health to prevent any misfortune regarding your health. While researching through the internet I found something that said if the planet is in the sixth house but almost to the seventh house because of how close it is to the seventh it's influence is more over the seventh house than the sixth, is this true at all?

Yes, additional malefic influences will increase the negativity affecting the person's Venus. Being placed at 22 degrees is unfortunate for any planet, and being conjunct or opposite a malefic star (like Caput Algol), in a sign of fall/detriment, being intercepted, and being aspected by Saturn or Neptune further increase the magnitude of negativity the person will experience regarding their Venus. A lot of factors in a chart all confirming each other, such as a heavily debilitated Venus on a bad degree along with Saturn in the 7th, is indicative of past-life karma that needs to be removed before it manifests and destroys the person this life. Such karma is removed through yoga, meditation, and freeing-the-soul workings.

Is their an easier way to track what signs the planets are in? Currently I am making a list from several different sights to hopefully have accurate information, but I'm sure there's an easier way to accurately know what signs the planets are in/ going into.

Anyone know where these sites might get this information from?

Thanks in advance!

When a planet is very close to the cusp of the next house (within 1-2 degrees), the planet can start to affect the next house.

I use an app called Astrological Charts (Lite). I've compared it to other sources and it seems to be very accurate. It also has all kinds of data input options like saving your natal chart and displaying transits/returns imposed over it.

Anyway, hope this helps!

Hail Satan!

And another question in regards to degrees I read that let's say a degrees is at 20 00" it's considered 20 degrees but if it's at 20 01" or anything beyond that it's considered 21. Is this accurate?

Hail Satan!

@Mandy:

It's because they move too slowly.

22 degrees is bad throughout the degree. You are a Satanist and don't need to worry about a natal planet or angle being placed at 22 degrees. You have the ability to negate any negative influences of that planetary placement and have a life that is wonderful in all aspects. Even if your Venus is at 22 degrees, you are fully capable of having a very fulfilling, loving relationship with someone who is perfect for you.

I'm not sure, but I think it is because the energies of the farther and smaller planets are less powerful that or the energies of the farther planets are so similar to the closer ones, that they are considered to be the same energies vibrating at a higher frequency, the energy is more pure I guess I don't really know but I have read that Uranus is the higher octave energy of mercury, and that Venus is the lower octave equivalent of Neptune.

so working to absorb and improve those energies of the closer planets is more powerful, or those are just the only squares we know of don't take my word for it, usually getting a thread going helps the more experienced and knowledgeable members notice.

akemi should know about this, and can probably answer your question most accurately.

Zodiac Mantras for slow moving planets... Search for the Sign where the planet's rulership is... Such as.. Pluto-Scorpio ... Even though I wouldn't recommend to use neptunes energies without the "In a positive and healthy manner for me the energies of Neptune are blah blah blah".. Neptune as a planet is not very reliable, and almost certainly not a good influence most of the times, when not sublimated correctly ... but this goes for the other slow moving planets also... needless to say... Saturn... I think you really need to be advanced to know what you're doing with that.

Heil to all Satanic Warriors ... So I will just go straight to the point... Is there really any possibility to see information about past lives in the natal chart?.. I mean , it could be but still I have a feeling of randomness about this , as I found out from you know the outside astrologers from around the internet (you know those who really like to auto-induce illusions) that somehow the south node (other than being the "FATE ARROW") shows also your connection with your former past life , the one right before this one , and maybe possibly the other ones , on the basis of how many aspects and chain aspects are tied to the south lunar node.. It's just a morbid curiosity of mine , is there any reality to such claim?

There's also another, I would say rather good app, where you can change the location (GPS coordinates) and time easily and see the formation of the planets in that place and moment, you can also score the days backwards and forward to any specific day and year., shows you the degrees of the houses.. also shows the planetary hours, you can set custom degree wideness for the aspects and so on... also you can include lunar nodes in it and has countless other things you can set...

I've heard many such ideas are shown in one's chart. Ms Lydia published a link about an ancient astrology book now as an ebook.

The outer transcendental planets (Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto) do not have planetary squares. Uranus is the higher octave of Mercury, Neptune is the higher octave of Venus, and Pluto is the higher octave of Mars. Most people are at a rock-bottom level of spiritual power and this is why the energies of the outer planets usually manifest negatively. For most people, Neptune is drug addiction and mental illness while Pluto is unhealthy obsessions. Satanists are not most people and through meditation, we raise our vibrational level so the lower-vibration, malefic influences of the planets do not affect us and we instead get the positive influences of the planets.

If you want to work with the outer planets, there are the Zodiac mantras or direct invocation/evocation of the energies of the specific planet. Be very cautious when invoking the energies of the outer planets if you are not experienced with handling such energies. You should always affirm that you are invoking the positive energies of (planet name). For example, Pluto is obsession and amplifies everything it contacts. If improperly handled, the energies of Pluto can easily induce irrational obsession to the point of insanity and self-destruction. Working with the outer planets is like any other spiritual technique; it can be used for your benefit or it can destroy you if you use it improperly. For example, you can invoke the fire element to increase your leadership ability and balance your soul, purify your soul, or destroy enemies. Or you can be stupid and invoke the fire element into your physical heart (in direct violation of the warnings on the Joy of Satan) and give yourself a heart attack. As long as you know what you are doing and pay attention, you will be fine.

The forums have been taken away. Mercury is retrograde right now until 4 September. We will have a new forum.

For those of you who are new, this has happened before. The enemy has control of communications. Our Gods DO punish these assholes. A number even wind up dead.

The enemy is in dread over our latest RTR.

"Rabbi Winston emphasized that the eclipse wake-up call bears a different message for American Jews.

Once this era is over and God decides that the purpose of Jews in America is over, even the righteous Jews will not have any protection," warned Rabbi Winston. He explained that this was a recurring pattern in the history of the Jews in exile.

When an era ended in Spain and Portugal, the countries suffered, but ultimately they recovered," Rabbi Winston said. "But for the Jews of Spain and Portugal, it was the end. The same happened in Germany, and every other country that has ever hosted the Jews.

This eclipse is the final wake-up call for the American Jews to come to Israel, Rabbi Winston said. https://www.breakingisraelnews.com/93319/eclipse-40-days-repentance-begin-signals-end-era-america-warns-rabbi/#mPYXP5YoqOWI7z.97

Another one of the above (this was sent to me earlier today), stated Christians are going to get what they deserve (in so many words). People are getting fed up.

Also, given the natural phenomenon, this eclipse DID drop the temperature. This very well could produce some serious storms in the next few days. This is a normal reaction in nature. Just be aware of it. Ignorant Christians will be pissing in their pants with fear. And of course, the Jews will be trying to say it's their alien greys they have for a "god."

My advice is to prepare. Have an emergency kit, flashlights, generators, etc, IN CASE you do experience severe weather with a plan and as always, your AoP.

We will have the forums back up again and we ask members for any suggestions at this time.

Subject: Re: South Node , former past life, any connection?

The influences of you past lives can be seen in your natal chart. You are the same person you were in your past life plus any advancement you did and any negative karma you picked up (trauma, programming, etc.). Things carried over from past lives can be seen as reinforcing trends in your natal chart. For example, someone with many planetary placements and aspects against love and relationships with other people indicate severe trauma regarding love in a past life. The person may have been brutally used as a sex slave or been stuck in an abusive relationship. That trauma caused the person to engrave into his/her soul that they do not want a sexual relationship with anyone ever again. That carries over into future incarnations and shows in the person's natal chart.

The south node is strongly of fate an people you are fated to meet, for better or worse, will often have a personal planet conjunct your south node. "Fate" is just influences like the energies of the planets, the mass mind, racial and personal karma, and other influences that most people do not know or understand because of removal of spiritual knowledge. We Satanists have the tools to kick fate in the balls and take control of our own lives.

Is it possible to be born on a specific date, but the birth chart read with Azazel's astrology does not fit the person AT ALL? Like for example: The person is a very out going one and he is extremely confident in a good way, not arrogant way, but the chart says that person could be very shy and not out going at all, is that possible?

Thanks!

Thank you, I'm up to understand fully if suggestions are corect, untill now they're somehow true-ish, but as always the fog of my skepticism demands better understanding and ...time I suppose. Anyway I’m not really at odds with my fate, I’ve found out that mostly my fate(and some bad ass luck) brought me into Spiritual Satanism .. and I can see that because my 9th house hosted the bullet that has been triggered by a nice square transit . I mean yea I do still have some issues regarding fate in my chart, some bad degrees in my family house and career, but at least the cusps end rightly in the signs that everytime I look at them, it just boost my confidence (almost proud XD LOL). Also, now that I know how to calculate solar returns and also being able to give somewhat of a valid interpretation, I will most than likely use the occasion next year to hunt for some good aspects in different locations...In the end I couldn't know all that if it wasn't for this group and the knowledgeable people that take time to answer any question...I’ve learned a lot only looking through the answers given to other people, and those were things that I also very much needed ...Thank you again! And for the effort (especially)..

Heil Satan!

Greetings, I sincerely hope everyone is doing well in these crazy times.

I am very new to astrology and would like to humbly ask a few questions concerning my natal chart without revealing too much sensitive information.

1. First I was wondering if there is a definitive method of tracking planetary alignment and transits because I notice the clergy and many other Satanists are on top of these 100 percent.

2. My second question is about my chart ruler.. If the chart ruler is a malefic planet does that mean that this planet totally describes who I am and does this mean that it will be much more difficult to subjugate it's energies through power meditation?

3. I have another malefic planet in my chart that is at 0 degrees of aries. I read at Joy of Satan that a planet that is 0 degrees means that there are events in relation to this planet that are pending or are yet to come. What does this mean if this planet has a transit over my natal chart?

If you do not have the exact time of birth, even small deviations from the actual birth time can have large impacts on the chart. An alteration of 1 hour from the actual birth time will change the ascendant and move most of the planets into incorrect houses. For example, a chart with a Cancer ascendant makes the person's chart ruler the moon in Pisces in close conjunction to Saturn, making the person shy and withdrawn. If that birth time was actually 40 minutes earlier than the person's real birth time, that means the person's real ascendant is Leo and their chart ruler is the sun in Aries, an entirely different chart from the previous one.

Subject: Re: Is it possible?

A natal chart is a map of someone's soul and is 100% accurate. You need to look at the entire chart and take everything into account. For example, a hypothetical person has a water emphasis which would make them sensitive and shy. However, the person's ascendant is Aries, making other people perceive the person as outgoing and energetic, and the person has a southern hemisphere emphasis in their chart, making them social. Also, the person's chart ruler is Mars in Sagittarius, offsetting the shyness that a water emphasis brings.

Subject: Re: New to Astrology

1. The current, past, and future positions of the planets are all over the internet. Planetwatcher is one such website that provides planetary positions. ZET 9 is a free astrology software that you can use offline in case the internet goes down.

   Planet Watcher

   ZET 9

2. Having a malefic planet as your chart ruler does NOT mean you are doomed to disaster and misfortune. For example, someone with Saturn as their chart ruler can be very grounded, hard-working, and practical with much endurance and self-discipline. People with a Capricorn emphasis (ruled by Saturn) make excellent businessmen and are careful with their money. Saturn can be very positive by providing grounding into reality. People who lack grounding are the uncontrolled egotists, the people who have no stability in their lives, and are out of touch with reality to the point it ruins them.

3. If the malefic planet you are referring to is Mars at 0 degrees of Aries, that can be a very good thing. A strong Mars in Aries provides vitality and self-confidence.

   The natal planet at 0 degrees can be activated by transits or progressions. Major events in your life will show up in multiple forms of prediction. For example, your solar return will indicate a major new beginning in your life at the same time a progressed planet and a transiting planet are aspecting the natal planet. You can then check your lunar returns for more details regarding the time when the event will manifest.

Subject: Re: New to Astrology
I just want to mention, the extreme flooding and threatening weather is a result of the powerful eclipse that occurred on the 21st.

I have read astrology books that have it wrong in regards to the elements and signs.

Like invoking elements can create a backlash of the opposite element, with a bit of research, I have found the same with eclipses.

The eclipse on the 21st was very powerful in contrast to most eclipses and was at 28 degrees of Leo. Leo is of the element of fire. This has created a backlash of water.

Just know this, especially for new people... The Jewish media, along with their Christian idiots hype this sort of thing and try to claim responsibility for it, wrath of that "God" etc, and exploit these occurrences of nature in order to frighten more ignorant people into believing in and following their vile agenda of spiritual enslavement. Don't fall for it.

Most people haven't done the research and studying. Also, knowing the effects astrologically. Astrology is a difficult subject for most people, but is extremely rewarding.

The above is analogous to when European explorers were taken captive by natives here in the West. They told the natives they could make the moon disappear, as they had knowledge of an impending lunar eclipse. The natives were frightened and set them free.

Satan brings us knowledge. Especially for people who are new, don't listen to any Christian drivel. The average Christian has shit for brains. The Jewish controlled media hypes this sort of thing while pretending to be against it and the sad fact is most people believe what they're told.

If you do a little research on your own, you will find major eclipses like the one on the 21st bring catastrophic events. This is NO act of any spook floating around out there.

Also, after Mercury goes direct after the 4th of September, we should have a new forum. This will be announced here in the groups and on the JoS website.

No, you can't. During the 40-day empowerment programme you open your chakras. You finish opening them during the last day. Having your chakras open is a requirement for performing the kabalistic squares. The answer is no. Please do not spread misinformation.
Subject: New to astrology

1) Can Pallas, Vesta, Ceres, Juno, Chiron give strong influence in my birth chart?
2) I have 4 degree Moon in Cancer in 8 house and my Cancer is in 9 house cusp. Does it mean my Moon in 9 house also relevant?
3) Are North Node always retrograde?
   I have North Node Scorpio retrograde.

Subject: About starting and timing squares

Hello brothers / sisters

I have some questions concerning the squares,

- Can we start a square during a waning moon (apart from the moon square)?
- Also does the vibration have to be perfect (example if I do a minor bug does the working have canceled out (like a G not fully pronounced?)

- My friend has Saturn along with Capricorn in the same house in conjunction with Neptune. Does he have to do a Saturn square to act positively on this house? Or do the zodiac mantra of Capricorn? Or is there another possibility?

- Can we start a square during the retrograde phase of the planet concerned?

With all this question

In advance thank you for any response, advice and such and for the guidance already here in this group.

(Sorry for my bad English grammar, English is not my natal language)
Sincerely

Hail SATAN!

You can start a square during a waning moon.

Extremely minor blips (like not fully pronouncing the G, but the G is still there) do not ruin the square. A major error (like skipping the G entirely) does ruin the specific mantra you were working on. If you make a mistake, stop. That specific mantra does not count. For example, if you had vibrated 10 mantras and made a mistake on the 11th mantra, stop as soon as you make the mistake. The 11th mantra does not count. At that point in time, you had still only completed 10 vibrations of the mantra.

Do NOT do a Saturn square. Doing a Saturn square makes the problems caused by Saturn worse. The person can use runes or Sanskrit to fix any problem relating to that house. For example, if the Saturn-Neptune conjunction is in the person's 7th house, the person can use GEBO to fix their 7th house and attract happy relationships.

It is not a good idea to start a square when the planet is retrograde. When a planet is retrograde, the planet's energies are working in reverse.
1. Asteroids can be ignored. For example, Chiron is considered an "open wound in interpretation. If Chiron is an open wound, Saturn is a nuke that ruins everything it touches.

2. Having the cusp of your 9th house in Cancer means the moon rules your 9th house. Your moon in the 8th house rules your 9th house. Influences affecting your moon will affect your 9th house.

3. The nodes are not always retrograde. The nodes can also be direct (non-retrograde), just like the planets.

This new e-group is for the discussion of and learning astrology. Astrology is one of the most rewarding disciplines, as it reveals many secrets and is a map of the soul, but it is one of the most detailed and difficult to learn. JoS Ministry will be uploading pdf resources very soon to the files section. Bear in mind, while most astrology texts give some accurate information, as with many books and learning materials, there are errors and in some, while there are some interpretations that are correct, many others are downright wrong. I know this from 35 + years of study. I will check in here as time permits and try to answer questions and post information concerning astrology. Happy Summer Solstice to you all.

Ah, thank you High Priestess :D

This group was VERY needed for me - I am VERY grateful!

Siguard Draconis.

In one of her posts (msg no #31266 in the main e-group), High Priestess Maxine provided a list of books which are helpful in studying astrology.

Being the most accurate yet difficult branch of the occult, it allows you to gain HUGE understanding of one's self.

One of the books I'd personally want to recommend is Bil Tierney 'Dynamics of Aspect Analysis'. For a person who is bent on mastering astrology, this is a MUST-READ. And I am serious - if you read it, you will see that I was right.

Something regarding this book: Bil Tierney expresses his opinions regarding many subjects - not only about ordinary and grand aspects, but about unaspected planets, retrograding planets (natally, transiting and in progression), as well as the analysis of the halves.

Before I asked High Priestess Maxine to read my chart, my former studies (lengthy ones, including MANY websites) and Tierney's book provided much insight. Yet, it is the experience that matters most :)

If you are serious about learning the Art, mail me as I do have this book in PDF format.

This is great HP Maxine! I am planning on getting my chart done, since I want to know when my next Jupiter period is coming up. And now, here you have posted this!!

I'm excited, thnx!!

This website has an ephemeris that will tell you where the planets will be in the future so that you can prepare for changes or know when relief is in sight. They also do chart calculations and can help you find places like your vertex etc. in your chart. They also do horoscopes but it's best to get to know these planets for yourself so that one day you can look at say "Sun in the first house. Lots of confidence, feeling in your own. Good times."

I just wanted to thank you for creating this group. It's been quite a while since I was looking for a place to discuss astrology and learn more, and this is just perfect.
Thanks!

The last series of squares between them was between 1932 and 1934, with five exact hits.

Uranus in Aries square Pluto in Capricorn is the most significant and most challenging planetary influence in a generation. These planets came together in the mid 1960s and will oppose each other from 2045. There are seven exact Uranus Pluto squares between June 2012 and 2015. So for the next five years we are living through these. We hare starting feeling this already, as these planets came within one degree of the square from June 2011.

This is sure to be a very fascinating group. I've tried studying azazels astrology for satanists on my own but even that in and of itself was still confusing and I could only get a limited basic understanding, if that. So I'm so excited you've created this group! So much to learn! I'm looking forward to it! :D And Happy Summer Solstice to you as well HP Dietrich! May Satan's blessings and protection be with you for the rest of this lifetime and all lifetimes to come!

I'm really excited about this group:D I hope everyone helps make it get popular right away:D

Anyhow, so on my birth chart the Sun and Mercury are both 23 degrees I know that makes a conjunction but I read that if the Sun combusts a planet the Sun will weaken the positive effects. Also Jupiter is 1 degree away from the Sun which I guess also makes it combust does that weaken the positive effects of Jupiter as well?

So these influences represent power and freedom struggles. Correct? Push and pull between freedom rebellion etc major changes when it comes to humanity rebeling against the govenrment and those in power who want to enslave us. Uranus in aries represents the sudden and unexpected the last time uranus was in aries was dring the great depression. It was sudden and unexpected.pluto in capricorn changes in governmental structures etc

From my experience, & I don't do this professionally*, I don't think there is a hard & fast rule, even though some suggest that it does. I think that applies to maybe Mercury, Venus or the Moon with the Sun. I also say that because I have a friend who has his natal Sun & natal Saturn conjunct. The Sun does not seem to block the effects of aspects to Saturn, whether natal or in any other type of transit, etc. (He says his solar returns aren't always fun for obvious reasons.) I think that rule is either lessened or doesn't apply at all to the planets from Mars out...I am sure others may have a different experience.

*I have been studying this since around 1988. I usually stick to my friends' or my own chart as I don't have time otherwise. That could change in the future.

The Squares, and all Magick Workings need to be BEGUN at the right time. So if on a Sunday the Sun is in the right sign, and the Moon is not Void Of Course, you can begin the Square. it doesn't matter if the Sun moves into another sign during the course of your Working. This is the same with all MAgick - you need to START it when the timing is right.

We now have some books in the file section, including Dynamics of Aspect Analysis, but unfortunately, the files cannot be uploaded unless they are very small. One book that is easily available and can be downloaded from many sites is 'The Only Way to Learn Astrology' by Marion D. March and Joan McEvers. This book comes in three volumes and makes it easier for those of you who are new to astrology, to understand the basics. I read these books many years ago.
Bear in mind, many of the interpretations are way off. Most authors write about astrology, but use theory in regards to limited understanding of the planets and such. Much of my own knowledge has come from years of study and also case studies and learning from knowing those whose charts I did and also the lives of noted people. Astro charts of noted people can be found all over the web. Reading biographies and comparing the chart in both personality and events helps.

Astrology is the most difficult and detailed of all the occult disciplines. Each chart is as individual as one's own fingerprints. There are endless details in regards to astrology. One bit of advice...don't take anything you read in an astrology book as fact until you know for sure. I have read more crap over the years that was totally wrong in astrology books.

For example, with a biography case of a noted person...I have seen many books out there where the author writes about certain patterns of planets, configurations and such, but the interpretations are nothing but nonsense and doubletalk. In other words...they don't know.

Take for instance movie star Marilyn Monroe. She had a very tragic childhood. Her mother went insane when Marilyn was 5 years old. She never had a family and she never knew her father. From the age of five, she was shuffled back and forth from orphanages to foster families where they only took her in during the depression for the bit of extra money that came with her. No one wanted her and she lived her life with deep emotional scars from this.

Her chart has Saturn in the fourth [very common with family issues, especially emotional, being unwanted, abused and neglected by the amily, if there is a family; also problems with the mother as the mother is ruled by the fourth]. Saturn in her chart is at the handle of a bucket configuration. The planet at the handle drives the entire chart, giving it extra power and emphasis in the life. Her Saturn is at 21 degrees of Scorpio, indicating loss, so here it is easy to see there was no family, and an absent mother. This Saturn also tightly squared her moon, amplifying problems regarding the mother. Scorpio on the cusp of the 4th, with ruling pluto tightly conjunct the cusp of the twelfth, adds further emphasis on the above, and co-ruling mars [mars co-rules scorpio with chart interpretation], in the eighth house, conjunct uranus of separation shows an absent mother. As the conjuntion is in the eighth house, the feelings about this run deep. When you get all of this, the life has been fated for some reason.

Planets in the twelfth house are often unfortunate.

Another case, one of a man whose chart I did years ago, he had the bucket configuration. The same goes with the sling and the fan, as there is a standout planet that is away from the rest. He had Jupiter in Aries as the singleton planet. This man was incredibly selfish and a total user to the point where his family disowned him. Jupiter in Aries is always selfish, but when it is at the 'handle' of a bucket, fan, or sling configuration, its effects are much more pronounced.

I will try to give tips and lessons here as my time permits.
Much of this is 'cookbook' astrology. The sun can cause burnout, as with the case of a progressed sun making a conjunction to pluto, which in many cases is a burnout to the point of a nervous breakdown in the life, when this occurs by progression.

This aspect, contrary to most of the theories out there does not always affect the mind negatively, as I have seen it in the charts of geniuses. Also, in mentioning genius, I did a chart for a woman with an IQ of 185. She had an exact mercury/uranus aspect that aligned with her ascendant to the exact degree. Uranus is associated with genius and is the higher octave of mercury.

What I know of the sun combust mercury is that it can give a mental blindspot; something one who has this cannot see clearly in his/her life, such as their own communications and behavior, but this is not always the case and you have to look at the entire chart to see how this is operating, what sign is it in? which houses are ruled by mercury and that sort of thing, also the aspects, if any, to the combust conjunction. This aspect can also give total focus, not in the way of concentration, unless it is in scorpio, but total focus on a goal, leaving distractions and that sort of thing, anything outside of being deterred from the goal as the 'blindspot,' in refusing to allow any conflicting information, opinions and such to interfere.

One thing of interest here...How many of you who have synesthesia have this aspect?

In one of her posts (msg no #31266 in the main e-group), High Priestess Maxine provided a list of books which are helpful in studying astrology.

Being the most accurate yet difficult branch of the occult, it allows you to gain HUGE understanding of one's self.

One of the books I'd personally want to recommend is Bil Tierney 'Dynamics of Aspect Analysis'. For a person who is bent on mastering astrology, this is a MUST-READ. And I am serious - if you read it, you will see that I was right.

Something regarding this book: Bil Tierney expresses his opinions regarding many subjects - not only about ordinary and grand aspects, but about unaspected planets, retrograding planets (nattally, transiting and in progression), as well as the analysis of the halves.

Before I asked High Priestess Maxine to read my chart, my former studies (lenghty ones, including MANY websites) and Tierney's book provided much insight. Yet, it is the experience that matters most :)

They're all in Vrigo in the 8th house if that helps. Also I guess the blindspot would be that I can't stand to hear lies or misinformation I just block it out and stop listening.

About your question about synesthesia, I don't see letters in different colors but sometimes things will happen like I'll look a car and think I'm smelling alcohol or at a person at walmart or something, that hasn't happened for a while. Nothing consistent but like a sound or a song will trigger a memory stuff like that. Or I'll look at food and taste it, this one happens a lot. Like a mild synesthesia with one sense triggering another.

Also thanks for the responses guys!

Uranus in Aries square Pluto in Capricorn is the most significant and most challenging planetary influence in a generation. These planets came together in the mid 1960’s and will oppose each other from 2045. There are seven exact Uranus Pluto squares between June 2012 and 2015. So for the next five years we are living through these. We are starting feeling this already, as these planets came within one degree of the square from June 2011.

Another case, one of a man whose chart I did years ago, he had the bucket configuration. The same goes with the sling and the fan, as there is a standout planet that is away from the rest. He had Jupiter in Aries as the singleton planet. This man was incredibly selfish and a total user to the point where his family disowned him. Jupiter in Aries is always selfish, but when it is at the 'handle' of a bucket, fan, or sling configuration, its effects are much more pronounced.

I will try to give tips and lessons here as my time permits.

So these influences represent power and freedom struggles. Correct? Push and pull between freedom rebellion etc major changes when it comes to humanity rebelling against the government and those in power who want to enslave us. Uranus in aries represents the sudden and unexpected the last time uranus was in aries was during the great depression. It was sudden and unexpected.pluto in capricorn changes in governmental structures etc

The square is the most challenging of the planetary aspects representing tests and challenges, its effect is usually stressful and frustrating to most as most are stuck in Saturnian crystalization. One can learn to transform & go with the flow.

See my further elaboration to the post in another email as well as below.

You are dealing with what I like to call "energies". Someone else may have a different term than mine. These manifest in many ways. Some are events (externally). Some manifest in a psychological (internally) manner. That's why one can't make predictions of specific events. Energies will manifest in one form or another. There can also be other transits occurring as well. Then there are timing issues. These are just the exact timing of the transits themselves. Many things are related to timing. The Moon for one. "Usually" for an event, things occur when all transits involved are the closest to being exact, then timed by the Moon. Then there are retrogrades. Which of the 2 or 3 contacts will be the main one? You also have to allow for procession in studying transits. Some astrologers say watch both (with or without procession) which is 1 degree ever 72 years on average.

Then you have situations like this:

This happened in the mid to late 1990s. An Mexican national who was in the U.S. illegally was convicted for murder in Texas & received the death penalty (was sentenced). Shortly before he was scheduled to die via lethal injection, DNA evidence was introduced in his case that cleared him of the crime. (That was new at the time.) He happily went home to Mexico & was celebrating his new found freedom. He had been partying (smoking & drinking) in celebration & died in an auto accident ........ at the exact time that he was scheduled to die on death row in Texas. So the universe will see to it that sometimes your free will is limited.

Death is probably the hardest to predict of all. Usually only understood in hindsight. However, there was one astrologer, I can't remember his name offhand, who refused to buy insurance because he was confident in the time of his death. About 2 months before he thought was was to expire, he purchased life insurance. The policy had to pay - right on time.

I personally feel that there are multiple opportunities to die indicated in the chart. How you handle your life can dictate which one of those may become active. If you suffer from alcoholism, you might die at an earlier time had you never drank.

I also feel that death is indicated in the charts of the close relatives of the person in question, even if one of those close relatives has passed. You study their chart as well as the ones who are alive as if they were still alive.

Relatives can have interesting features in their charts that also relate to yours. My aunt has her natal ascendant where my natal Sun is in my chart.

I think you must have a special relationship with that aunt?

You are right, I saw the death of my father in my Chart too!

Another special thing are the Charts of couples. My husband has his Moon on 1 degree Scorpio, I have my Sun on 1 degree Scorpio too!

See my further elaboration to the post in another email as well as below.

You are dealing with what I like to call "energies". Someone else may have a different term than mine. These manifest in many ways. Some are events (externally). Some manifest in a psychological (internally) manner. That's why one can't make predictions of specific events. Energies will manifest in one form or another. There can also be other transits occurring as well. Then there are timing issues. These are just the exact timing of the transits themselves. Many things are related to timing. The Moon for one. "Usually" for an event, things occur when all transits involved are the closest to being exact, then timed by the Moon. Then there are retrogrades. Which of the 2 or 3 contacts will be the main one? You also have to allow for procession in studying transits. Some astrologers say watch both (with or without procession) which is 1 degree ever 72 years on average.

Then you have situations like this:

This happened in the mid to late 1990s. An Mexican national who was in the U.S. illegally was convicted for murder in Texas & received the death penalty (was sentenced). Shortly before he was scheduled to die via lethal injection, DNA evidence was introduced in his case that cleared him of the crime. (That was new at the time.) He happily went home to Mexico & was celebrating his new found freedom. He had been partying (smoking & drinking) in celebration & died in an auto accident ......... at the exact time that he was scheduled to die on death row in Texas. So the universe will see to it that sometimes your free will is limited.

Death is probably the hardest to predict of all. Usually only understood in hindsight. However, there was one astrologer, I can't remember his name offhand, who refused to buy insurance because he was confident in the time of his death. About 2 months before he thought was was to expire, he purchased life insurance. The policy had to pay - right on time.

I personally feel that there are multiple opportunities to die indicated in the chart. How you handle your life can dictate which one of those may become active. If you suffer from alcoholism, you might die at an earlier time had you never drank.

I also feel that death is indicated in the charts of the close relatives of the person in question, even if one of those close relatives has passed. You study their chart as well as the ones who are alive as if they were still alive.

Relatives can have interesting features in their charts that also relate to yours. My aunt has her natal ascendant where my natal Sun is in my chart.

The last series of squares between them was between 1932 and 1934, with five exact hits. The Uranus in Aries square Pluto in Capricorn is the most significant and most challenging planetary influence in a generation. These planets came together in the mid 1960s and will oppose each other from 2045. There are seven exact Uranus Pluto squares between June 2012 and 2015. So for the next five years we are living through these. We are starting feeling this already, as these...
It's in Aquarius if you're born in 1992

We are so looking to having couples one too.She did an awesome one for my fiance and it has really helped her identify things about her self that she needs to work on too.She told her she is a natural mage so I think will be real careful how I treat her. Is that...

No...

Can it be-FIRE!!!!!!!! FIRE, FIRE, FIRE, FIRE!!!!!!!!!!!! AHHHHHHH!!!!!! runs around in circle screaming trying to catch it on a stick

But no, there is actually a point to me posting this seemingly seamless post. Here's my question. The JOS says that 0-1 degrees is a prediction. A prediction of what exactly? How do you determine what it is that the 0-1 degrees is supposed to be predicting? For example, on my chart I have Jupiter 1 degree of scorpio 3rd house. So if I were looking for what the prediction entailed, how would I do that? Does the prediction have something to do with my third house?

Some manifest in a psychological (internally) manner. That's why one can't make predictions of specific events. Energies will manifest in one form or another. There can also be other transits occurring as well. Then there are timing issues. These are just the exact timing of the transits themselves. Many things are related to timing. The Moon for one. "Usually" for an event, things occur when all transits involved are the closest to being exact, then timed by the Moon. Then there are retrogrades. Which of the 2 or 3 contacts will be the main one? You also have to allow for procession in studying transits. Some astrologers say watch both (with or without procession) which is 1 degree ever 72 years on average.

Then you have situations like this:

This happened in the mid to late 1990s. An Mexican national who was in the U.S. illegally was convicted for murder in Texas & received the death penalty (was sentenced). Shortly before he was scheduled to die via lethal injection, DNA evidence was introduced in his case that cleared him of the crime. (That was new at the time.) He happily went home to Mexico & was celebrating his new found freedom. He had been partying (smoking & drinking) in celebration & died in an auto accident .......... at the exact time that he was scheduled to die on death row in Texas. So the universe will see to it that sometimes your free will is limited.

Death is probably the hardest to predict of all. Usually only understood in hindsight. However, there was one astrologer, I can't remember his name offhand, who refused to buy insurance because he was confident in the time of his death. About 2 months before he thought was was to expire, he purchased life insurance. The policy had to pay - right on time.

I personally feel that there are multiple opportunities to die indicated in the chart. How you handle your life can dictate which one of those may become active. If you suffer from alcoholism, you might die at an earlier time had you never drank.

I also feel that death is indicated in the charts of the close relatives of the person in question, even if one of those close relatives has passed. You study their chart as well as the ones who are alive as if they were still alive.

Relatives can have interesting features in their charts that also relate to yours. My aunt has her natal ascendant where my natal Sun is in my chart.
what exactly will this cause.

The last series of squares between them was between 1932 and 1934, with five exact hits.

Uranus in Aries square Pluto in Capricorn is the most significant and most challenging planetary influence in a generation. These planets came together in the mid 1960's and will oppose each other from 2045. There are seven exact Uranus Pluto squares between June 2012 and 2015. So for the next five years we are living through these. We are starting feeling this already, as these planets came within one degree of the square from June 2011.

Everything has to be understood as a whole. Saturn is typically the main trouble maker for most, but it doesn't always act alone. It is extremely complex & the chart requires an in-depth analysis. One also has to look at areas in the chart where one's own self-undoing can occur as well. With that in mind, it may be something that you are not even fully aware of. One can attract something to themselves without realizing it.

I suggest getting your chart done & get someone with experience at analyzing the charts of others for a living or to some level of seriousness. I personally don't like to delve into the charts of others. I can point out things from my experience, observations or what I have read from others who are professionals, etc. & comment in that manner. But that's all I do.

Astro charts of noted people can be found all over the web. Reading biographies and comparing the chart in both personality and events helps.
> Astrology is the most difficult and detailed of all the occult disciplines. Each chart is as individual as one's own fingerprints. There are endless details in regards to astrology. One bit of advice...don't take anything you read in an astrology book as fact until you know for sure. I have read more crap over the years that was totally wrong in astrology books.
For example, with a biography case of a noted person...I have seen many books out there where the author writes about certain patterns of planets, configurations and such, but the interpretations are nothing but nonsense and doubletalk. In other words...they don't know.

Take for instance movie star Marilyn Monroe. She had a very tragic childhood. Her mother went insane when Marilyn was 5 years old. She never had a family and she never knew her father. From the age of five, she was shuffled back and forth from orphanages to foster families where they only took her in during the depression for the bit of extra money that came with her. No one wanted her and she lived her life with deep emotional scars from this.

Her chart has Saturn in the fourth [very common with family issues, especially emotional, being unwanted, abused and neglected by the family, if there is a family; also problems with the mother as the mother is ruled by the fourth]. Saturn in her chart is at the handle of a bucket configuration. The planet at the handle drives the entire chart, giving it extra power and emphasis in the life. Her Saturn is at 21 degrees of Scorpio, indicating loss, so here it is easy to see there was no family, and an absent mother. This Saturn also tightly squared her moon, amplifying problems regarding the mother. Scorpio on the cusp of the 4th, with ruling pluto tightly conjunct the cusp of the twelfth, adds further emphasis on the above, and co-ruling mars [mars co-rules scorpio with chart interpretation], in the eighth house, conjunct uranus of separation shows an absent mother. As the conjunction is in the eighth house, the feelings about this run deep. When you get all of this, the life has been fated for some reason.

Planets in the twelfth house are often unfortunate.

Another case, one of a man whose chart I did years ago, he had the bucket configuration. The same goes with the sling and the fan, as there is a standout planet that is away from the rest. He had Jupiter in Aries as the singleton planet. This man was incredibly selfish and a total user to the point where his family disowned him. Jupiter in Aries is always selfish, but when it is at the 'handle' of a bucket, fan, or sling configuration, its effects are much more pronounced.

I will try to give tips and lessons here as my time permits.

can anyone elaborate on the 8th house?

the Chinese view the number 8 as a sign of prosperity and infinity.

I have several planets in the 8th house, but I have a relatively good and easy going life.

I know other planets play a big role in the structures of your life, but could someone explain to me about the 8th house?

The 27th it goes direct in Gemini I heard this gives spells for a planet more power to a spell related to Venus one place I am trying to understand that too.

I can't say I have personal experience with this aspect, because it is not in my chart, but I know a few people with the inconjunct aspect and the nature of it, just by the planets.

I don't believe it has the detrimental effects of a square, but I don't believe it has positive effects either.

For instance, Cancer and Saggittarius inconjunct [quincunx] each other. They don't worth together, but they don't really work against each-other. The energy with inconjunctions is usually described as awkward. Saggittarius is unattached, open, and likes to move freely and travel while cancer is private, needing nurturing and likes the idea of home and security.

The best way to figure out what it means for you, is to look at the other aspects and house positions relating to your Neptune, Pluto and Uranus.

8th house is the House of Scorpio, ruled by Pluto, whereas the 10th is the house of Capricorn, ruled by Saturn.

The 8th is the house of death. It can mean someone's death, our own as well - literal and metaphorical. You know, death of old and outworn psychic structures. Also it is a house of shared finances. I'd add intensity - typical Scorpio/Plutonian features.
The house of ‘self-undoing’ is the 12th. The people who have planets in the 12th must work on themselves to sublimate the energies, as this is the powerhouse of psychic energies.

I have the Sun, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Uranus, and Neptune in the 8th house. I also have 3 of my other planets in Scorpio but I’m not going to reveal them. The way my 8th house has effected me, all had to do with transits. For example, when Saturn was transiting my 4th house in my childhood my parents had gotten a divorce, then once Saturn went retrograde and I was living at a step-parents house, my brother began molesting me.
I have had a lot of the negative experiences and a lot of the positive experiences with the 8th house. I’ve had amazing sexual relationships, I’ve been close to people on a level I feel most people can't get to, I know myself extremely well even though on the exterior I'm very skeptical. My feelings about people are usually right, and most of the time its unfortunate. Sometimes I don't like how easily I see the bad in people. I've also experienced the down side of the 8th house in relationships, I've watched my family be torn apart by money and I can be extremely jealous to the point of obsession.

Transit wise, I believe it has everything to do with what ELSE is going on in your chart and the natal placements themselves. Some people will have very positive, life-changing transits through the 8th house and others deal with negative experiences. It all depends on the person and I'm not experienced enough to speak for anyone other than myself.

I’d like to know where you got the information that Saturn rules the 8th house? To the best of my knowledge, the 10th house of Capricorn rules Saturn and the 7th house of Libra also rules Saturn to a lesser extent. As far as I’m concerned the 8th house rules Pluto and to a lesser extent, mars.

I am short on time so I will answer several questions asked here at once.

The inconjunct is an aspect of adjustment in some way. It is a major aspect, I have found. For example, when someone has a baby, especially the first child [major life change], often, along with other heavy transiting and progressed aspects, there is also a planet making an inconjunct. Say someone has a slow moving planet placed natally in his/her fifth house of children, such as uranus, not always, but many times, transiting uranus will make an inconjunct to that person's ruler, when a first child is born. This is just an example.

The yod configuration, as I mentioned in another post in the main JoS group, is found in the charts of those who are here for a purpose. This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjuncts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod heans is at some point in the person's life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then be locked in and can only go forward with the fated life. The tighter the yod [more exact the aspects], the more important the role.

Now, as for 0 and 1 degree being used in prediction, this is most often used in solar and other planetary returns. For example, 0-1 degrees of cardinal signs are exceptionally critical, then there are critical degrees. These are based upon the mansions of the moon in Vedic astrology and are very accurate. As for Vedic astrology, I have found many of their interpretations to be inaccurate, as with the use of the sidereal zodiac, but as for the foundations of this- benefic and malefic planets, houses and such, by blending with Western astrology, much more can be interpreted and redacted with accuracy.

Now, for example, say someone has solar return mars in ther solar return at 0 degrees of aries, with SR aries on the cusp of the seventh house of marriage/partnerships. Because this is an exceptionally critical degree, one can be assured within the year for that solar return, a new love relationship or interest will manifest, or a major commitment in an already established one. This is only one. Years of a new major love relationship of significance have many more aspects involved and if the couple move in together, then there are aspects to the fourth house, planets in the fourth and so on. Many of these will be on critical degrees, signifying that the affairs ruled by the houses that these planets rule, will be emphasized during the year of the solar return.

SR pluto in the first house of the SR return indicates a ‘first’ in one's life, such as a firts child being born or something significant that one has never experienced before.

Planets near the angles and on critical degrees in a natal chart indicate certain areas of the life

Concerning the question on the 8th house- ‘saturn’ is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. It is also the house of power. Eva Braun had a void of course moon ruling her seventh house of marriage, placed in her eighth house. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.

One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natual mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.

I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 Montréal at 14 years of age- no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.

Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.
In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true— the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. Planets therein should be directed through awareness and meditation so that their positive qualities are manifested instead of the negative ones. Planets in these three houses are more difficult to handle, the twelfth being the worst, then the 6th and the 8th.

For those of you who are young and in this group, just know that through Satan and meditation, bad things in the chart can be sublimated. No chart is perfect and everyone has his/her saturn among other things. Knowing the potential bad things in your chart gives you a powerful too in changing these, something those who are without do not have.

So, question about the Scorpio stellium thing. You said it can make someone obsessive. Is that just sexually or just in general. Like, could having a Scorpio stellium make someone naturally extremely ambitious?

The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. It is also the house of power. Eva Braun had a void of course moon ruling her seventh house of marriage, placed in her eighth house. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.

One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natural mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.

I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 Montréal at 14 years of age- no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.

Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.

In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true- the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. Planets therein should be directed through awareness and meditation so that their positive qualities are manifested instead of the negative ones. Planets in these three houses are more difficult to handle, the twelfth being the worst, then the 6th and the 8th.

For those of you who are young and in this group, just know that through Satan and meditation, bad things in the chart can be sublimated. No chart is perfect and everyone has his/her saturn among other things. Knowing the potential bad things in your chart gives you a powerful too in changing these, something those who are without do not have.

It depends upon what you will direct your obsession to. It can be DISCIPLINE, any DOMAIN. If channelled properly, one can go beyond oneself, achieving tremendous results.

If, however, directed negatively, or not at all, (see example below) it can ruin one's life.

So, question about the Scorpio stellium thing. You said it can make someone obsessive. Is that just sexually or just in general. Like, could having a Scorpio stellium make someone naturally extremely ambitious?

I am short on time so I will answer several questions asked here at once.

The inconjunct is an aspect of adjustment in some way. It is a major aspect, I have found. For example, when someone has a baby, especially the first child [major life change], often, along with other heavy transiting and progressed aspects, there is also a planet making an inconjunct. Say someone has a slow moving planet placed natally in his/her fifth house of children, such as uranus, not always, but many times, transiting uranus will make an inconjunct to that person's ruler, when a first child is born. This is just an example.

The yod configuration, as I mentioned in another post in the main JoS group, is found in the charts of those who are here for a purpose. This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjuncts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod heans is at some point in the person's life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then be locked in and can only go forward with the fated life. The tighter the yod [more exact the aspects], the more important the role.

Now, for example, say someone has solar return mars in ther solar return at 0 degrees of aries, with SR aries on the cusp of the seventh house of marriage/partnerships. Because this is an exceptionally critical degree, one can be assured within the year for that solar return, a new love relationship or interest will manifest, or a major commitment in an already established one. This is only one. Years of a new major love relationship of significance have many more aspects involved and if the couple move in together, then there are aspects to the fourth house, planets in the fourth and so on. Many of these will be on critical degrees, signifying that the affairs ruled by the houses that these planets rule, will be emphasized during the year of the solar return.

Additionally insurance, money from others (as in not generated from your own labor) or other sources, inheritance (that includes legacies) & 'death & regeneration' in addition to physical death, usually of others. One note in the death area. When others we know die, we experience death ourselves. Also, the death of others can mean a rebirth or change in direction in our own lives. Being the Scorpio house, it represents the lowest lows to the highest highs, so I would ad extremes, thus any type of obsessions. Note that the corresponding signs are not necessarily exactly the same as the house. Same with the planets. Pluto is not necessarily Scorpio & Scorpio is not necessarily Pluto.

The Scorpion will sting itself. The Eagle has in the past also been representative of Scorpio thus a correlation to the Phoenix (death & rebirth).

is this a house of misery, since Saturn rules the 8th house?

the Chinese view the number 8 as a sign of prosperity and infinity.

I have several planets in the 8th house, but i have a relatively good and easy going life.

I know other planets play a big role in the structures of ur life, but could someone explain to me about the 8th house?

Now, as for 0 and 1 degree being used in prediction, this is most often used in solar and other planetary returns. For example, 0-1 degrees of cardinal signs are exceptionally critical, then there are critical degrees. These are based upon the manions of the moon in Vedic astrology and are very accurate. As for Vedic astrology, I have found many of their interpretations to be inaccurate, as with the use of the sidereal zodiac, but as for the foundations of this- benefic and malefic planets, houses and such, by blending with Western astrology, much more can be interpreted and redacted with accuracy.

Now, for example, say someone has solar return mars in their solar return at 0 degrees of aries, with SR aries on the cusp of the seventh house of marriage/partnerships. Because this is an exceptionally critical degree, one can be assured within the year for that solar return, a new love relationship or interest will manifest, or a major commitment in an already established one. SR pluto in the first house of the SR return indicates a 'first' in one's life, such as a first child being born or something significant that one has never experienced before.

Planets near the angles and on critical degrees in a natal chart indicate certain areas of the life

Concerning the question on the 8th house- 'saturn' is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. That's my problem as well. Nor do I notice much if anything in transit. Thus my response. My guide is relationships. I am a Libran. I have a lot of relationships with people who are a Taurus. Taurus is 150 degrees from Libra. But that could also be Venus, as Venus rules both signs. Wish they would find another planet so I can get one assigned that isn't shared with Taurus. I am also Virgo rising so I have to share a planet with Gemini as well. Additionally,
Taurus always reaps the benefits of money from Venus that a lot of Librans do not get. I have never met a poor person who is a Taurus. If they lose their money somehow, they get it right back rather quickly too. That pisses me off. It is probably because Saturn is exalted in Libra. Do not believe anyone who says that money is not ruled by Venus. That is my major disagreement with astrologer Robert Hand.

I can't say I have personal experience with this aspect, because it is not in my chart, but I know a few people with the inconjunct aspect and the nature of it, just by the planets. I don't believe it has the detrimental effects of a square, but I don't believe it has positive effects either. For instance, Cancer and Saggitarius inconjunct [quincunx] each other. They don't worth together, but they don't really work against each other. The energy with inconjunctions is usually described as awkward. Saggitarius is unattached, open, and likes to move freely and travel while cancer is private, needing nurturing and likes the idea of home and security. The best way to figure out what it means for you, is to look at the other aspects and house positions relating to your Neptune, Pluto and Uranus.

Maxine covered part of this.

I will add that Scorpio & the 8th are water elements, thus feeling, emotion, etc. Some are somewhat psychic. Pisces & Cancers tend to be psychic more often than Scorpios.
Also, regarding the parents. The 4th is usually the nurturing parent & the 10th is authoritarian one. I have Gemini on my 10th. Thus Sagittarius on the 4th. When I was growing up I had a surrogate father & a surrogate mother - so to speak. I lived with my mother for a while after their divorce & I then I lived with my father for awhile. Then I lived with my aunt & uncle for awhile. The aunt who had her ascendant conjunct my natal Sun. I also lived with my grandmother for a brief period. I am a Plutonian as I have Pluto conjunct my ascendant, thus the 8th house/Scorpion experience. I also have Neptune, Mercury & the Moon in Scorpio. My Sun is at the cusp of Scorpio. My Venus is at 0 degrees Sagittarius.

I have the Sun, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Uranus, and Neptune in the 8th house. I also have 3 of my other planets in Scorpio but I’m not going to reveal them.

The way my 8th house has effected me, all had to do with transits. For example, when Saturn was transiting my 4th house in my childhood my parents had gotten a divorce, then once Saturn went retrograde and I was living at a step-parents house, my brother began molesting me.

I have had a lot of the negative experiences and a lot of the positive experiences with the 8th house. I’ve had amazing sexual relationships, I’ve been close to people on a level I feel most people can’t get to, I know myself extremely well even though on the exterior I’m very skeptical. My feelings about people are usually right, and most of the time its unfortunate. Sometimes I don’t like how easily I see the bad in people. I’ve also experienced the down side of the 8th house in relationships, I’ve watched my family be torn apart by money and I can be extremely jealous to the point of obsession.

Transit wise, I believe it has everything to do with what ELSE is going on in your chart and the natal placements themselves. Some people will have very positive, life-changing transits through the 8th house and others deal with negative experiences. It all depends on the person and I’m not experienced enough to speak for anyone other than myself.

I’d like to know where you got the information that Saturn rules the 8th house? To the best of my knowledge, the 10th house of Capricorn rules Saturn and the 7th house of Libra also rules Saturn to a lesser extent. As far as I’m concerned the 8th house rules Pluto and to a lesser extent, mars.

Concerning the question on the 8th house- 'saturn' is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.

One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natual mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.

I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 Montréal at 14 years of age- no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.
Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.

In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true- the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. The 27th it goes direct in Gemini I heard this gives spells for a planet more power to a spell related to Venus one place I am trying to understand that too.

If you don't have the aspect in your natal chart you can always study it based on the transits. So you have had the "experience" you just haven't noted the effects. Right now Venus at 7 degrees gemini is in quincunx to my natal Neptune. Because Venus is about to go direct it will be there for a few days. Neptune being the ruler of my eight house and transiting Venus in the 10th has helped me to relax on a long time addiction of mine.

Caffeine isn't that bad of a drug, and I have always favored an artificial stimulant to a wasted will, but it is something I wish to slowly wean myself away from my life. Neptune in the 5th house of creativity, speculation, romance, athleticism gives the reason for this. I have been working out everyday for at least an hour, usually 2, since I joined the gym about 3 weeks ago. Without caffeine I can actually do much more cardio. Caffeine is a vasoconstrictor and forces your heart to work harder. I have replaced caffeine with the natural vasodilator turmeric, which is among the most prized of ayurvedic herbs, and a blend of adaptogenic herb(ginsing ,schisandra, rhodiola).

Bil Tierney bases much of his analysis of aspects on the sign, dwad, and decan that the aspect makes from 0 degrees Aries. Although I'm not entirely sure if this is correct for all aspects it does make sense for this one. According to his interpretation it would be a mixture of Mercurial/Virgoan, and Scorpion/Plutonian energies.

My experience with Venus retrogrades is that people from the past return into your life. Even if only briefly. How something works I think would be the best way that I could personally answer that. What is occurring in the target's life, if there is one, comes into play as well.

Typically full expression of the planet does not resume until the planet reaches the point where it went retrograde, so apply that concept as well. When it is stationary, it can increases intensity momentarily.

Saturn goes direct today. I have been dealing with that conjuncting my natal Sun & hitting the 5 degree point before its entry into my 3rd house. I have been having hell maintaining an older vehicle that has low mileage for its age as a result. One I bought new at that. Additionally Saturn is exalted in Libra.

5 degrees before exact contact, then exact meaning 1 degree before to 1 degree after, then to 5 degrees after is my experience with planets in transit. Saturn can linger on a degree or two. So there may be several retrograde periods in that time frame, Saturn sometimes will only make 2 exact contacts instead of 3. The other outer ones are always 3 contacts minimum. It is sort of like a volcano. Yet get rumblings, then an explosion, then the rumblings wane, but you get a little reminder of what you dealt with when it's all over. Planets leaving houses usually remind you of your lessons for that house as well.

Also learn solar arcs. One day per year in the birth chart. Similar to secondary progressions, but they don't follow the planetary movement. They however are mainly only in effect within 30 minutes of exactness & are never retrograde.

I am in a Pluto conjunct my natal Sun solar arc now & I am due for solar arc Mars to conjunct my ascendant very soon.

I find charts for the Venus return to be EXTREMELY accurate on prediction. I do one every year. Negative transits means money going out for me - every time. Meaning an unexpected expense usually. Lately my vehicle.
I would say spell work involving Venus should be based upon the Venus return chart. Yours & if necessary, theirs.

> So, question about the Scorpio stellium thing. You said it can make someone obsessive. Is that just sexually or just in general. Like, could having a Scorpio stellium make someone naturally extremely ambitious?
I am short on time so I will answer several questions asked here at once.

The inconjunct is an aspect of adjustment in some way. It is a major aspect, I have found. For example, when someone has a baby, especially the first child [major life change], often, along with other heavy transiting and progressed aspects, there is also a planet making an inconjunct. Say someone has a slow moving planet placed natally in his/her fifth house of children, such as uranus, not always, but many times, transiting uranus will make an inconjunct to that person’s ruler, when a first child is born. This is just an example.

The yod configuration, as I mentioned in another post in the main JoS group, is found in the charts of those who are here for a purpose. This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjuncts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod means is at some point in the person's life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then be locked in and can only go forward with the fated life. The tighter the yod [more exact the aspects], the more important the role.

Now, for example, say someone has solar return mars in their solar return at 0 degrees of aries, with SR aries on the cusp of the seventh house of marriage/partnerships. Because this is an exceptionally critical degree, one can be assured within the year for that solar return, a new love relationship or interest will manifest, or a major commitment in an already established one. This is only one. Years of a new major love relationship of significance have many more aspects involved and if the couple move in together, then there are aspects to the fourth house, planets in the fourth and so on. Many of these will be on critical degrees, signifying that the affairs ruled by the houses that these planets rule, will be emphasized during the year of the solar return.

SR pluto in the first house of the SR return indicates a 'first' in one's life, such as a firsts child being born or something significant that one has never experienced before.

Concerning the question on the 8th house- ‘saturn’ is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. It is also the house of power. Eva Braun had a void of course moon ruling her seventh house of marriage, placed in her eighth house. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.

One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natural mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.

I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 Montrâ©al at 14 years of age- no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.

Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.

In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true- the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. Planets therein should be directed through awareness and meditation so that their positive qualities are manifested instead of the negative ones. Planets in these three houses are more difficult to handle, the twelfth being the worst, then the 6th and the 8th.

For those of you who are young and in this group, just know that through Satan and meditation, bad things in the chart can be sublimated. No chart is perfect and everyone has his/her saturn among other things. Knowing the potential bad things in your chart gives you a powerful too in changing these, something those who are without do not have.

Yes. you are correct. When it comes to planets transiting a house, always remember the attributes of the planet etc and what the house concerns with and use your knowledge accordingly. Mercury transiting 9th house expect some learning and mental stimulation in the affairs of the 9th house.

I will let others take the lead on the dragon's head & the dragon's tail. Envision the "S" on the ecliptic on a flat map of the Earth that goes between the tropic of Cancer & the tropic of Capricorn.

There are some things I don't feel I fully get on them either except for North is what you do with what you are given, the South. Which is really 'evolutionary astrology'. Everything I see on that topic is generally very RHP. And there is the usual transit thing about being in tune with society at the moment or out of tune with society at the moment.
Anytime I have an important transit to one of these points, there are usually other important ones happening at the time. So it gets muddled up. I tend to think that they bring the right people into your life at the right time when you need them to either learn from or to teach them. We always play both roles.

There are some who almost specialize in this area, but most are RHP & teach the karma crap. I like to think of it unfinished business, which isn't necessarily karma, but that can get lumped into it by those who want to go that route which is obviously garbage. It just may simply be 'unfinished business'.

I have seen some videos on youtube from a guy who goes by 'Mr. Astrotheology'. He is not christian, etc. but he correlates things to the bible, which is masonic, as he conveys them & generally true on an RHP esoteric level, but as we know, the bible on that level is corrupted. But he does know his stuff about the zodiac & other esoteric related subjects. He doesn't get into the nodes specifically, but the graphics that he uses is very helpful visually to learn this subject. He does know astrology very well. All of his videos are very long. Thought I would mention it. If you watch any of it, just remember that what he says isn't what we are about here. He makes the "christ/oil" connection with meditation that Maxine has rightly criticized. I would call this guy "middle path".

probably briefly unless it is retrograding there. The transiting outer planets from Mars out have the greatest impact there in my experience. But there is also solar return placements to consider, if any. Secondary progressions or solar arcs to a planet there or in that house if any. Other natal placements to consider, etc., etc.

Transits are complicated & one has to have the basics understood fairly well in order to move to the study of transits. I don't know what level you are so it is hard to give you a more concrete answer.

Subject: Re: Answering some questons from several posts

Mom has a stellium! Her Sun, Murcury, Venus, and Mars are all in Gemini, 10th H, all 1 degree apart from each other! But... she's completely tied into xianty. So this makes no sense to me. Just by looking @ the signs and houses her other planets r in, she has other things w/ power and psycic ability. I often feel like she's better than me- now I know y! She's my Saturn (mine is 4th H, Aquarius), anything I say can never be right around her, I’m scared of even talking to her sometimes, I HATE the sound of her voice and how she'll sometimes mock my behaivors in an exaggerated way. I’ve always felt she way lying whenever she says she loves me w/ all her heart, now I realize that water is her weakest element and her moon is in Aries (I often have 2 remind her that it's ok to veg out and watch TV on weekends, she doesn't HAVE to be constantly busy). I’ve always viewed her as my opposite. Since she's RHP and therefore deathly afraid of spiritual power (I even remember yelling @ me for lingering around the wiccan booth @ the Universal Light Expo 1ce when I was little, b/c of this I stayed in new-age-limbo for most of my life, moved to wicca the summer of junior year, and then found Father 6 months later, in the years until 2nd grade when I started going to the Expo I was deeply into xainty, upset that I’d never gotten my 1st communion and originally viewing the things @ the Expo as evil) her power got transferred to me (she got pregnant 1st time she tried w/ my dad, never had sex b4, I’m the only kid she'll ever have b/c she had Lupus while pregnant, they had to tie up her tubes and she got a historectomy in my 5th grade summer) since Father knew that my Ausperger's would push me to use it and succeed where both my parents failed (finding him). Though since Saturn's been in Libra since most of the time I’ve been SS, I’ve hardly progressed @ all, doesn't help that fire's my weakest element which makes me a huge procrastinator w/ not much determination. There have been a few hints that dad's side may have contibuted some psycic power as well, but I'm not sure. He commited suicide when I was 6. That's how I interpet it @ least. If u want to find out more about mom and I, I was born on Oct. 6th, 1992, @ 8:36 AM in St. Vincent Medical Center in Toledo, OH, USA, and mom was born June 18th, 1968, @ 12:23 PM in Cleaveland, OH, USA, (the closest place to Cleaveland I could find on Astrodienst was Euclid).

I am short on time so I will answer several questions asked here at once.

The inconjunct is an aspect of adjustment in some way. It is a major aspect, I have found. For example, when someone has a baby, especially the first child [major life change], often, along with other heavy transiting and progressed aspects, there is also a planet making an inconjunct. Say someone has a slow moving planet placed natally in his/her fifth house of children, such as uranus, not always, but many times, transiting uranus will make an inconjunct to that person’s ruler, when a first child is born. This is just an example.

The yod configuration, as I mentioned in another post in the main JoS group, is found in the charts of those who are here for a purpose. This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjuncts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod heans is at some point in the person's life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then be locked in and can only go forward with the fated life. The tighter the yod [more exact the aspects], the more important the role.

Now, as for 0 and 1 degree being used in prediction, this is most often used in solar and other planetary returns. For example, 0-1 degrees of cardinal signs are exceptionally critical, then there are critical degrees. These are based upon the manious of the moon in Vedic astrology and are very accurate. As for Vedic astrology, I have found many of their interpretations to be inaccurate, as with the use of the sidereal zodiac, but as for the foundations of this- benefic and malefic planets, houses and such, by blending with Western astrology, much more can be interpreted and redicated with accuracy.

Now, for example, say someone has solar return mars in ther solar return at 0 degrees of aries, with SR aries on the cusp of the seventh house of marriage/partnerships. Because this is an exceptionally critical degree, one can be assured within the year for that solar return, a new love relationship or interest will manifest, or a major commitment in an already established one. This is only one. Years of a new major love relationship of significance have many more aspects involved and if the couple move in together, then there are aspects to the fourth house, planets in the fourth and so on. Many of these will be on critical degrees, signifying that the affairs ruled by the houses that these planets rule, will be emphasized during the year of the solar return.

SR pluto in the first house of the SR return indicates a 'first' in one's life, such as a firts child being born or something significant that one has never experienced before.

Planets near the angles and on critical degrees in a natal chart indicate certain areas of the life.
Concerning the question on the 8th house- ‘saturn’ is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. It is also the house of power. Eva Braun had a void of course moon ruling her seventh house of marriage, placed in her eighth house. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.

One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natual mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.

I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 MontrÃ©al at 14 years of age- no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.

Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.

In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true- the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. Planets therein should be directed through awareness and meditation so that their positive qualities are manifested instead of the negative ones. Planets in these three houses are more difficult to handle, the twelfth being the worst, then the 6th and the 8th.

For those of you who are young and in this group, just know that through Satan and meditation, bad things in the chart can be sublimated. No chart is perfect and everyone has his/her saturn among other things. Knowing the potential bad things in your chart gives you a powerful too in changing these, something those who are without do not have.

Jeff Green has some books on Pluto where uses the nodes extensively. Very good books as well. However, he uses the word "karma". (I think he is probably Jewish as well.)

Almost all of these astrology books push karma in some way shape or fashion.

Don't know whether this is the best option, but Martin Schulman's "Karmic Astrology - The Moon's Nodes and Reincarnation" appears to be decent. Though I have only read very few of it, the explanation of my combination seems (very VERY) apt.

As for the Nodes themselves, yes - they are important. They indicate our experience and our past with which we have entered in this life (South Node) and the destiny, the aim we have to attain so as to fulfil it (North Node). South Node is the negative one, as we tend to slide there when we cannot attain the goal, indicated by the position in the zodiac sign and the house of the North Node.

You have to get a natal chart done, then a solar return chart done - at the very least.

I don't have time. It isn't that expensive. Maxine does a good job. I referred someone to her & saw the results. Very good. Just use her service.

Greetings for everyone!

Unfortunately my English knowledge not best but I would like to ask help of you! I will start my astrological studies in a September, so they did not touch this science so much yet! I would like to ask it of somebody here for who is how his proper knowledge would be able to do an one year-old forecast for me already? I would be very grateful for the help!

The South node can also bring the wrong people into your life at the wrong time. This can be an enemy from a past life or current one. I had a transiting
Venus-Mars conjunction in Libra on my south node a while back and it could have gotten very ugly if I had not been aware of exactly what was going on. It wasn't just a south node influence, and it is very rare that an event occurs just based on one planet.

So, question about the Scorpio stellium thing. You said it can make someone obsessive. Is that just sexually or just in general. Like, could having a Scorpio stellium make someone naturally extremely ambitous?
I am short on time so I will answer several questions asked here at once.

The inconjunct is an aspect of adjustment in some way. It is a major aspect, I have found. I would guess so even if they’re generational planets. Also I read that if you have a stationary planet in your chart if has a major influence on the persons life.

So, question about the Scorpio stellium thing. You said it can make someone obsessive. Is that just sexually or just in general. Like, could having a Scorpio stellium make someone naturally extremely ambitious?
I am short on time so I will answer several questions asked here at once.

The inconjunct is an aspect of adjustment in some way. It is a major aspect, I have found. For example, when someone has a baby, especially the first child [major life change], often, along with other heavy transiting and progressed aspects, there is also a planet making an inconjunct. Say someone has a slow moving planet placed nataly in his/her fifth house of children, such as uranus, not always, but many times, transiting uranus will make an inconjunct to that person's ruler, when a first child is born. This is just an example.

The yod configuration, as I mentioned in another post in the main JoS group, is found in the charts of those who are here for a purpose. This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjuncts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod heans is at some point in the person's life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then be locked in and can only go forward with the fated life. The tighter the yod [more exact the aspects], the more important the role.

Now, as for 0 and 1 degree being used in prediction, this is most often used in solar and other planetary returns. For example, 0-1 degrees of cardinal signs are exceptionally critical, then there are critical degrees. These are based upon the manions of the moon in Vedic astrology and are very accurate. As for Vedic astrology, I have found many of their interpretations to be inaccurate, as with the use of the sidearal zodiac, but as for the foundations of this- benefic and malefic planets, houses and such, by blending with Western astrology, much more can be interpreted and redicated with accuracy.

Now, for example, say someone has solar return mars in their solar return at 0 degrees of aries, with SR aries on the cusp of the seventh house of marriage/partnerships. Because this is an exceptionally critical degree, one can be assured within the year for that solar return, a new love relationship or interest will manifest, or a major commitment in an already established one. This is only one. Years of a new major love relationship of significance have many more aspects involved and if the couple move in together, then there are aspects to the fourth house, planets in the fourth and so on. Many of these will be on critical degrees, signifying that the affairs ruled by the houses that these planets rule, will be emphasized during the year of the solar return.

Planets near the angles and on critical degrees in a natal chart indicate certain areas of the life

Concerning the question on the 8th house- 'saturn' is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. It is also the house of power. Eva Braun had a void of course moon ruling her seventh house of marriage, placed in her eighth house. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.

One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natural mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.

I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 Montréal at 14 years of age- no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.

Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.

In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true- the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. Planets therein should be directed through awareness and meditation so that their positive qualities are manifested instead of the negative ones. Planets in these three houses are more difficult to handle, the twelfth being the worst, then the 6th and the 8th.

For those of you who are young and in this group, just know that through Satan and meditation, bad things in the chart can be sublimated. No chart is perfect and everyone has his/her saturn among other things. Knowing the potential bad things in your chart gives you a powerful too in changing these, something those who are without do not have.

I'm still having a little trouble understanding transitting and predictive astrology.

So if I have Mercury entering my 9th house; would i then be predicting communication and learning in the area of travel or Satanism?

Or would it be more indepth than that?

Hail Satan!

The only light on this subject I can shed is from personal experience, so it's not much, but I will tell you it definitely has to do with past lives. I have met many people with planets conjunct my north and south node. People who had planets conjuncting my south node, the relationships were short, and I learned something from them. People whose planets conjunct my north node on the other hand I felt a very strong past life connection with and they stay around for awhile, some I believe will stay for a lifetime. I also feel like I've learned from these people.

There are some pretty significant aspects and configurations occurring at the moment in the US natal (Gemini asc), progressed, and solar return chart. To start with just look at the yod pattern in the solar return chart pointing to Pluto in the 8th opposed by the sun. Jupiter and Venus are both in the first house with almost everything in the chart making aspects to Venus (minus the Sun and Moon). The chart ruler of Americas' natal chart Mercury, is in semisquare aspect to its subruler Uranus at 8 degrees Gemini the same degree that the ruler of the solar return chart occupies. Mars is also at 0 degrees Libra, a critical degree. It doesn't take an astrologer to figure out that this year marks a huge moment in American, as well as world history.

On December 21st of this year a very tight yod pattern will be seen in the sky with Jupiter, Saturn, and Pluto at 8 degrees of Gemini, Scorpio, and Capricorn, respectively. Saturn and Pluto are in mutual reception being in each others ruling sign. This seriously transforms the current power structure. Venus in Sagittarius is also in opposition to the planet being pointed at Jupiter in Gemini, and let me remind you again, all in aspect to Uranus, Satans' planet, at 8 degrees Gemini. A note on the element Uranus the 92 element: 9+2=11 all numbers of Satan. It is also the last stable element, and ironically enough the thing which the jews claim is threatening to destroy them.

The Uranus-Pluto square going on now gives a desire for rebellion against entrenched power groups. It will be making an opposition to the natal US's Sun-Saturn square for the next few years, but at the moment it is making a T-square with the US's progressed moon at 9 degrees Libra. The Moon is exactly conjunct the midheaven giving a public want and need of security via social change. The transiting Sun is also tying into all this creating a grand cardinal cross between the 4 of them. I reckon that some sort of ritual targeting America is in order here. I'll write more soon....

Hail Satan!!!

Be careful about arbitrarily giving out your birth data. People can use it for nefarious purposes.

That's another reason the government keeps records of it. If they want it bad enough, they will look it up. They already buy & sell you on wall street thru your birth certificate, steal your blood at birth & then patent your DNA.

Mom has a stellium! Her Sun, Mercury, Venus, and Mars are all in Gemini, 10th H, all 1 degree apart from each other! But... she's completely tied into xianty. So this makes no sense to me. Just by looking @ the signs and houses her other planets r in, she has other things w/ power and psychic ability. I often feel like she's better than me- now I know y! She's my Saturn (mine is 4th H, Aquarius), anything I say can never be right around her, I'm scared of even talking to her sometimes, I HATE the sound of her voice and how she'll sometimes mock my behaviors in an exaggerated way. I've always felt she was lying whenever she says she loves me w/ all her heart, now I realize that water is her weakest element and her moon is in Aries (I often have 2 remind her that it's ok to veg out and watch TV on weekends, she doesn't HAVE to be constantly busy). I've always viewed her as my opposite. Since she's RHP and therefore deathly afraid of spiritual power (I even remember yelling @ me for lingering around the wiccan booth @ the Universal Light Expo 1ce when I was little, b/c of this I stayed in new-age-limbo for most of my life, moved to wicca the summer of junior year, and then found Father 6th months later, in the years until 2nd grade when I started going to the Expo I was deeply into xainty, upset that I'd never gotten my 1st communion and originally viewing the things @ the Expo as evil) her power got transferred to me (she got pregnant 1st time she tried w/ my dad, never had sex b4, I'm the only kid she'll ever have b/c she had Lupus while pregnant, they had to tie up her tubes and she got a historectomy in my 5th grade summer) since Father knew that my Ausperger's would push me to use it and succeed where both my parents failed (finding him). Though since Saturn's been in Libra since most of the time I've been SS, I've hardly progressed @ all, doesn't help that fire's my weakest element which makes me a huge procrastinator w/ not much determination. There have been a few hints that dad's side may have contributed some psychic power as well, but I'm not sure. He committed suicide when I was 6. That's how I interpret it @ least. If u want to find out more about mom and I, I was born on Oct. 6th, 1992, @ 8:36 AM in St. Vincent Medical Center in Toledo, OH, USA, and mom was born June 18th, 1968, @ 12:23 PM in Cleaveland, OH, USA, (the closest place to Cleaveland I could find on Astrodienst was Euclid).

This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.

I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 Montréal at 14 years of age- no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.

Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.

In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true- the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. Planets therein should be directed through awareness and meditation so that their positive qualities are manifested instead of the negative ones. Planets in these three houses are more difficult to handle, the twelfth being the worst, then the 6th and the 8th.

For those of you who are young and in this group, just know that through Satan and meditation, bad things in the chart can be sublimated. No chart is perfect and everyone has his/her saturn among other things. Knowing the potential bad things in your chart gives you a powerful tool in changing these, something those who are without do not have.

I added some photos that should help some of the beginners. Some are just general astrology. Additionally, there is a section of Albert Pike's book "Morals & Dogma" that discusses astrology that is rather informative, posted as scanned photos from the book. There is a chart for the U.S. Federal Reserve as well. Enjoy.

She's my Saturn (mine is 4th H, Aquarius), anything I say can never be right around her, I'm scared of even talking to her sometimes, I HATE the sound of her voice and how she'll sometimes mock my behaivors in an exaggerated way. I've always felt she way lying whenever she says she loves me w/ all her heart, now I realize that water is her weakest element and her moon is in Aries (I often have 2 remind her that it's ok to veg out and watch TV on weekends, she doesn't HAVE to be constantly busy). I've always viewed her as my opposite. Since she's RHP and therefore deathly afraid of spiritual power (I even remember yelling @ me for lingering around the wiccan booth @ the Universal Light Expo 1ce when I was little, b/c of this I stayed in new-age-limbo for most of my life, moved to wicca the summer of junior year, then found Father 6th months later, in the years until 2nd grade when I started going to the Expo I was deeply into xainty, upset that I'd never gotten my 1st communion and originally viewing the things @ the Expo as evil) her power got transferred to me (she got pregnant 1st time she tried w/ my dad, never had sex b4, I'm the only kid she'll ever have b/c she had Lupus while pregnant, they had to tie up her tubes and she got a historectomy in my 5th grade summer) since Father knew that my Ausperger's would push me to use it and succeed where both my parents failed (finding him). Though since Saturn's been in Libra since most of the time I've been SS, I've hardly progressed @ all, doesn't help that fire's my weakest element which makes me a huge procrastiator w/ not much determination. There have been a few hints that dad's side may have contibuted some psycic power as well, but I'm not sure. He commited suicide when I was 6. That's how I interpet it @ least. If u want to find out more about mom and I, I was born on Oct. 6th, 1992, @ 8:36 AM in St. Vincent Medical Center in Toledo, OH, USA, and mom was born June 18th, 1968, @ 12:23 PM in Cleaveland, OH, USA, (the closest place to Cleaveland I could find on Astrodienst was Euclid).
So, question about the Scorpio stellium thing. You said it can make someone obsessive. Is that just sexually or just in general. Like, could having a Scorpio stellium make someone naturally extremely ambitious?

I am short on time so I will answer several questions asked here at once.

The inconjunct is an aspect of adjustment in some way. It is a major aspect, I have found. For example, when someone has a baby, especially the first child [major life change], often, along with other heavy transiting and progressed aspects, there is also a planet making an inconjunct. Say someone has a slow moving planet placed natally in his/her fifth house of children, such as uranus, not always, but many times, transiting uranus will make an inconjunct to that person's ruler, when a first child is born. This is just an example.

The yod configuration, as I mentioned in another post in the main JoS group, is found in the charts of those who are here for a purpose. This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjuncts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod means is at some point in the person's life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then be locked in and can only go forward with the fated life. The tighter the yod [more exact the aspects], the more important the role.

Now, as for 0 and 1 degree being used in prediction, this is most often used in solar and other planetary returns. For example, 0-1 degrees of cardinal signs are exceptionally critical, then there are critical degrees. These are based upon the manions of the moon in Vedic astrology and are very accurate. As for Vedic astrology, I have found many of their interpretations to be inaccurate, as with the use of the sidereal zodiac, but as for the foundations of this- benefic and malefic planets, houses and such, by blending with Western astrology, much more can be interpreted and redicated with accuracy.

Now, for example, say someone has solar return mars in ther solar return at 0 degrees of aries, with SR aries on the cusp of the seventh house of marriage/partnerships. Because this is an exceptionally critical degree, one can be assured within the year for that solar return, a new love relationship or interest will manifest, or a major commitment in an already established one. This is only one. Years of a new major love relationship of significance have many more aspects involved and if the couple move in together, then there are aspects to the fourth house, planets in the fourth and so on. Many of these will be on critical degrees, signifying that the affairs ruled by the houses that these planets rule, will be emphasized during the year of the solar return.

SR pluto in the first house of the SR return indicates a ‘first’ in one's life, such as a first child being born or something significant that one has never experienced before.

Planets near the angles and on critical degrees in a natal chart indicate certain areas of the life

Concerning the question on the 8th house- ‘saturn’ is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. It is also the house of power. Eva Braun had a void of course moon ruling her seventh house of marriage, placed in her eighth house. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.

One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natural mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. One never stops learning it & you can study it all of your life & probably never learn it all. People are always discovering new angles to it as well. I learned it obsessively/compulsively in my spare time over the course of about 3-4 years. During that time is when I stayed pretty buried in it. I had a different profession so it wasn't really easy. But if you want to know something bad enough you will do what you have to. I am self-taught in absolutely everything I do. There are courses that you can take. I believe Maxine has taken some. It probably would hurt if I did too at some point when the time is right. (That time isn't now.) But it depends on what you want to do with it as well.

I'm still having a little trouble understanding transiting and predictive astrology.

So if I have Mercury entering my 9th house; would I then be predicting communication and learning in the area of travel or Satanism?

Or would it be more indepth than that?

Hail Satan!

Regarding the Union Jack, I misspoke. It should say first & second incarnation, not second & third.
I always find it interesting what date/time to use for the U.S. The Declaration of Independence? The Articles of Confederation? The Constitution? I tend to think the Constitution. But that was destroyed in Dec. 1860 when South Carolina seceded. or when the never ratified 14th Amendment being declared ratified in 1867? (That distorted the government beyond all recognition.) Then there was the incorporation of DC in 1871 after setting up puppet governments in the South. Since we were sold out to the Fed Res in 1913, it is almost like we should use that one. One could certainly say that a coup occurred in Nov. 1963. Depending on your view, it is like we are really still a British colony with simply more autonomy that the rest of that empire. It is clear that Canada, Australia & New Zealand, etc. are all still ruled by the Crown from the City of London, as we seem to be. So the date/time of the charter for Virginia Company? Our flag looks like the flag of the East India Company. But the 13 stripes look like the vertical stripes of the sailing ships of the Vikings. The first flag, used during the revolution, was like ours now, but instead of stars in a field of blue, it had the 2nd incarnation of the British Union Jack of England & Scotland. (Not the current one.)

Take your pick.

The actual events behind the scenes have been hidden from view. In the first part of the documentary "The Hidden Faith of the Founding Fathers", which proves beyond all doubt that they were not Christian, covers the fact that the documented evidence was destroyed & that what we were told is for public consumption & is not true. The Moon is exactly conjunct the midheaven giving a public want and need of security via social change. The transiting Sun is also tying into all this creating a grand cardinal cross between the 4 of them. I reckon that some sort of ritual targeting America is in order here. I'll write more soon....

Well technically you using the materail square of mercury to fix the problem is not a waste of time either especially if you are using and programming the energy to heal and fix the problem specifically then that can be more effective then just totally doibn the spiritual square.

I was interested to find out whether in ones Natal Horoscope there will be any planetary influences that shows one is drawn to Satan. For instance I have a Natal Moon with a Conjunct Transient Pluto which has really changed things around and has I think drawn one to the LHP.

I hear this web site is good for beginners, but I can't vouch for how good it is:
I saw this one yesterday:

I just went out & bought several at once. Some were over my head at the time, but reading them gave me incentive to go further.

Planets in signs, then houses. The signs on houses. Then aspects. Move on from there.

There are books on one subject or one planet as well, etc.

One just has to start buying them. I have several hundred books. I honestly never counted them.

It is also sort of like tarot decks. You are drawn to one or another & then reject some.

Here is a huge list to choose from - some good, some

Can someone please point me to a book or link for complete beginners. I have been going through a few posts here, skimmed "Bil Tierney - Dynamics Of Aspect Analysis" and searched through Azazel's Astrology and I have never been so confused in my entire life. The only thing that made any sense was the chart maker that ch_3_coo posted, linking to astrobot. I would go into a in-depth search on Google or something, but I fear that I will land on a page with both truth and lies and only further confuse myself.

HP Maxine has can tell you. She did mine and said that I have Saturn in Aquarius in the tweth house and something about my yod all being tied in is of Satan. A lot of us have some sort of configuration.

One never stops learning it & you can study it all of your life & probably never learn it all. People are always discovering new angles to it as well. I learned it obsessively/compulsively in my spare time over the course of about 3-4 years. During that time is when I stayed pretty buried in it. I had a different profession so it wasn't really easy. But if you want to know something bad enough you will do what you have to. I am self-taught in absolutely everything I do. There are courses that you can take. I believe Maxine has taken some. It probably would hurt if I did too at some point when the time is right. (That time isn't now.) But it depends on what you want to do with it as well.
How long did it take for you all to learn all this. It seems to me there should be a college just for this.

I'm still having a little trouble understanding transitting and predictive astrology.

So if I have Mercury entering my 9th house; would i then be predicting communication and learning in the area of travel or Satanism?

Hi, I'm new to the group. I have a question: recently, I read on other JoS group, that Saturn was "retrograde", since January of this year till last June 25th, and that wasn't a good time for black magick. Personally, I had very hard times during these months of Saturn retrograde. But, what does it exactly mean, astrologically, "retrograde"? Sorry if my question sounds dumb, but I know nothing about astrology, and I want to learn. Regards.

The US Constitution was signed with a Satanic purpose in mind and Benjamin Franklin being an astrologer was going to make sure it was done at the right time. I can't find the exact time for the groundbreaking ceremony of the Capitol, or for the laying of the cornerstone of the White House, but these would probably be the most important ones to use next to our day of Independence.

One point that convinces me of the validity of this US chart is that Uranus is very close to the ascendant. If a rebellion was going to take place any time in the near future a prominent Uranus would facilitate this. I have already highlighted the reasons for this below. There are also a few important synastry aspects that take place between other countries that are in hard aspect to the US natal charts' Uranus. Look up the chart for the Iranian revolution, and Baghdads old chart (April 31 762CE). During the Iranian revolution Saturn was in square aspect to the US natal chart, and Baghdad has a Jupiter rising in Sagittarius in opposition to the US Uranus. Iran has a progressed chart which is totally on fire with a very tight fire grand trine, and also an Unaspected Jupiter in Leo in the 11th. These all make sense in light of the current political situation.

Then there was the incorporation of DC in 1871 after setting up puppet governments in the South. Since we were sold out to the Fed Res in 1913, it is almost like we should use that one. One could certainly say that a coup occurred in Nov. 1963. Depending on your view, it is like we are really still a British colony with simply more autonomy that the rest of that empire. It is clear that Canada, Australia & New Zealand, etc. are all still ruled by the Crown from the City of

There are some pretty significant aspects and configurations occurring at the moment in the US natal (Gemini asc), progressed, and solar return chart. To start with just look at the yod pattern in the solar return chart pointing to Pluto in the 8th opposed by the Sun. Jupiter and Venus are both in the first house with almost everything in the chart making aspects to Venus (minus the Sun and Moon). The chart ruler of America's natal chart Mercury, is in semisquare aspect to its subruler Uranus at 8 degrees Gemini the same degree that the ruler of the solar return chart occupies. Mars is also at 0 degrees Libra, a critical degree. in the it doesn't take an astrologer to figure out that this year marks a huge moment in American, as well as world history.

On December 21st of this year a very tight yod pattern will be seen in the sky with Jupiter, Saturn, and Pluto at 8 degrees of Gemini, Scorpio, and Capricorn, respectively. Saturn and Pluto are in mutual reception being in each other's ruling sign. This seriously transforms the current power structure. Venus in Saggitarius is also in opposition to the planet being pointed at Jupiter in Gemini, and let me remind you again, all in aspect to Uranus, Satan's planet, at 8 degrees Gemini. A note on the element Uranus the 92 element: 9+2=11 all numbers of Satan. It is also the last stable element, and ironically enough the thing which the jews claim is threatening to destroy them.

The Uranus-Pluto square going on now gives a desire for rebellion against entrenched power groups. It will be making an opposition to the natal US's Sun-Saturn square for the next few years, but at the moment it is making a T-square with the US's progressed moon at 9 degrees Libra. The Moon is exactly conjunct the midheaven giving a public want and need of security via social change. The transiting Sun is also tying into all this creating a grand cardinal cross between the 4 of them. I reckon that some sort of ritual targeting America is in order here. I'll write more soon....

Hail Satan!!!
Ahh! worried/scared I thought it would be GOOD to talk about those things here since this is the astrology group!

Just by looking @ the signs and houses her other planets r in, she has other things w/ power and psychic ability. I often feel like she's better than me- now I know y! She's my Saturn (mine is 4th H, Aquarius), anything I say can never be right around her, I'm scared of even talking to her sometimes, I HATE the sound of her voice and how she'll sometimes mock my behaviors in an exaggerated way. I've always felt she way lying whenever she says she loves me w/ all her heart, now I realize that water is her weakest element and her moon is in Aries (I often have 2 remind her that it's ok to veg out and watch TV on weekends, she doesn't HAVE to be constantly busy). I've always viewed her as my opposite. Since she's RHP and therefore deathly afraid of spiritual power (I even remember yelling @ me for lingering around the wiccan booth @ the Universal Light Expo 1ce when I was little, b/c of this I stayed in new-age-limbo for most of my life, moved to wicca the summer of junior year, and then found Father 6th months later, in the years until 2nd grade when I started going to the Expo I was deeply into xainty, upset that I’d never gotten my 1st communion and originally viewing the things @ the Expo as evil) her power got transferred to me (she got pregnant 1st time she tried w/ my dad, never had sex b4, I'm the only kid she'll ever have b/c she had Lupus while pregnant, they had to tie up her tubes and she got a hystercotomy in my 5th grade summer) since Father knew that my Ausperger's would push me to use it and succeed where both my parents failed (finding him). Though since Saturn’s been in Libra since most of the time I've been SS, I've hardly progressed @ all, doesn't help that fire's my weakest element which makes me a huge procrastiator w/ not much determination. There have been a few hints that dad's side may have contributed some psychic power as well, but I'm not sure. He commited suicide when I was 6. That's how I interpret it @ least. If u want to find out more about mom and I, I was born on Oct. 6th, 1992, @ 8:36 AM in St. Vincent Medical Center in Toledo, OH, USA, and mom was born June 18th, 1968, @ 12:23 PM in Cleaveland, OH, USA, (the closest place to Cleaveland I could find on Astrodienst was Euclid).

The inconjunct is an aspect of adjustment in some way. It is a major aspect, I have found. For example, when someone has a baby, especially the first child [major life change], often, along with other heavy transiting and progressed aspects, there is also a planet making an inconjunct. Say someone has a slow moving planet placed nataly in his/her fifth house of children, such as uranus, not always, but many times, transiting uranus will make an inconjunct to that person's ruler, when a first child is born. This is just an example.

The yod configuration, as I mentioned in another post in the main JoS group, is found in the charts of those who are here for a purpose. This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjuncts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod heans is at some point in the person's life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then be locked in and can only go forward with the fated life. The tighter the yod [more exact the aspects], the more important the role.

Now, as for 0 and 1 degree being used in prediction, this is most often used in solar and other planetary returns. For example, 0-1 degrees of cardinal signs are exceptionally critical, then there are critical degrees. These are based upon the manions of the moon in Vedic astrology and are very accurate. As for Vedic astrology, I have found many of their interpretations to be inaccurate, as with the use of the sidereal zodiac, but as for the foundations of this- benefic and malefic planets, houses and such, by blending with Western astrology, much more can be interpreted and redicated with accuracy.

Now, for example, say someone has solar return mars in ther solar return at 0 degrees of aries, with SR aries on the cusp of the seventh house of marriage/partnerships. Because this is an exceptionally critical degree, one can be assured within the year for that solar return, a new love relationship or interest will manifest, or a major commitment in an already established one. This is only one. Years of a new major love relationship of significanc have many more aspects involved and if the couple move in together, then there are aspects to the fourth house, planets in the fourth and so on. Many of these will be on critical degrees, signifying that the affairs ruled by the houses that these planets rule, will be emphasized during the year of the solar return.

SR pluto in the first house of the SR return indicates a 'first' in one's life, such as a first child being born or something significant that one has never experienced before.
Planets near the angles and on critical degrees in a natal chart indicate certain areas of the life. Concerning the question on the 8th house- ‘saturn’ is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. It is also the house of power. Eva Braun had a void of course moon ruling her seventh house of marriage, placed in her eighth house. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.

One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natural mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.

I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 MontrÃ©al at 14 years of age- no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.

Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.

In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true- the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. Planets therein should be directed through awareness and meditation so that their positive qualities are manifested instead of the negative ones. Planets in these three houses are more difficult to handle, the twelfth being the worst, then the 6th and the 8th.

For those of you who are young and in this group, just know that through Satan and meditation, bad things in the chart can be sublimated. No chart is perfect and everyone has his/her saturn among other things. Knowing the potential bad things in your chart gives you a powerful too in changing these, something those who are without do not have.
Mercury is in Leo. You should only do it in Gemini, Virgo, or Aquarius. September 1st is the next time it's in Virgo you should wait until then.

I'm doing this one now I'm half way through, I feel like my whole head is buzzing like my mind is expanding. Also I noticed my thoughts are clearer and I can remember things more easily. Has anyone else reaped the benefits of this square?

The Extended Chart Selection on Astrodienst can do fixed stars, but not all of them on list on JoS i.e. they can't do Caput Argol and Formalhaut. It's free, fire! The South node can also bring the wrong people into your life at the wrong time. This can be an enemy from a past life or current one. I had a transiting Venussouth node influence, and it is very rare that an event occurs just based on one planet.

Can someone please help me to understand the Nodes better? North Nodes and South Nodes. What exactly are they and what do they influence? Are they important?

I've been wondering what would actually happen if one started a square when the planet is in it's sign of detriment or fall. Would it just not work, or would it cause problems?

wouldn't work. The planet in its sign of fall or detriment has its energies weakened.

Well I am not going to judge your comment other than to say that in astrology, we view them as challenges, regardless of the 'condition' or the specifics. Most people have some challenges. Those with few or no real challenges have a tendency to waste opportunities presented to them. Challenges should be targeted for success.

I have a natal Mars opposition natal Saturn. That is like pushing the gas pedal & the brake pedal at the same time. (There other manifestations. That is just one example. There are also aspects to them & house conditions, which I won't go into.)

Sure, I will. In fact, I just did.

M18 well I want to bad enough but I was born under some very bad signs most likely due to my past life energy kinda like a horse in a race with a thousand pound handicap on its back. Seriously I am doing what I can. My GD told me via pendulum that I am way behind spiritually from what I should be right now, but not my fault totally because someone that could have helped me refused to for their own OCD reasons I am guessing but I am still alive and doing what I can under these extreme conditions, won't get into it sniff sniff, but although we have responsibility to learn no war was won alone, thus we have Hell's Army and it is not one person.. so I do my best and wait til it all comes together, at least I am in the race now.. if you think of me feel free to send me some golden energy *****

One never stops learning it & you can study it all of your life & probably never learn it all. People are always discovering new angles to it as well. I learned it obsessively/compulsively in my spare time over the course of about 3-4 years. During that time is when I stayed pretty buried in it. I had a different profession so it wasn't really easy. But if you want to know something bad enough you will do what you have to. I am self-taught in absolutely everything I do. There are courses that you can take. I believe Maxine has taken some. It probably would hurt if I did too at some point when the time is right. (That time isn't now.) But it depends on what you want to do with it as well.

How long did it take for you all to learn all this. It seems to me there should be a college just for this

Or would it be more indepth than that?
I will look at this closer later today. I have work to get done. No argument over Franklin. I just think that is has been severely subverted. Kind of like doing a relocation chart is an alternative. Your chart for your new location almost becomes as strong as the actual birth location chart once you have lived in that new location for a while.

I will say this. If you are referring to the 1978 or 1979 revolution, it like most major things that happen in the world, they are manipulated & timed based on astrology. And usually thru subterfuge. The CIA/Mossad engineered that revolution. Taking of American hostages, may or may not have been planned. I think that it was as it was part of the Iran/Contra affair. Could have been blowback. (Unforseen occurences.) J ust like all of these Arab springs. All manipulations. Same culprits as well. More later. I am want to continue this discussion later because it is important.

There is also astro-cartography issues as well.

The US Constitution was signed with a Satanic purpose in mind and Benjamin Franklin being an astrologer was going to make sure it was done at the right time. I can't find the exact time for the groundbreaking ceremony of the Capitol, or for the laying of the cornerstone of the White House, but these would probably be the most important ones to use next to our day of Independence.

One point that convinces me of the validity of this US chart is that Uranus is very close to the ascendant. If a rebellion was going to take place any time in the near future a prominent Uranus would facilitate this. I have already highlighted the reasons for this below. There are also a few impotant synastry aspects that take place between other countries that are in hard aspect to the US natal charts' Uranus. Look up the chart for the Iranian revolution, and Baghdads old chart(April 31 762CE). During the Iranian revolution Saturn was in square aspect to the US natal chart, and Baghdad has a Jupiter rising in Sagitarius in opposition to the US Uranus. Iran has a progressed chart which is totally on fire with a very tight fire grand trine, and also an Unaspected Jupiter in Leo in the 11th. These all make sense in light of the current political situation.

There are some pretty significant aspects and configurations occurring at the moment in the US natal (Gemini asc), progressed, and solar return chart. To start with just look at the yod pattern in the solar return chart pointing to Pluto in the 8th opposed by the Sun. Jupiter and Venus are both in the first house with almost everything in the chart making aspects to Venus (minus the Sun and Moon). The chart ruler of America's natal chart Mercury, is in semisquare aspect to its subruler Uranus at 8 degrees Gemini the same degree that the ruler of the solar return chart occupies. Mars is also at 0 degrees Libra, a critical degree. It doesn't take an astrologer to figure out that this year marks a huge moment in American, as well as world history.
On December 21st of this year a very tight yod pattern will be seen in the sky with Jupiter, Saturn, and Pluto at 8 degrees of Gemini, Scorpio, and Capricorn, respectively. Saturn and Pluto are in mutual reception being in each others ruling sign. This seriously transforms the current power structure. Venus in Saggitarius is also in opposition to the planet being pointed at Jupiter in Gemini, and let me remind you again, all in aspect to Uranus, Satans' planet, at 8 degrees Gemini. A note on the element Uranus the 92 element: 9+2=11 all numbers of Satan. It is also the last stable element, and ironically enough the thing which the Jews claim is threatening to destroy them.

The Uranus-Pluto square going on now gives a desire for rebellion against entrenched power groups. It will be making an opposition to the natal US's Sun-Saturn square for the next few years, but at the moment it is making a T-square with the US's progressed moon at 9 degrees Libra. The Moon is exactly conjunct the midheaven giving a public want and need of security via social change. The transiting Sun is also tying into all this creating a grand cardinal cross between the 4 of them. I reckon that some sort of ritual targeting America is in order here. I'll write more soon....

Hail Satan!!!

I go to websites like this, then I read what astrologers say & they are usually ignorant of what is going on behind the scenes. So you can say "yes" astrology is used to manipulate the masses. AND they have advanced knowledge that is has not been passed down to the so-called "profane". (Maxine has pointed this out on the exposing christianity site.) These things would possibly/probably occur anyway, but perhaps not the way those running things would want it. The best way to control, is to lead them.

http://www.informationclearinghouse.info/article31458.htm

http://www.whale.to/b/coleman_q.html

Goodgame cites former British Intelligence Officer, Dr. John Coleman, who says the Muslim Brotherhood is a secret freemason order set up by the great names of British Middle East Intelligence, T.E. Lawrence, Bertrand Russell and St. John Philby to "keep the Middle East backward so its natural resource, oil, could continue to be looted."

The Muslim Brotherhood has been used to check nationalist movements led by such figures as Nasser, Bhutto and the Shah of Iran who tried to develop their countries. Without the British, "radical Islam would have remained the illegitimate, repressive minority movement that it has always been, and the Middle East would have remained stable and prosperous," Goodgame says. The Muslim Brotherhood is now a powerful faction in the global oligarchy. Goodgame cites Robert Drefuss, author of "Hostage to Khomeini" (1980):

"The real Muslim Brothers are ... the secretive bankers and financiers who stand behind the curtain, the members of the old Arab, Turkish, or Persian families whose genealogy places them in the oligarchic elite, with smooth business and intelligence associations to the European black nobility and, especially, to the British oligarchy.

And the Muslim Brotherhood is money. Together, the Brotherhood probably controls several tens of billions of dollars in immediate liquid assets, and controls billions more in ...everything from oil trade and banking to drug-running, illegal arms merchandising, and gold and diamond smuggling. By allying with the Muslim Brotherhood, the Anglo-Americans are not merely buying into a terrorists-for-hire racket; they are partners in a powerful and worldwide financial empire..."

By fabricating a bogus war between Islamic fundamentalism and the West, the globalists are able to attack their real enemy, humanity. Pulling the strings, they will ensure that both Western and Muslim states are degraded and finally completely subjugated to their odious rule.

Well I feel very close to Satan etc, but as a matter of fact I have no Yod like many people do. I'm a warrior of Satan and I meditate a lot, advanced, with a strong sense of a certain purpose in life, but I don't have any Yod configuration. My chart is somewhat strange.

Now what about the place of the Sun on one's chart? I mean this is an underrated position and sometimes we neglect it. What does the Sun sign mean for a person, about their past lives etc?

I studied a chart that the bearer had 21 Degrees of Scorpio at the star ukuluhai. Could this mean anything good in regards to his skill on black magick and destructiveness? In a positive Satanic sense of being a very good black magick worker. Because this doesn't seem like a good position to me.

The same person has a Leo in 16 moirai which is almost 15 so it could be 15. Meaning that this could be a bad omen for something. He has mars here.

Brian this is a Yod."The yod configuration, as I mentioned in another post in the main JoS group, is found in the charts of those who are here for a purpose. This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjunts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod heans is at some point in the person's life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then be locked in

Well I feel very close to Satan etc, but as a matter of fact I have no Yod like many people do. I'm a warrior of Satan and I meditate a lot, advanced, with a strong sense of a certain purpose in life, but I don't have any Yod configuration. My chart is somewhat strange.

Now what about the place of the Sun on one's chart? I mean this is an underrated position and sometimes we neglect it. What does the Sun sign mean for a person, about their past lives etc?

I studied a chart that the bearer had 21 Degrees of Scorpio at the star ukuluhai. Could this mean anything good in regards to his skill on black magick and destructiveness? In a positive Satanic sense of being a very good black magick worker. Because this doesn't seem like a good position to me.

The same person has a Leo in 16 moirai which is almost 15 so it could be 15. Meaning that this could be a bad omen for something. He has mars here.

HAIL SATAN!!!!!!!!!
Thank you Shannon for your explaining this to me. All knowledge is power.

Hail Enki

Brian this is a Yod. “The yod configuration, as I mentioned in another post in the main JoS group, is found in the charts of those who are here for a purpose. This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjuncts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod means is at some point in the person’s life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then be locked in
and

Cobra you are a satanist. You have a purpose and are here for a purpose already. This is what Maxine has said about the yod. "This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod" the same goes for a satanist who doesn't have a yod. you make your purpose destiny etc. there are many who will never have a purpose so to speak and will never understand father and the truth. Even if I didn't have a yod I would feel blessed and MAKE my own way. I would feel blessed because I am a SATANIST. As for the sun sign it filters all of the rest of the chart. the sun sign is how you express everything in your chart. with the pasts lives that information is imbedded in all your natal information not just the sun sign.

HAIL SATAN!!!!!!!
I don't know if I understood your question about the stars, but to clear things out:

The stars have a nearly fixed placement in the Zodiac, that's why they are called the Fixed Stars. Unukalhai will be at 21~22 degrees of Scorpio for the next centuries. Planets conjunct fixed stars are affected by the star, positively or negatively (depending on the nature of the star and the planet). Unukalhai itself is considered a "bad" star because it is said to bring danger, violence, perversion and deceit.

The Sun sign is not underrated. On the contrary, most people overrate it. It is one of the luminaries (the other being the Moon), the "main" planets of one's chart, along with the chart/ascendant ruler. It can mean many things, depending on house position and aspects, but it doesn't tell much, all by itself, about someone's past lives. If you want to know more about this, consider studying the Lunar Nodes.

As for the Yod, it points to something very specific a person has to accomplish in a lifetime, but this doesn't mean that everyone who ever did something important to humanity had the Yod. In fact, I believe those who DON'T have the Yod are actually more able and free to make something important happen, even if they aren't "marked" to do so. The Yod usually pushes the person whether they like it or not to whatever it is it needs, and this may or may not be important, good or even desirable.

The conclusion was inconclusive.

I was going to get to this email earlier & I got side-tracked.

Did they begin business on Monday the 5th? Do we know what time? It should be in a journal. I know they kept them because Devvy Kidd purchased a copy. They weren't cheap either. Supposedly they are available online as well.

And would you consider that the birth date? Was it clear what the agenda was when they convened on the 5th?

Then again, didn't we become a new country in 1865? Then we would need Lee's signature at the court house in April. The 1860-1865 events would be in the transits for the charts for 1774 or one for other dates later. I suppose Lee's signature would be most reflected in the constitution chart, not the articles chart. One might could say use the 14th amendment as a beginning. However, it was never ratified. When it was declared ratified would have to be viewed as the beginning. Then that would be 1868. Texas wasn't allowed "re-entry" until 1870. The south is occupied.
However, I see the Virgo over & over again.

There is what is called a pre-natal epoch. However, it is based upon human gestation so it would be N/A for these purposes. BUT this would still be an equivalent, as the other documents would be reflected in the previous chart(s). (See below.)

I have seen numerology for 1776, but I don't recall offhand who did it & what it was based upon. It was more the year than anything else. I would have to search for it. It may have been by Michael Tsarion.

July 4th also corresponds to a Templar defeat on that date by the Muslims during the crusades. I have a great article on that, but they believe that Arabs did it. However, the symbology in the 9-11 lie we are told is in it.

One can view this stuff as a couple can view their marriage. There is a relationship chart as well as a marriage or consumation chart. Then one has to define when it was clear that there was an actual relationship verses simply “having fun”. Sharing an abode is a better way to judge these types of conditions.

The Soviet Union dissolved right on time with a transiting Pluto conjunct the natal Sun of the Bolshevik revolution. I have a book written by an astrologer about 10 years earlier that predicted it.

Mr. William Livingston from the Jerseys, lately of New York, was there. He is a plain Man, tall, black, wears his Hair--nothing elegant or genteel about him. They say he is no public Speaker, but very sensible, and learned, and a ready Writer. Mr. Rutledge the Elder, was there, but his Appearance is not very promising. There is no Keenness in his Eye. No Depth in his Countenance. Nothing of the profound, sagacious, brilliant, or sparkling in his first Appearance.

I am just returned from Philadelphia, where I have been to wait on, and endeavour to find out the Temper of the Delegates. Near two Thirds of them are arrived, and I conclude all will be ready to proceed on Business on Monday.

Ultimately everything out there does matter, but how strong is its influence & how many hairs can you split? You can spend your life deciphering your chart & not live.

I don't bother with asteroids, at the moment anyway. The fixed stars are important.

The Extended Chart Selection on Astrodienst can do fixed stars, but not all of them on list on JoS i.e. they can't do Caput Argol and Formalhaut. It's free, fire! Use a 1 to 2 degree orb on the fixed stars. I find they rule both planets and houses. I know someone who has their mars at 28 Degrees of Pisces. They have Scheat over their mars and it affects Mars wherein they either have 347834 girls after them or none and EVERYONE of those girls have been disastrous for them.

I also believe the stars can affect the houses.

Generally, the path of its future expression is halted. Things come back up for review. The period of direct motion to where it went retrograde is still usually not full speed ahead, but the backwards motion comes to end. Sometimes it is good as you get a chance to think things out better. There are some good & not so good things that are associated with them.

Mercury disrupts all forms of communication & short trips or even some long ones for that matter, that normally are not a problem, can become a pain. Orders are lost or misplaced. Mail is lost or delayed. Baggage gets lost. Flights are delayed. Buses run late. Phone calls are dropped more often. On & on.

Note: Long trips are generally 9th house issues.

Venus usually brings back past relationships into focus for one.

Other planets all have their own peculiar traits.

Most people have some retrograde planets in the charts. The only thing retrograde that I have is Chiron (a planetoid between Saturn & Uranus that I do follow - 51 year cycle) & my nodes. It is actually rare to not have anything retrograde.

It would be better for others here to speak about natal retrogrades as I don't have any other than
There are books on the subject natally, but I don't read them as they don't really apply to me.

hi,i`m new to the group.i have a question:recently,i read on other JoS group,that Saturn was "retrograde",since january of this year till last june 25th, and that wasn`t a good time for black magick.Personally,i had very hard times during these months of Saturn retrograde.But,what does it exactly mean,astrologically,"retrograde"?sorry if my question sounds dumb,but i know nothing about astrology,and i want to learn.Regards.
Hail Satan.

Subject: Re: greetings and a question

(He question is not dumb and very nice info Magus :) but to you 'bestfriendofsatan' retrograde just means when a planet moves backward for a period of time and when it is moving direct then ofcourse it is moving normally in proper direction and maybe saturn was retrograding or making a bad transit somewhere in your natal chart if you were having a bad couple of months. Don't forget to keep up your power meditation to protect yourself.

I studied a chart that the bearer had 21 Degrees of Scorpio at the star ukuluhai. Could this mean anything good in regards to his skill on black magick and destructiveness? In a positive Satanic sense of being a very good black magick worker. Because this doesn't seem like a good position to me.

The same person has a Leo in 16 moirai which is almost 15 so it could be 15. Meaning that this could be a bad omen for something. He has mars here.

I have been thinking jupiter is in gemini, its sign of detriment so does this somewhat hinder and magickal workings dealing with Jupiter? The moon is in saggittarius sunday and was going to do a working dealing with Jovial/Jupiter energy.
Its okay I asked the daemon god Furcas. :)

Subject: Yod and Devil's Pitchfork

Yod is two inconjuncts and a sextile, whereas the Devil's Pitchfork is two sesquisquares and a square.

Has anybody ever come across the Devil's Pitchfork?

I just read about it in Tierney's, but he elaborates only about the Yods (which he calls 'the god's finger').

So I went through the Zodiac w/ the ECS on Astrodienst and I found the stars that are closest to my planets, or in just plain weird places. Deneb and Deneb Adige are LITERALLY on top of each other @ 5 deg Pices 14'35" (my 5th H) and even though I've got no planets in that house, swans seem to be a fam totem for me, never mind that my Grandma (the 1 w/ the swan collection) is a Scorpio (Bavaria), Mom's a Gemini (Brabant) and I'm a Libra (Austria). My 1st ballet was Swan Lake and the opera that introduced me to Wagner was Lohengrin. Do u c the Ludwig connection? LOL The Denebs are near my Black Moon. Advesely, my Chiron is Leo, 10 H. Vega's sandwiched between my Uranus and Neptune (14, 15, and 16 deg Cap, 3 H). Spica is near my Sun (12 H, Libra) and Arcturus is on the line next to my Asc. (also Libra). I'm not sure if Princeps counts, it, Murcury, and Arcturus are equal distance from each other. (BTW, My Murcury 28 Lib 37'34", Venus 13 Sco 54'15", and Pluto 21 Sco 22'15" all in 1 H counts as a Stellium, right?! I can't stand mom being a xian, my Saturn, and having something I may not have! Alphecca is next to Venus. Armus is next to my Saturn (in Aqu, my Moon, Black Moon, and Par. Fort. are also in Aqu), and Sirius is next to my Mars (12 Can 46'17"). I screenshoted the chart and the stat info @ the bottom 4 u 2 c. Too bad I have to send u emails through the envelope button on the side of ur name on Groups, and since u can't c the provider (like how mine is aol.com) I can't just type ur address into my normal email and send u the pictures! Did I choose the right stars? Are there any others I need to be aware of? I found some good asteroid resources. http://www.alwaysastrology.com/asteroids.html http://www.mysticscripts.com/astrology/minor-planets-in-astrology/

Subject: Re: satanic planetary influence

Yes, that's it.

Most of us came to Satanism through the interest in the occult, mystical and the truth. This can come from many planetary placements, such as planets in the 8th, 9th and 12th Houses, planets in the signs of Scorpio, Pisces, Sagittarius or Aquarius, planets in aspect with Uranus, Neptune and Pluto etc.
Those of us who are 17 to 27 years old now were born while Pluto was at home in Scorpio. This means people from our generation are naturally drawn to the occult and to the hidden truth of everything, and therefore are more likely to come to the original, ancient religions and philosophies.

It is not my personal experience that the Sun rules the father. That would be the 4th or 10th house. Usually the 10th as that is the authoritarian parent & the 4th would be the nurturing parent.

The South node can also bring the wrong people into your life at the wrong time. This can be an enemy from a past life or current one. I had a transiting Venus-Mars conjunction in Libra on my south node a while back and it could have gotten very ugly if I had not been aware of exactly what was going on. It wasn't just a south node influence, and it is very rare that an event occurs just based on one planet.

Ok. Thanks Shannon.

Hi sweet Shannon.

Thanks for the info.

I'm new to astrology and know very little about the topic and planetary movements.

I was planning to do the jupiter square working and rosary working on sunday too.

What source do you use to tell u that jupiter is in gemini or mercury in leo? Could u point me to a program or a site? i only use lunabar 7 chronos xp.

I think u meant "jovian" energy btw ;)

Pls i realy want to get things clear as this things are confusing. Bigining of this year when i dedicated i did some sarch in the net and found that sunday is the day of the sun, monday is the day of moon, tuesday is the day of the mars, wednesday is ruled by mercury and so on, and the other one is that sun hours is for genaral sucess and recogntion, spiritual illumination and some other things then venus hours is for love, friendship and so on and i do my rituals following this calculations. I don't know if am rong but it looks simple for me to follow, and again i found about how following the moon phase is important in magick, and when i read some of the post here it says something about retrograding and how important it is in magick and rituals as well, i know of retrograding but how can one know when they are retrograding. This retrograd, moon phase, sun hours, moon hours and the rest are relly confusing. I don't want to ask questions because it might sound stupid to others but that's how i see them in my head and that's why i do my own resarch, but this one is more than me so i need help. I use my phone in comunicating with my group members am not that strong financially to get a laptop or desktop for myself as is very espensive in my contry but am planning on it because it'll help me to use the software in planetry calculation in my contry. My plarn was to face the kiks with blood rune distruction, i want this to be my regular thing but how can it be when i don't know the right time for the ritual, i can wait for my group to post other rituals but rituals against the kiks? i don't think i can wait that long, been my thing i don't have to wait till they post that one, that's the way i see it and is killing me inside that i don't know when to do the right thing at the right time so please i really need help on this, at liest an easy way i can follow to do my retuals, i don't want to mise anyone. One last thing, i don't have an alter because i lieve in a place where i work, people come in and out of the room everyday i only do retuals at night in the same room though i have a silver candle stand, silver bowll and silver wine cup, as much as i love borning incence i can't do it there the smell will make other workers start asking questions so i don't know if my rituals are still valid.

HAIL SATAN!!!!!!!!!!

I know my other post was cut off. When a planet is in conjunction with an angle- the ascendant/decendant axis, or the midheaven/IC axis, this gives it more power in the chart. The affairs of the house/s it rules over are more emphasized in the life. For example...say uranus is conjunct the midheaven from the tenth house side, and aquarius is on the cusp of the third [uranus rules aquarius], the affairs of the third house will be more of a factor in the life, such as communications, and given this is on the midheaven, 10th house, one who has this will more than likely have above average communications skills, and often work at a job where his/her communications skills are put to use, such as speaking, writing, even working on a PC and to a lesser extent, working in customer service on the telephone. Uranus adds more here in the way of one using computers and other electronics and also future oriented devices, often with a more than average interest in them. In addition, the person will be freedom loving and have a need for freedom on the job, or to work independently. All of the above will be factors affecting one individually. On a lesser level, siblings, relatives and such can also factor in. You have to look at the entire chart to see which of the affairs of the house in question are most prominent in the life of the owner of the chart.

As for 'karma.' This concept has been abused to no end from spiritual exploiters- new age idiots [these ignorant fools work for the enemy- same way the judicial system does...let crime get so out of hand, that in the end, everyone's rights will be totally taken away, they are for and promote grave injustices], xians and other malignant filth. What this 'karma' really is and yes, one can see this in the astro charts, THIS HAS NOTHING WHATSOEVER TO DO WITH ANY AGENDA OR CONFORMING IN ANY WAY, AS THE SPIRITUAL EXPLOITERS WOULD LIKE FOR US TO BELIEVE! What this is, is cause and effect. Like say you put your hand on a hot burner, you are going to get burned, nothing more.

The relationships we have with others, the experiences we have in our lives, what we dwell upon and how all of these affect us, this is taken onto the soul, as it is stored in the chakras and certain things manifest in future lives. We meet up with others from our past lives for better or for worse. Things one feels guilt about, if this is deep enough, they carry this into a future life and it can react with an even where one is punished. People who have low self-esteem often attract abusers into their lives as they tolerate abuse. Issues that someone in a past life has had, where the other person will not let go- vengeance, love, whatever...this also hangs on as those we have substantial interaction with, family, friends, lovers, through an event with another person, and they feel strongly enough about, we can meet up with them in a future life. What do you dwell on? What do you tolerate? How do you really feel about certain things? This all factors in, with whom we attract. Because of spiritual ignorance, those who are without are damned into repeating and repeating the same old mistakes and meeting up with the same abuses throughout lifetimes. This is what the enemy wants. Only through Satan can we get out of this and this is through consistent yoga, power meditation and working to advance our souls. when we reach a certain point in meditation, our intuition and mind begin to work FOR us and help us, instead of wreaking havoc and being totally out of control.

Now, as for the nodes. The south node is not always bad and the north node is not always fortunate. The nodes are of fate...for better or for worse. I have seen horrible things with the south node, but also the opposite as well. Like I said...it is not always an unfortunate influence. Olympic gymnast Shannon Miller has venus conjunct the south node. Venus rules money and also gymnastics [along with mercury], and she was a millionaire at 16. Jupiter ties in with her nodes as well.

Now, on the other hand...Helen Keller, blind and deaf since early childhood, has many fated planets and aspects that reveal this. Scorpio ascendant with co-ruler mars at 15 degrees of leo. Others who have this degree...one of the most unfortunate of degrees, with a very high incidence [but not always] of blindness and deafness, are Beethoven [deaf], Stevie Wonder [blind], Michael Jackson, though now blind or deaf, had incessant plastic surgeries to where his nose was falling off of his face, and a chart I did years ago; a hermaphrodite- the degree opposite- 15 degrees into aquarius.

Getting back to Helen Keller. Her sun [rules eyesight], was exactly conjunct the south node at 6 degrees; a degree of disability, BUT, you have to look at everything. Many, many people who are fine and healthy have a planet on the 6th degree, but when the chart is already badly afflicted and there are supporting aspects, and planetary placements, degrees and such, then you can be confident in making a prediction. Helen Keller had no planets in air signs. Air signs are communication signs and rule the sight and hearing; though fire signs rule sight to a lesser extent. Uranus, tightly conjunct her midheaven, with aquarius intercepted in the third house of communications made her a writer, speaker and communicator.

Now, for a planets' strength. When you hear 'exalted' 'in its home sign' and such, the planet is much stronger. Saturn now transiting in libra is much stronger and more malefic in this sign, as it is in capricorn. What this means is if it is hitting on your personal planets, the effects are much worse in the way of crises, and other nasties manifesting in your life. When it is in aries [its fall] and cancer[detriment], its malice is somewhat watered down. I have seen repeatedly, in books written by idiots, who claim that saturn in libra is good for marriages and that sort of thing. Not so. Very few people with saturn in libra have happy marriages, love lives, or any at all, especially those who are without. This has to be cleaned off of the soul and meditated upon to correct this. Saturn in libra produces more singles than any other placement. Of course, high profile astrology authors often claim the opposite, but do your own research on this one. Exaltation only strengthens a planet for better or worse...it does not make the effects of that planet more pleasant, as many idiots out there try to get you to believe. Same goes with the home sign.

In closing...I have written about this before. Most astrology texts rave about the beauty and great fortune of a jupiter/venus conjunction or trine. This is not so. I knew a man who had sagittarius on his ascendant, ruled by jupiter, with a tight venus/jupiter conjunction in his seventh house. Time and again, I have seen in charts- the ruler of the sixth house of health, REGARDLESS of the planet, in aspect to the chart ruler or and one of the co-ruler/s, there is more than average health problems, often relating to the areas of the body and diseases of the planet making the aspect to the ruler. This man, with this so-called 'beautiful' jupiter /venus conjunction swallowed a strong cleaning solution at the age of two. Venus rules the throat. His throat was deeply scarred from this and he suffered throughout his life with this. On the upside, he lived well, he was of extremely high intelligence [college professor], and enjoyed some good fortunes form this conjunction, but the bad effects of this were pronounced as well.

Another example...actress Elizabeth Taylor. Libra on the ascendant, venus trining jupiter. Jupiter co-ruler of pisces on her sixth house cusp. She had numerous health problems throughout her life. Her Jupiter was at 15 degrees of leo, as well. Neptune, ruling pisces is at 6 of virgo.

Also, saturn retrograde does not affect black magick. I know this for a fact.

Already did.

Your rituals are will be valid. your power comes from within and dedication to spiritual warfare is good :) and if you burn incense just tell them you like the smell. Also as for the planetary hours and moon phases and retrogrades all you need to know is at lunarium.co.uk the site has everything even when the moon is void. When you get to the site just edit it to your location :) and go to planetarium at the top and it will give you the planetary days and hours. Retrogrades are on the site home page at the bottom. good luck and happy journey to satanism :)

Hey sweet Syt R <3 First of all you shouldn't do the jupiter square it is in gemini. Not good. It won't be in cancer (its exalted sign) til next june. June 25 :( that sucks because the jupiter square is my favorite square and planet lol but yea so I guess you will have to do another square. And yes I guess I meant jovian lol when it comes to planetary movements you can go to lunarium.co.uk it has a lot of planetary info but I go to drstandley.com and she has a BIG planetary events calendar. Either way you can find the planets positions all over the web :) mercury in leo is bad for the mercury square. But I am doing a working that involves jovian energy on sunday during the hours of jupiter, moon in saggittarius but it is not exactly a jovian working though.

The only way to reap the benefits of it is to focus on meditation and spirituality also sometimes jupiter's expansive properties can be a little undesirable. But for the most part that transit can give you good opportunities spiritually. That means that the next house to be transited by jupiter is your first house. That is good. :) I remember when jupiter was transiting my first house. It was great! Just take advantage of the jupiter transiting the twelfth house and only make sure the positive traits of the twelfth house are manifested.

For me, it seems to manifest differently each 12 year cycle. That is clearly because of the fact that no transit operates in isolation.

In general combine the effects of Jupiter with the 12th house issues & see what other major transits are occurring during the year of that transit thru that house.

My mother passed away when it contacted my 12th house cusp in retrograde. She had been in & out of the hospital during that time. Hospitals are a 12th house issue & Jupiter represents expansion or increase.

Generally, anything mystical is favored thru the 12th house. Supposedly, one is generally protected from harm during this time, but I wouldn't bet money on it. That is a cookbook interpretation.

Do the 2 semi-squares form the square? Or are they connected to the square from the outside?
Yod is two inconjuncts and a sextile, whereas the Devil's Pitchfork is two sesquisquares and a square.

Has anybody ever come across the Devil's Pitchfork?

I just read about it in Tierney's, but he elaborates only about the Yods (which he calls 'the god's finger').

Your rituals are will be valid. your power comes from within and dedication to spiritual warfare is good :) and if you burn incense just tell them you like the smell. Also as for the planetary hours and moon phases and retrogrades all you need to know is at lunarium.co.uk the site has everything even when the moon is void. When you get to the site just edit it to your location :) and go to planetarium at the top and it will give you the planetary days and hours. Retrogrades are on the site home page at the bottom. good luck and happy journey to satanism :)

some other things then venus hours is for love, friendship and so on and i do my rituals following this calculations. I don't know if am rong but it looks simple for me to follow, and again i found about how following the moon phase is important in magick, and when i read some of the post here it says something about retrograding and how important it is in magick and rituals as well, i know of retrograding but how can one know when they are retrograding. This retrograd, moon phase, sun hours, moon hours and the rest are really confusing. I don't want to ask questions because it might sound stupid to others but that's how i see them in my head and that's why i do my own research, but this one is more than me so i need help. I use my phone in communicating with my group members am not that strong financially to get a laptop or desktop for myself as is very expensive in my country but am planning on it because it'll help me to use the software in planetary calculation in my country. My plan was to face the kiks with blood rune destruction, i want this to be my regular thing but how can it be when i don't know the right time for the ritual, i can wait for my group to post other rituals but rituals against the kiks? I don't think i can wait that long, been my thing i don't have to wait till they post that one, that's the way i see it and is killing me inside that i don't know when to do the right thing at the right time so please i really need help on this, at liest an easy way i can follow to do my rituals, i don't want to mislead anyone. One last thing, i don't have an alter because i believe in a place where i work, people come in and out of the room everyday i only do rituals at night in the same room though i have a silver candle stand, silver bowl and silver wine cup, as much as i love burning incense i can't do it there the smell will make other workers start asking questions so i don't know if my rituals are still valid.

I don't think you should directly channel down or use Jupiter's energies directly because it is in Gemini, its sign of fall. It will be there until next year June 25. But you can use Sun or Venus or Moon if you want domestic success. I love Jupiter the planet a lot so it is a bummer. I want to use its energies too but I will wait until it is in Cancer next (its exalted sign).

I just saw a somewhat similar post and remembered to ask this.
I've seen within the next year that Jupiter will be retrograding over my two chart rulers, as well my AC and my moon.
How can I take full advantage of this?

What this is, is cause and effect. Like say you put your hand on a hot burner, you are going to get burned, nothing more.
> > The relationships we have with others, the experiences we have in our lives, what we dwell upon and how all of these affect us, this is taken onto the soul, as it is stored in the chakras and certain things manifest in future lives. We meet up with others from our past lives for better or for worse. Things one feels guilt about, if this is deep enough, they carry this into a future life and it can react with an even where one is punished. People who have low self-esteem often attract abusers into their lives as they tolerate abuse. Issues that someone in a past life has had, where the other person will not let go—vengeance, love, whatever...this also hangs on as those we have substantial interaction with, family, friends, lovers, through an event with another person, and they feel strongly enough about, we can meet up with them in a future life. What do you dwell on? What do you tolerate? How do you really feel about certain things? This all factors in, with whom we attract. Because of spiritual ignorance, those who are without are damned into repeating and repeating the same old mistakes and meeting up with the same abuses throughout lifetimes. This is what the enemy wants. Only through Satan can we get out of this and this is through consistent yoga, power meditation and working to advance our souls. When we reach a certain point in meditation, our intuition and mind begin to work for us and help us, instead of wreaking havoc and being totally out of control.

Now, as for the nodes. The south node is not always bad and the north node is not always fortunate. The nodes are of fate...for better or for worse. I have seen horrible things with the south node, but also the opposite as well. Like I said...it is not always an unfortunate influence. Olympic gymnast Shannon Miller has Venus conjunct the south node. Venus rules money and also gymnastics [along with Mercury], and she was a millionaire at 16. Jupiter ties in with her nodes as well.

Now, on the other hand...Hellen Keller, blind and deaf since early childhood, has many fated planets and aspects that reveal this. Scorpio ascendant with co-ruler Mars at 15 degrees of Leo. Others who have this degree—one of the most unfortunate of degrees, with a very high incidence [but not always] of blindness and deafness, are Beethoven [deaf], Stevie Wonder [blind], Michael Jackson, though now blind or deaf, had incessant plastic surgeries to where his nose was falling off of his face, and a chart I did years ago; a hermaphrodite—the degree opposite—15 degrees into Aquarius.

Getting back to Helen Keller. Her sun [rules eyesight], was exactly conjunct the south node at 6 degrees; a degree of disability, BUT, you have to look at everything. Many, many people who are fine and healthy have a planet on the 6th degree, but when the chart is already badly afflicted and there are supporting aspects, and planetary placements, degrees and such, then you can be confident in making a prediction. Helen Keller had no planets in air signs. Air signs are communication signs and rule the sight and hearing; though fire signs rule sight to a lesser extent. Uranus, tightly conjunct her midheaven, with aquarius intercepted in the third house of communications made her a writer, speaker and communicator.

Now, for a planets' strength. When you hear 'exalted' 'in its home sign' and such, the planet is much stronger. Saturn now transiting in Libra is much stronger and more malefic in this sign, as it is in Capricorn. What this means is if it is hitting on your personal planets, the effects are much worse in the way of crises, and other nasties manifesting in your life. When it is in Aries [its fall] and Cancer [detriment], its malice is somewhat watered down. I have seen repeatedly, in books written by idiots, who claim that Saturn in Libra is good for marriages and that sort of thing. Not so. Very few people with Saturn in Libra have happy marriages, love lives, or any at all, especially those who are without. This has to be cleaned off of the soul and meditated upon to correct this. Saturn in Libra produces more singles than any other placement. Of course, high profile astrology authors often claim the opposite, but do your own research on this one.

Exaltation only strengthens a planet for better or worse...it does not make the effects of that planet more pleasant, as many idiots out there try to get you to believe. Same goes with the home sign.

In closing...I have written about this before. Most astrology texts rave about the beauty and great fortune of a Jupiter/Venus conjunction or trine. This is not so. I knew a man who had sagittarius on his ascendant, ruled by jupiter, with a tight venus/jupiter conjuncton in his seventh house. Time and again, I have seen in charts- the ruler of the sixth house of health, REGARDLESS of the planet, in aspect to the chart ruler or and one of the co-ruler/s, there is more than average health problems, often relating to the areas of the body and diseases of the planet making the aspect to the ruler. This man, with this so-called 'beautiful' jupiter/venus conjunction swallowed a strong cleaning solution at the age of two. Venus rules the throat. His throat was deeply scarred from this and he suffered throughout his life with this. On the upside, he lived well, he was of extremely high intelligence [college professor], and enjoyed some good fortunes form this

I have heard that astrology is most accurate if you measure the degree to which a planet is in a sign and that the effects differ depending on the degree.

Can someone please comment on this? I have heard about this for a while but I can't seem to find any information about it.

Thanks.

Don't know if it satisfies you, but there is a thing called a dwad or dwadasamsa - a twelfth of a zodiac sign. The lesser division is to decans - a third of a zodiac sign.

It can further show what planet (the ruler of a particular zodiac sign in a decan and a dwad) may be of significance, but it is of tertiary or even quaternary meaning.

I have natal Uranus in my 12th & Mars in the 11th. Solar arc Uranus was transiting in my 2nd H. My natal Mars is also opposing Saturn.

Uranus is one of the best ways to time something. When you combine that with Mars, you can count on something occurring. If you are trying to rectify a birth date for a chart that is approximate, Uranus can usually be used as a tool of correction.

The chart is a tool & everything that has a beginning has the characteristics of the quality of that moment. This is for anything. A job, your career, your vehicle ownership, when you first meet someone, etc., etc. The list is endless. This science is simply a tool that can apply to anything with a beginning. And there will always be an end, even if multi-generational like a country or a corporation, etc. How that will manifest, is part of another realm.

Max, do you have a seperate website just for astrology readings? I'd like my RHP friends and family to get readings, but I don't want to lead them to JoS (and thus reveal my secret). If only there was a way to make sure things didn't pop up for JoS in the seach engine for trying to find said astrology site!

The affairs of the house/s it rules over are more emphasized in the life. For example...say uranus is conjunct the midheaven from the tenth house side, and aquarius is on the cusp of the third [uranus rules aquarius], the affairs of the third house will be more of a factor in the life, such as communications, and given this is on the midheaven, 10th house, one who has this will more than likely have above average communications skills, and often work at a job where his/her communications skills are put to use, such as speaking, writing, even working on a PC and to a lesser extent, working in customer service on the telephone. Uranus adds more here in the way of one using computers and other electronics and also future oriented devices, often with a more than average interest in

On a lesser level, siblings, relatives and such can also factor in. You have to look at the entire chart to see which of the affairs of the house in question are most prominent in the life of the owner of the chart.

This concept has been abused to no end from spiritual exploiters- new age idiots [these ignorant fools work for the enemy- same way the judicial system does...let crime get so out of hand, that in the end, everyone's rights will be totally taken away, they are for and promote grave injustices], xians and other malignant filth. What this 'karma' really is and yes, one can see this in the astro charts, THIS HAS NOTHING WHATSOEVER TO DO WITH ANY AGENDA OR CONFORMING IN ANY WAY, AS THE SPIRITUAL EXPLOITERS WOULD LIKE FOR US TO BELIEVE! What this is, is cause and effect. Like say you put your hand on a hot burner, you are going to get burned, nothing more.

The relationships we have with others, the experiences we have in our lives, what we dwell upon and how all of these affect us, is taken onto the soul, as it is stored in the chakras and certain things manifest in future lives. We meet up with others from our past lives for better or for worse. Things one feels guilt about, if this is deep enough, they carry this into a future life and it can react with an even where one is punished. People who have low self-esteem often attract abusers into their lives as they tolerate abuse. Issues that someone in a past life has had, where the other person will not let go—vengeance, love, whatever...this also hangs on as those we have substantial interaction with, family, friends, lovers, through an event with another person, and they feel strongly enough about, we can meet up with them in a future life. What do you dwell on? What do you tolerate? How do you really feel about certain things? This all factors in, with whom we attract. Because of spiritual ignorance, those who are without are damned into repeating and repeating the same old mistakes and meeting up with the same abuses throughout lifetimes. This is what the enemy wants. Only through Satan can we get out of this and this is through consistent yoga, power meditation and working to advance our souls. When we reach a certain point in meditation, our intuition and mind begin to work FOR us and help us, instead of wreaking havoc and being totally out of control.

Now, as for the nodes. The south node is not always bad and the north node is not always fortunate. The nodes are of fate...for better or for worse. I have seen horrible things with the south node, but also the opposite as well. Like I said...it is not always an unfortunate influence. Olympic gymnast Shannon Miller has venus conjunct the south node. Venus rules money and also gymnastics [along with mercury], and she was a millionaire at 16. Jupiter ties in with her nodes as well.

Now, on the other hand...Hellen Keller, blind and deaf since early childhood, has many fated planets and aspects that reveal this. Scorpio ascendant with co-ruler mars at 15 degrees of leo. Others who have this degree...one of the most unfortunate of degrees, with a very high incidence [but not always] of blindness and deafness, are Beethoven [deaf], Stevie Wonder [blind], Michael Jackson, though now blind or deaf, had incessant plastic surgeries to where his nose was falling off of his face, and a chart I did years ago; a hermaphrodite- the degree opposite 15 degrees into aquarius.

Getting back to Helen Keller. Her sun [rules eyesight], was exactly conjunct the south node at 6 degrees; a degree of disability, BUT, you have to look at everything. Many, many people who are fine and healthy have a planet on the 6th degree, but when the chart is already badly afflicted and there are supporting aspects, and planetary placements, degrees and such, then you can be confident in making a prediction. Helen Keller had no planets in air signs. Air signs are communication signs and rule the sight and hearing; though fire signs rule sight to a lesser extent. Uranus, tightly conjunct her midheaven, with aquarius intercepted in the third house of communications made her a writer, speaker and communicator.

Now, for a planets' strength. When you hear 'exalted' 'in its home sign' and such, the planet is much stronger. Saturn now transiting in libra is much stronger and more malefic in this sign, as it is in capricorn. What this means is if it is hitting on your personal planets, the effects are much worse in the way of criseses, and other nasties manifesting in your life. When it is in aries [its fall] and cancer[detriment], its malice is somewhat watered down. I have seen repeatedly, in books written by idiots, who claim that saturn in libra is good for marriages and that sort of thing. Not so. Very few people with saturn in libra have happy marriages, love lives, or any at all, especially those who are without. This has to be cleaned off of the soul and meditated upon to correct this. Saturn in libra produces more singles than any other placement. Of course, high profile astrology authors often claim the opposite, but do your own research on this one.

Exaltation only strengthens a planet for better or worse...it does not make the effects of that planet more pleasant, as many idiots out there try to get you to believe. Same goes with the home sign.
In closing...I have written about this before. Most astrology texts rave about the beauty and great fortune of a jupiter/venus conjunction or trine. This is not so. I knew a man who had sagittarius on his ascendant, ruled by jupiter, with a tight venus/jupiter conjunction in his seventh house. Time and again, I have seen in charts- the ruler of the sixth house of health, REGARDLESS of the planet, in aspect to the chart ruler or and one of the co-ruler/s, there is more than average health problems, often relating to the areas of the body and diseases of the planet making the aspect to the ruler. This man, with this so-called 'beautiful' jupiter/venus conjunction swallowed a strong cleaning solution at the age of two. Venus rules the throat. His throat was deeply scarred from this and he suffered throughout his life with this. On the upside, he lived well, he was of extremely high intelligence [college professor], and enjoyed some good fortunes form this conjunction, but the bad effects of this were pronounced as well.

Another example...actress Elizabeth Taylor. Libra on the ascendant, venus trining jupiter. Jupiter co-ruler of pisces on her sixth house cusp. She had numerous health problems throughout her life. Her Jupiter was at 15 degrees of leo, as well. Neptune, ruling pisces is at 6 of virgo.

Also, saturn retrograde does not affect black magick. I know this for a fact.

Subject: Friendlessness

Hello there is something I wanted to share here not just for personal reasons but also because I think it's quite an interesting thought about planets and elements and touches on something which doesn't often come up in these group discussions.

The more experienced in these groups will know the air element is the element which is most involved in socializing and friendships.
And for those of us who have Saturn in Aquarius will know it can limit socializing and access to social groups.
I have this placement like everyone my age of course.
But in addition I have no other planets in air signs besides this and nor do I have a planet in Leo which is also a sign which attracts big social circles.

My whole life I have never had a social circle or friends. From kinder garden, all through school, college and work, until the present.
Not only that but I don't even give thought to it often, the only time I have ever felt the need to make friends was when other people teased me about being a loner, I felt I had to make friends for egotistical reasons and of course because I was only doing it for image sake and wasn't actually interested in socializing, these friendships didn't last.

Those of you who have more knowledge on this subject, elements, planets and friends or who can relate to it in some way please share your thoughts.
And those of you who are blessed with lots of friends and big social circles, please also tell your stories.

Hooded Cobra is correct a lack of water often means a disregard for the spiritual. Hitler however may of had no water signs but did have an 8th house Pluto which is a very powerful placement. Indicating someone who has a very advanced soul from previous lives. Additionally, for those who are not spiritually inclined a lack of water in this age can be a benefit in the way of achieving worldly success because the system of this age works against us through psychological tactics that work best against the water element.

It's not that the water element itself is bad it's just that those with it in large amounts and who are not Spiritually aware are the most vulnerable to our kike enemies.

A long time ago I was part of an organization which specialized in teaching metaphysics. I always seemed to struggle to advance in this group and I was told it was because I’m a Capricorn and Capricorns are very stubborn and resistant to change. In fact some of them even went so far as to put down Capricorns as if we were somehow retarded and almost kind of a plague.

Is there any truth to this idea that Capricorns are somehow different from other sun signs and that we are somehow a kind of an outcast minority. Seriously, that's how the Capricorns in this group were treated! It was weird.

Yes wierd indeed. it all depends on your birthchart of you are ressitant to change and if you are less inclined to the spiritual. That group is stupid.

This makes me want to puke. That group is definitely 'retarded and almost kind of a plague.' Stay away from self-appointed ignorant scum like that. Fixed signs, especially the fixed grand cross; and/or a majority of planets in fixed signs are stubborn and resistant to change...and you know what? Many with this fixed emphasis are the ones who make it to the top. I know I mentioned Olympic Gymnast Shannon Miller's chart as an example before, I will again. She has 5 planets in fixed signs. She never missed a training session in the gym.

As for Capricorn, the sign has excellent staying power, the gift of endurance. A quitter always loses. Capricorns are determined, they stick to what they start and are success oriented. Certain traits are found in the charts of winners and those who make a mark in this world- they are the ones who lasted. Be proud to be a Capricorn.

Each sign has its strengths and weaknesses. NO SIGN IS BAD. Also, it is glaringly obvious that clump of idiots knew nothing about astrology. I certainly wouldn't trust them with any metaphysical or spiritual training. The sun sign is only that...the sun sign. The chart ruler and co-rulers are what is really important. Say someone has a pisces sun. Then, say that person has their ascendant in aries, mercury, venus, mars and jupiter in aries. This will be a hot-headed, impatient, aggressive, and pioneering pisces- hardly fitting.

Unfortunately, due to the endless stream of junk astrology- daily horoscopes, which don't have any more validity than a million dollar check in one's mailbox, tabloid crap sun sign junk at the newsstands at supermarket and drug store checkouts, newspaper 'horoscopes' all of this makes astrology look very foolish and not to be taken seriously.

One of my sons has a stellium in Capricorn, including his sun. He has plenty of endurance. He never gives up. When I was five months pregnant with him, I was lying comfortably in bed on my side. The clock was facing me. He kicked me and kicked me until after 40 some minutes, I finally gave in and moved. This attitude and personality trait, I repeat again... is seen in the charts of highly successful people.

It is how one handles the energies of the chart. There are some charts, I have seen personally where the owner was a blatant asshole- bad combinations of planets and some of these are very hard to handle, but other than that, one cannot determine race by looking at someone's astrology chart. Even cats and dogs born on a certain day will exhibit traits according to the planets on that day.

Im a capricorn and they shuld never discriminate another sign mainly because capricorns are known as leaders and we are stubborn and are resistant to change because of the role we play as leaders.

Subject: Re: Signs by degree

It's getting late for me, so I have to make this short. I have personally found that the degrees are of the most important aspects of astrology. This is what makes the chart individual and adds much more insight to prediction. I have a webpage on this on the JoS. I apologize, much of the information on there is very old and some poorly written going back 10 years. I am short on time, but will try to correct it when I am able to.

I always blend Vedic astrology, the foundations and interpretations with Western astrology. I read for the tropical zodiac, as I have found this to be highly accurate. In Vedic astrology, there are what are called 'mansions of the moon.' These are the so-called critical degrees.
0 and 29 of all signs, with 29 known as an 'anaretic' degree.
13 and 26 of cardinal signs
9 and 21-22 of fixed esigns
4 and 17 of mutable aka common signs

15 degrees of fixed signs; there is a term for them in Vedic astrology, but I don't offhand remember it. Trying to find the word on the internet, I just saw how little so many people know about astrology. Most astrology authors overlook the degrees.

I also note through my own research, in addition to a prominent neptune, where one mishandles the energies [insanity], 25 degrees of Leo is prominent in the charts of serial killers. Of course, this is mishandling of these energies, but 25 of Leo, though lesser than 15 of Leo causes problems.

In closing, PLEASE DO NOT GET UPSET WHEN YOU ARE NEW AND LOOKING AT YOUR ASTRO CHART! NO CHART IS 100% GOOD OR BAD. EVERYONE HAS A SATURN, PROBLEM AREAS AND SUCH, BUT THROUGH MEDITATION, THESE CAN BE DIRECTED AND OVERCOME. KNOWING WHEN YOU ARE IN A BAD PERIOD, LIKE TRANSITING SATURN ON YOUR PERSONAL PLANETS, CAN HELP YOU TO PREPARE BEFOREHAND THROUGH MEDITATION AND PUTTING ON A STRONG PROTECTIVE AURA, AND BEING CAREFUL DURING THAT PERIOD! FOREWARNED IS FOREARMED! THIS IS A GIFT!

Knowing is what astrology is all about. I had a hard time with it when I began reading my own chart at 15, and saw all the bad stuff, which some was already blatant in my life. I have learned over the years, astrology has done nothing but help me, time and again. Astrology, as with the other occult disciplines is a wonderful gift from Satan. Knowing something and why is half the battle. This way, you can work with it and change it.

And above all, I have come across more bullshit, downright ignorance and crap, especially on the internet, written by people who just don't know. Don't take everything you read in the way of astrological interpretations as a fact, especially if it is unfortunate. I have seen endless cases where the writer was wrong.

Satan's gift of astrology is here to help us through life. It isn't something dreadful or negative. Astrology is a friend.

Thank you so much sister Maxine for your response. For years I had developed a weird complex about being a Capricorn because of the degrading things they said about me based soley on my sun sign. One thing I didn't include in my question was the actual name of this organization. They're called the School of Metaphysics. You've probably heard of them. I was involved with them in the early eighties. I'm pretty sure founder Jerry Rothermel was a fucking Kike and the current president is a Jewbag too! In fact if you do a search on them you'll see one of the symbols on their logo is a "star of David". Back then I wasn't aware of the Jewish problem and how they created this right hand path, how they stole and perverted the divine knowledge imparted to our race from Father Satan. In fact after learning that Father Satan himself is Capricorn and Aquarius I found that also to be very encouraging as well because I happen to be a Capricorn cusped on Aquarius. Once again thank you!

Subject: Re: Friendlessness

People who don't feel the need to socialise usually have the majority of planets on the northern hemisphere and/or the oriental side of the chart. It really depends primarily on the house positions.

The position of Venus and the Moon are common indicators of a person's social life. I believe there's absolutely nothing wrong with being alone if you don't really care or feel bad about it.

I myself have the need to have friends. I feel very bad without them, but this doesn't seem to be your case though.

I have a strong Venus in the 11th house, for example, so my social circles while not that big, are very close and important to me. I know a lot of people, but only very few are friends. Along with other reinforcing placements, I guess I can say my social life is, by common sense, "healthy". However, I also have my Moon loosely conjunct Saturn, and Chiron opposing both of them. Problems in this area arise from time to time. I've had certain periods on my life in which I was almost entirely isolated from everyone; needless to say, these were periods of deep depression.

Aquarius (and, by extension, the 11th house) is very concerned with socialising, but in a different way. While it tends to communicate with many people, it picks only few (if any) to be friends with. The Internet is the perfect Aquarian mean of communication, because here you can be with big groups of people without really relating to them. It satisfies the sign's basic needs perfectly.

Water signs (Pisces not much so) are concerned with connecting emotionally with other people, so a lack of water may also indicate little need to have friends and/or relationships in general.

Air signs need other people's minds and Water signs need other people's hearts.
People with emphasis in the transpersonal/universal signs (Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius and Pisces) are less concerned with individuals and more with large groups. Some of them aren't concerned with people at all.

I know a person who has only one planet in a water sign and only one in an air sign, and feels almost no need to be with people, have friends or relationships; but I know another person who also has only one planet in an air sign and one in a water sign who is very popular, has a lot of friends and loves being with other people. The difference is that the former has most planets in the 12th house (house of seclusion) while the latter has the Sun, Venus and the Moon in the 7th house (house of relationships).

I have Saturn in Aquarius as well, I've rarely had more than one or two people that I consider friends at a time. Many Satanists seem to have been born in the time when Saturn was in Aquarius, I always believed it helped us to become Satanists by making us feel separate from the herd.

My whole life I have never had a social circle or friends. From kindergarten, all through school, college and work, until the present. Oh wow that's funny about the cats and dogs I was wondering how astrology affects animals, like if their brains have the capacity for a deeper influence from planets to their consciousness and unconscious. Like I have noticed that my family's cat born in May something and my dog born May 30, 2012 are both really friendly (and my dog is a German Shepherd they're known for being unfriendly towards strangers) and they don't like to be held, cuddled, crated or restricted in anyway. Also they both try to like talk almost it's actually pretty funny.

Any name with a 'Roth' in it is definitely Jewish, just like Eisen, Stein, Gold, etc. This is one of endless examples of just how rotten they are. Given everything in the media is 96% Jewish written and controlled, know most astrology authors are also Jewish and they have done plenty of damage to astrology. Many write just to make more and more money on top of money and do not care about the contents of their writings, and some even deliberately mislead people. Jewish publishing houses are only too happy to publish and promote the writings of a brother/sister Jew, while working to keep Gentiles out. These are the ones who endlessly talk about 'karma' this and 'karma' that and work to give the reader a false impression, based upon the Jewish agenda, no different form their filthy bible. One can see the Xian overtones in their writings. Be aware of this. They are also plagiarists, not only in their writings, but with music and everything else, you name it. In their talmud, it states that they are free to take what they please from us 'goyim.'

The fifth house is the house of children. The planets therein and the house ruler can give an idea of a person's fertility or lack thereof. Saturn in the 5th House being the most common indicator of infertility. I believe the Moon is also very important regarding fertility, as it rules family, nurturing etc.

I really don't know much else about this, but Maxine sure does and might give more insight if she can.

Thanks very much for your reply. I have been studying Astrology at work recently, I read where you can find out your fertility aspect on your birth chart. My wife and I were doing our charts last night, and I just wondered how to find the info. At this point we are trying to concieve, and could use any info that someone in the family could give us.

I have my Venus in Leo, my rising sign in Leo and my Moon in Aquarius. As you said, I'm one of those that has never needed a friend. It's difficult to balance all the friend circles I have and it genuinely upsets me when a friend of mine is ostracized from the group. Just saw a situation that is affecting me in that way not 60 seconds ago.... If this is not your focus don't worry about it. I've never had to worry about it because socializing comes naturally, and my aura demands respect out of those I interact with, lest they deal accordingly. I know I wouldn't feel satisfied if I didn't connect on a friendship level to many people, as my friends are a huge part of my life and connection with the gods.
Hail Satan!

Hello there is something I wanted to share here not just for personal reasons but also because I think it's quite an interesting thought about planets and elements and touches on something which doesn't often come up in these group discussions.

The more experienced in these groups will know the air element is the element which is most involved in socializing and friendships.

And for those of us who have Saturn in Aquarius will know it can limit socializing and access to social groups.

I have this placement like everyone my age of course. But in addition I have no other planets in air signs besides this and nor do I have a planet in Leo which is also a sign which attracts big social circles.

My whole life I have never had a social circle or friends. From kinder garden, all through school, college and work, until the present.

Not only that but I don't even give thought to it often, the only time I have ever felt the need to make friends was when other people teased me about being a loner, I felt I had to make friends for egotistical reasons and of course because I was only doing it for image sake and wasn't actually interested in socializing, these friendships didn't last.

Those of you who have more knowledge on this subject, elements, planets and friends or who can relate to it in some way please share your thoughts.

And those of you who are blessed with lots of friends and big social circles, please also tell your stories.

Wow... just... wow. Lol.

People in their 90's can still have sex. Brian is only in his 50's. I don't consider that too old at all lol. And us SS, with our knowledge of power meditation and yoga, can make things even better.

Also. It's common courtesy to refer to people in authority by their full names, not little nicknames, unless they make it public that they prefer to be called as such. I have wondered who this "Max" person you have referred to before was, as I generally only skim most posts, but I realize now you mean HPS Maxine. Like I said, common courtesy out of respect. Nicknames are only given to people you have personally known long enough and have good rapport with. If someone I didn't really know gave me a nickname, not cool. It's just rude.

The fifth house is the house of children. The planets therein and the house ruler can give an idea of a person's fertility or lack thereof. For your information, my dad was my same age when I was born, and he was still having sex into his eighties. I come from a very healthy Gentile family, were even though my parents were xtian, I was always taught that sex was a very healthy part of life.. She has told me and others that I am better then any man Does anyone in the family know how to find out about fertility, or the best way to know if there are children in your future.

You having Lupus could occur should you become pregnant but that would not be based upon your mother having it while she was pregnant with you. That would be based upon where the planets are aligned at the time.

And yes Sorcoress, I can vouch that my favorite parts of Brian certainly "still work" and that sex magic with your soulmate certainly can be very potent. But I thank you for your friendly concern for us in that area. You really are a good friend to be worrying about us.

As for our child, we are hoping for one and we are hoping for a daughter, who we are going to name Arian, after our race. I grew up with three others (one that’s a boy) and it’s just not worth it with all the "stop touching me’s" and the "well she touched me first" and the "ow she hit me" that you always hear. Trust me, you will hardly EVER hear "I love you" after age 8. You will mostly have your children trying to kill each other...if your lucky. lol. TOTALLY not worth it for me.
Sorcoress, you must know Maxine on a highly personal level to be using such nicknames. I mean, I have nicknames for Enki, Belial, and Haagenti. But than again, I know them. Or at least, we are all on a familiar level now where we know each other kinda well.

And don't get me wrong here, I don't blame you for idolizing her. She's a human goddess in her own right. And I respect her for being able to balance her life as she does with Family, raising kids, keeping her own personal life balanced, research, the JOS, the priest hood, keeping up with the groups, AND posting on the new astrology group all while people are trying to kill her. Even if she's used to it by now and/or she's got protection from satan, I acknowledge and am proud to say that our HP's got guts. Than of course the fact of her sheer brilliance and astounding life experience, which totally and completely blows me away. She is certainly a woman to look up to! But please don't call her "max". I know you are just trying to familiarize yourself in your own way but please, that's disrespectful. Just letting you know for future reference my friend so you don't make the same mistake with our gods. Remember, all knowledge you gain CAN be applied to other things.

Also you mentioned being comfortable around them? Satan himself chose our HP's if it's any consolation. :) That sure makes ME comfortable. But if you want to know about HP Dietrich than you should read the JOS. As she chose what information she would reveal and what information she would not. Also, if you really want to learn the personalities of our HP's, read the information they put out. Read their posts. Their posts, even the informative ones, are filled with their personalities. In fact, I encourage you to read their posts. I encourage EVERYONE to read their posts. Not only do their posts contain fascinating and fantastic information but some of them will make you laugh as some of our HP's have very humorous fascinating fiery viking like personalities, to be sure. :) You WILL crack up, guaranteed.

Food for thought: if you want to improve the relationship between you and your mother, first accept the fact that because of your different astrology, you may not be able to improve it. Than get to know her and her personality. What does she like? What does she hate? Is there anything that's the same about the both of you? You may find somewhere within those questions that you find you can connect with her and you can build your relationship from there.

And thank you, I like my wedding dress AND my wedding ring. The one I showed you was only my engagement.

p.s. Shannon your a poet and you didn't know it. Love ya girly!

Lack of the water element can cause infertility.

The Moon influences fertility:

There is a difference between fertility & if you are going to have children or not. Or if there will be any sorrow as a result of any children that may have. One can be fertile & not ever have any. That is most apt to be the case for a man of course.

I have to get caught up on the posts. I don't know what I have missed over the last 2-3 days.

It is how one handles the energies of the chart. There are some charts, I have seen personally where the owner was a blatant asshole- bad combinations of planets and some of these are very hard to handle, but other than that, one cannot determine race by looking at someone's astrology chart. Even cats and dogs born on a certain day will exhibit traits according to the planets on that day.

This makes me want to puke. That group is definitely 'retarded and almost kind of a plague.' Stay away from self-appointed ignorant scum like that. Fixed signs, especially the fixed grand cross; and/or a majority of planets in fixed signs are stubborn and resistant to change...and you know what? Many with this fixed emphasis are the ones who make it to the top. I know I mentioned Olympic Gymnast Shannon Miller's chart as an example before, I will again. She has 5 planets in fixed signs. She never missed a training session in the gym.

As for Capricorn, the sign has excellent staying power, the gift of endurance. A quitter always loses. Capricorns are determined, they stick to what they start and are success oriented. Certain traits are found in the charts of winners and those who make a mark in this world- they are the ones who lasted. Be proud to be a Capricorn.

Each sign has its strengths and weaknesses. NO SIGN IS BAD. Also, it is glaringly obvious that clump of idiots knew nothing about astrology. I certainly wouldn't trust them with any metaphysical or spiritual training. The sun sign is only that...the sun sign. The chart ruler and co-rulers are what is really important. Say someone has a pisces sun. Then, say that person has their ascendant in aries, mercury, venus, mars and jupiter in aries. This will be a hot-headed, impatient, aggressive, and pioneering pisces- hardly fitting. Unfortunately, due to the endless stream of junk astrology- daily horoscopes, which don't have any more validity than a million dollar check in one's mailbox, tabloid crap sun sign junk at the newsstands at supermarket and drug store checkouts, newspaper 'horoscopes' all of this makes astrology look very foolish and not to be taken seriously.

One of my sons has a stellium in Capricorn, including his sun. He has plenty of endurance. He never gives up. When I was five months pregnant with him, I was lying comfortably in bed on my side. The clock was facing me. He kicked me and kicked me until after 40 some minutes, I finally gave in and moved. This attitude and personality trait, I repeat again.. is seen in the charts of highly successful people.

Hooded Cobra is correct a lack of water often means a disregard for the spiritual. Hitler however may of had no water signs but did have an 8th house Pluto which is a very powerful placement. Indicating someone who has a very advanced soul from previous lives. Additionally, for those who are not spiritually inclined a lack of water in this age can be a benefit in the way of achieving worldly success because the system of this age works against us through psychological tactics that work best against the water element. It's not that the water element itself is bad it's just that those with it in large amounts and who are not Spiritually aware are the most vulnerable to our kike enemies.

Subject: Re: Signs by degree

There are also decans of the signs. One can subdivide almost endlessly.
http://horoscopeswithin.com/decans.php

There also Sabian symbols for each degree. I rarely look at them myself, but some consider them significant.
http://cafeastrology.com/sabiansymbols_degreemeanings.html

Another example:

duad, dwadasama, also dwadachamsha A twelve-fold subdivision of the signs (each composed of 2 1/2°) developed by Hindu astrologers. The first duad of each sign is sub-ruled by the natural planetary ruler of the sign; the second duad is sub-ruled by the ruler of next sign in the zodiac and so on. These "signs within a sign," by virtue of their planetary rulers, account for subtle shadings of expression found in different degrees of the same sign.

There are also what is known as "Arabic parts". The part of fortune is the most common used in western astrology. I have found very little written on them except for how to calculate them.

Also of note, the Leo energies she is describing below can be severely mishandled via house & house position, as well as the relationship to the quadrant angles. For example: A planet in Leo in the 12th H.

It's getting late for me, so I have to make this short. I have personally found that the degrees are of the most important aspects of astrology. This is what makes the chart individual and adds much more insight to prediction. I have a webpage on this on the JoS. I apologize, much of the information on there is very old and some poorly written going back 10 years. I am short on time, but will try to correct it when I am able to.

I always blend Vedic astrology, the foundations and interpretations with Western astrology. I read for the tropical zodiac, as I have found this to be highly accurate. In Vedic astrology, there are what are called 'mansions of the moon.' These are the so-called critical degrees.
0 and 29 of all signs, with 29 known as an 'anaretic' degree.
13 and 26 of cardinal signs
9 and 21-22 of fixed signs
4 and 17 of mutable aka common signs

15 degrees of fixed signs; there is a term for them in Vedic astrology, but I don't offhand remember it. Trying to find the word on the internet, I just saw how little so many people know about astrology. Most astrology authors overlook the degrees.

I also note through my own research, in addition to a prominent neptune, where one mishandles the energies [insanity], 25 degrees of Leo is prominent in the charts of serial killers. Of course, this is mishandling of these energies, but 25 of Leo, though lesser than 15 of Leo causes problems.

In closing, PLEASE DO NOT GET UPSET WHEN YOU ARE NEW AND LOOKING AT YOUR ASTRO CHART! NO CHART IS 100% GOOD OR BAD. EVERYONE HAS A SATURN, PROBLEM AREAS AND SUCH, BUT THROUGH MEDITATION, THESE CAN BE DIRECTED AND OVERCOME. KNOWING WHEN YOU ARE IN A BAD PERIOD, LIKE TRANSITING SATURN ON YOUR PERSONAL PLANETS, CAN HELP YOU TO PREPARE BEFOREHAND THROUGH MEDITATION AND PUTTING ON A STRONG PROTECTIVE AURA, AND BEING CAREFUL DURING THAT PERIOD! FOREWARNED IS FOREARMED! THIS IS A GIFT!

Knowing is what astrology is all about. I had a hard time with it when I began reading my own chart at 15, and saw all the bad stuff, which some was already blatant in my life. I have learned over the years, astrology has done nothing but help me, time and again. Astrology, as with the other occult disciplines is a wonderful gift from Satan. Knowing something and why is half the battle. This way, you can work with it and change it.

And above all, I have come across more bullshit, downright ignorance and crap, especially on the internet, written by people who just don't know. Don't take everything you read in the way of astrological interpretations as a fact, especially if it is unfortunate. I have seen endless cases where the writer was wrong.

Satan's gift of astrology is here to help us through life. It isn't something dreadful or negative. Astrology is a friend.

It is common to have friends with Jupiter in your sun sign.

I have Saturn in Aquarius as well, I've rarely had more than one or two people that I consider friends at a time. Many Satanists seem to have been born in the time when Saturn was in Aquarius, I always believed it helped us to become Satanists by making us feel separate from the herd.

Most probably unless there are some issue. These issues are numerous & I would rather not bring up negative things. However one is the possibility of female plumbing issues. There are placements that can indicate such things. Which means that could over-ride the other placements. Which also then means that your situation could manifest in other ways if that or something else were ever to be the case. Things can manifest in many ways & still fit the description of the placements. The chart has to be viewed as a whole. For a man, he can be denied if the woman decided to abort, whether or not he wants the child. There is also the case of miscarriages.

It seems you got a few good answers, but I’m pregnant so I figured I’d put my two cents in :P I have moon conjunct Jupiter [less than 1 degree orb] in Scorpio.

When I was finally able to be with my SS lover in person I had been on birth control before seeing him, we got evicted from the house we were in with my birth control, so we were having sex when I was off birth control for about a week, and I got pregnant within those days.

Also, my pregnancy has been a VERY positive experience for me in nearly all aspects. I wish you the best with trying! :) is in Cancer, ruled by the moon. Babies for me lol.

How would things have been different if you didn't know about astrology while raising them? Tell us more about them. I feel like if I learn more about you HPs, then I'll feel more comfortable around you, like you're approachable, more like us normal peasant humans, that everybody has a normal life w/ normal problems (thanks, Saturn <-sarcastic) @ the end of the day when you get down to it. How could the relationship between mom and I be improved, what are some things she could've done to make our relationship smoother? I know I've posted our places, times, and dates somewhere around here... (perhaps it's good if that info ISN'T found). I feel a wonderful, safe, secure feeling when I’m around you Max (or, at least, read your posts). Like you're the kind of mom I wish I had. Kind of like the feeling/energy of a good hug! You know how to help and take care of ppl because you're a mom who knows astrology, what better mom could there be who knows so much about her kids b/c of that! Could we have had a past life 2gether?

You can control your destiny. If you and Raven want a baby, make it happen! Even if something in your chart says no, do workings to make the universe say yes. Fehu rune for fertility. Wait for waxing moon in a good sign like Cancer, and find a good time to do the Moon square, Raven especially. There was a sister in the groups last year or something, we told her to do the moon square because she wanted to get pregnant, and shortly into it she became pregnant. And of course finish the square... or it could result in miscarriage, you know? Workings need to be finished. Besides, it's good for pregnancy and childbirth. Bonus. Makes them easier, less issues/problems.

Thanks for the reply, my wife has a stellium in Scorpio. And her Sun sign is Scorpio, so will that effect her in any way?

And though I realize some would disagree with the method, we like it because I am currently incapable (scorpio 22 degrees 8th house) of communicating with the gods. So when Brian invokes them and we are able to ask questions together, it ups his own power. Not only that but I've been asking a lot of questions that the JOS doesn't cover and have received several answers through the demons my husband acts as a medium for or invokes. So Brian is learning a lot too, not just me. :)

Yeah it was incorporated into that. I really didn't mean for it to be, it goes to show the power of visualization. I'll explain:

See, I have Saturn and Pluto in my 7th house. Makes for bad relationships. I've had 2 stalkers, and my last boyfriend was a drug addict who sold many of my stuff (jewelry, swords, stereo, some clothing) for drugs. So as an experiment, I did a working to attract a positive partner into my life. I also asked my GD, Set, for help. I needed his help as I really needed a good relationship, also for sex, as HPS Maxine wrote in my report that sex is essential for my physical and emotional well being, and I hadn't had sex in like a year (Pluto was being a bitch and messing with me).

So for my visualization, I saw myself being held by a loving partner, and for some reason I kept seeing myself in nice destinations (a beach, a city in Europe, etc). And I wound up with a wonderful, caring man who loves to travel, and has the means to do so.

The travelling wasn't part of my affirmation, but since I was visualizing it, it wound up being a part of the end result. We'll be going to Africa, Peru, and some other places this summer/fall :)

Hail Father Satan!
Hail Set!

Oh yeah!! Woot woot! Good for you girl! :) You don't understand how happy I am for you.Hail Satan and the powers of Hell!

You are strong.I have Jupiter and moon in the 7th house as well with virgo. You said 108 times a day for 40 days. 108 breathes that is right? With an affirmation at each breathe and then after you breathed in all the energy you programmed it and did visualizing? Because I truly did like your idea and experiment Lydia. You inspired me. :) I love getting inspiration form my SS family. I am trying alittle something. I'm doing 54 reps instead (I am doing many other workings currently) and after breathing in energy and saying affirmations I focus on the energy and program it again 9 times after then do visualizing.Sometime vibrating runes and mantras all the time gets to me :/ so breathing energy is great for a change :)

I've had 2 stalkers, and my last boyfriend was a drug addict who sold many of my stuff (jewelry, swords, stereo, some clothing) for drugs. So as an experiment, I did a working to attract a positive partner into my life. I also asked my GD, Set, for help. I needed his help as I really needed a good relationship, also for sex, as HPS Maxine wrote in my report that sex is essential for my physical and emotional well being, and I hadn't had sex in like a year (Pluto was being a bitch and messing with me).

So for my visualization, I saw myself being held by a loving partner, and for some reason I kept seeing myself in nice destinations (a beach, a city in Europe, etc). And I wound up with a wonderful, caring man who loves to travel, and has the means to do so.

The travelling wasn't part of my affirmation, but since I was visualizing it, it wound up being a part of the end result. We'll be going to Africa, Peru, and some other places this summer/fall :)

Hail Father Satan!
Hail Set!

The fifth house is the house of children. The planets therein and the house ruler can give an idea of a person's fertility or lack thereof. Saturn in the 5th House being the most common indicator of infertility. I believe the Moon is also very important regarding fertility, as it rules family, nurturing etc.

I really don't know much else about this, but Maxine sure does and might give more insight if she can.

Thanks Sis :)

108 breaths of Green energy for 40 days, more or less visualizing the entire time, affirming on each exhale. I didn't program it after, I didn't even think about that but it worked anyway, I guess because I was programming it as I was doing it. Like I said, it was an experiment, and it worked! I'm still so happy about it. But a lot of the credit goes to Lord Set for helping, I'm sure :)

And I know what you mean about all the vibrations for runes, I knew I couldn't handle a working like that at the time (this was in Jan or Feb).

I started it in hour of Venus, day of Sun, Moon was full or almost full and in Taurus. Not the best timing, but it was a last-minute decision and I didn't want to wait another 3 or 4 weeks.

Hail Father Satan!

Hello, I am sure you have all talked about this before but I am curious about other peoples opinions. I like to use sidereal because it seems more accurate and also to me it is easier to read. Do you choose to use tropical over sidereal? How come? :)

Yup. I’ve noticed that a lot myself actually. Jupiter in your Sun sign is one of the most beneficial or placements for finances and general good fortune and opportunities, perhaps rivaled only by Jupiter trine Sun.

Also both Capricorn and Aquarius are very good places to have Saturn. Capricorn because it puts Saturns restricting and inhibiting energies to good use with self discipline and dedication and Aquarius because it neutralizes the authoritarian voice in your subconscious that tells you 'No and you can't'.

twelve-fold subdivision of the signs(each composed of 2 1/2°) developed by Hindu astrologers. The first duad of each sign is sub-ruled by the natural planetary ruler of the sign; the second duad is sub-ruled by the ruler of next sign in the zodiac and so on. These "signs within a sign," by virtue of their planetary rulers, account for subtle shadings of expression found in different degrees of the same sign.

There are also what is known as "Arabic parts". The part of fortune is the most common used in western astrology. I have found very little written on them except for how to calculate them.

Also of note, the Leo energies she is describing below can be severely mishandled via house & house position, as well as the relationship to the quadrant angles. For example: A planet in Leo in the 12th H.

It's getting late for me, so I have to make this short. I have personally found that the degrees are of the most important aspects of astrology. This is what makes the chart individual and adds much more insight to prediction. I have a webpage on this on the JoS. I apologize, much of the information on there is very old and some poorly written going back 10 years. I am short on time, but will try to correct it when I am able to.
I always blend Vedic astrology, the foundations and interpretations with Western astrology. I read for the tropical zodiac, as I have found this to be highly accurate. In Vedic astrology, there are what are called 'mansions of the moon.' These are the so-called critical degrees.

0 and 29 of all signs, with 29 known as an 'anaretic' degree.

13 and 26 of cardinal signs

9 and 21-22 of fixed signs

4 and 17 of mutable aka common signs

15 degrees of fixed signs; there is a term for them in Vedic astrology, but I don't offhand remember it. Trying to find the word on the internet, I just saw how little so many people know about astrology. Most astrology authors overlook the degrees.

I also note through my own research, in addition to a prominent neptune, where one mishandles the energies [insanity], 25 degrees of Leo is prominent in the charts of serial killers. Of course, this is mishandling of these energies, but 25 of Leo, though lesser than 15 of Leo causes problems.

In closing, PLEASE DO NOT GET UPSET WHEN YOU ARE NEW AND LOOKING AT YOUR ASTRO CHART! NO CHART IS 100% GOOD OR BAD. EVERYONE HAS A SATURN, PROBLEM AREAS AND SUCH, BUT THROUGH MEDITATION, THESE CAN BE DIRECTED AND OVERCOME. KNOWING WHEN YOU ARE IN A BAD PERIOD, LIKE TRANSITING SATURN ON YOUR PERSONAL PLANETS, CAN HELP YOU TO PREPARE BEFOREHAND THROUGH MEDITATION AND PUTTING ON A STRONG PROTECTIVE AURA, AND BEING CAREFUL DURING THAT PERIOD! FOREWARNED IS FOREARMED! THIS IS A GIFT!

Knowing is what astrology is all about. I had a hard time with it when I began reading my own chart at 15, and saw all the bad stuff, which some was already blatant in my life. I have learned over the years, astrology has done nothing but help me, time and again. Astrology, as with the other occult disciplines is a wonderful gift from Satan. Knowing something and why is half the battle. This way, you can work with it and change it.

And above all, I have come across more bullshit, downright ignorance and crap, especially on the internet, written by people who just don't know. Don't take everything you read in the way of astrological interpretations as a fact, especially if it is unfortunate. I have seen endless cases where the writer was wrong.

Satan's gift of astrology is here to help us through life. It isn't something dreadful or negative. Astrology is a friend.

Yeah, I was actually wondering about this too. Lately, I’ve been trying to get a better understanding about astrology and the whole degree thing was one of the things that had me confused the most. I also couldn’t find much info about it. Well, none that I felt I could trust.

I have heard that astrology is most accurate if you measure the degree to which a planet is in a sign and that the effects differ depending on the degree.

Can someone please comment on this? I have heard about this for a while but I can't seem to find any information about it.

Thanks.
Yup. However once one has mastered the elements they are no longer limited to any of the weaknesses/strengths they are born with.

Come to think of it, Hitler more than likely perfected his elemental balance and corrected his lack of water in his soul during that incarnation.

Hooded Cobra is correct a lack of water often means a disregard for the spiritual. Hitler however may of had no water signs but did have an 8th house Pluto which is a very powerful placement. Indicating someone who has a very advanced soul from previous lives.

Additionally, for those who are not spiritually inclined a lack of water in this age can be a benefit in the way of achieving worldly success because the system of this age works against us through psychological tactics that work best against the water element.

It's not that the water element itself is bad it's just that those with it in large amounts and who are not Spiritually aware are the most vulnerable to our kike enemies.

It seems you got a few good answers, but I'm pregnant so I figured I'd put my two cents in :P

I have moon conjunct Jupiter [less than 1 degree orb] in Scorpio.

When I was finally able to see my SS lover in person I had been on birth control before seeing him, we got evicted from the house we were in with my birth control, so we were having sex when I was off birth control for about a week, and I got pregnant within those days.

Also, my pregnancy has been a VERY positive experience for me in nearly all aspects. I wish you the best with trying! :)

I don't know how much of a blessing it is to have a huge social circle, but I can tell you it's been one hell of an adventure. It's probably the aq AC and air placements with pluto through the 11th. I was always that chick with friends from every corner of the school to every corner of the city... Still kind of am. Idk wtf I'm doing with people or what need they have in my life at this moment, hmm. Well... "friends". For me being around people has always been my way of building communication skills, building understanding. Learning about all of the different types of people, (also incase we ever need something I have a lot of people who'd have my back aka sometimes I use people who are without that I don't care for. Cant blame me), and self expression. For some reason, when I get around large groups of people, I'm more myself than ever and I just work well with people! And at other times I'm really off in the distance. I still need my time alone away from everyone. It's two extremes for me but it's not a bad thing that you're like that w/ saturn. I wish I could be more like that sometimes!

Everything has it's ups and downs though!

I have Saturn in Pisces

It's.....shitty as any Saturn placement almost.

Even when I know I don't want to put myself in danger it's like I subconsciously lead myself in a destructive path. Or when it's not that I take everything out on myself. Workin on it though. It's actually not that bad of a placement, I always get to fix my own faults because I know where I go wrong in all of the situations I'm in!

My brother has Saturn in Aquarius and a Sun in Libra.

He's "friends" with absolutely He thrives off of attention >.< but won't actually get close with even his girlfriend of three years, I can just see this internal battle. He wants to be loved and wants to be himself at the same time and he won't let himself and it's a vicious cycle. So it's like... gain a bunch of followers > find a person he really likes > tries to be close > backstabs and ditches that person then a Venus in Scorpio. So he's exactly like that with his girlfriend above but he won't let go he's so sextremely dominating over it. It's like a movie., i wonder where this will go.... O.o

hi again, Shannon.

Maybe u could help me in understanding astrology more.

I understand about the rule of thumb in regards to waxing and waning phases of the moon and its applications in magick.

Would a love/money spell be less effective during a waning moon, even if the moon was in their ruling signs (moon in taurus/libra, jupiter in sagit/taurus)?

im kinda confused in chronos xp. i.e for a love.sex spell- it says moon in libra AND in the constellation of virgo.

Would a love spell still work even tho virgo in the constellation is an opposing sign for love/sex spells?

I'm a bit confused at what you are asking? Are you asking if a Love/sex spell will be still be effective if the moon is in Virgo? Also if you are doing a spell for money and love and increasings during waning moon then it will still be effective but will be weakened a bit. It's like this, the kabbalistic squares can be done in a sign different then its ruling and exalted signs but will be weaker than it being in its sign of exaltation or ruling sign. The moon phases and signs are what increases are magick to its maximum and is what guides and aids it faster and stronger. They are what helps magick become stronger. So if you did a love spell or money spell on waning moon instead of its ideal waxing then you it will still be effective but not as strong and effective as it being done in waxing. If a person's soul is very strong then a spell for increasings being done on a waning moon more than likely wouldn't matter because of the person's magickal strength and will. But all and all moon phases and signs are things that should always be considered when doing magickal workings :) But don't do a sex spell in Virgo. The moon phases and signs are what increases are magick to its maximum and is what guides and aids it faster and stronger.
They are what helps magick become stronger. So if you did a love spell or money spell on waning moon instead of its ideal waxing then you it will still be effective but not as strong and effective as it being done in waxing. If a person's soul is very strong then a spell for increasing being done on a waning moon more than likely wouldn't matter because of the person's magickal strength and will. But all and all moon phases and signs are things that should always be considered when doing magickal workings :) But don't do a sex spell in virgo. I am confused at what you are trying to say with the chronos xp thing.

Subject: So confused about figuring out my chart.

So I recently got my chart done and am now in the process of trying to figure it all out. I'm starting to understand most of it, but there are still heaps of things I'm still confused about and I can't seem to find any info in the JoS astrology section no matter how hard I look. So here's what I'm confused about. If someone could help me out, or just give me a link to something that might help, I would really appreciate it.

Aspects. I understand the basics of how different planets sort of work together with this, but then when I see things like Sun conjunct Jupiter or Venus trine Saturn I have no idea what those things mean.

And what is the vertex and anti-vertex?

Thanks in advance, and also, sorry if the answers to these are actually mentioned on JoS or this group and I somehow skipped them.

Subject: Re: Figuring out the stellium

The stellium by definition is a conjunction of three or more planets in a sign. Even if there are three planets in a sign, but they aren't all conjunct, it's not really a stellium. Of course said sign will influence the chart heavily, more than the others, but it still isn't a stellium.

The Yod is a configuration of two planets in sextile that are simultaneously inconjunct a third planet. For example: a Yod could be formed by a planet in Aries and a planet in Gemini in sextile which are also simultaneously inconjunct a planet in Scorpio. Simultaneous oppositions to a same planet don't count as a Yod.

My Jupiter was doing the same thing in may. I took full advantage of this time and my progress got skyrocketed to say the least, despite of my hard Saturn. This definitely made me up. To leave such transit go to waste, or generally experience Jupiter without meditation is literally a crime against your spiritual evolution. Don't waste it brother!

Subject: How do the planets work?
Hello, I'm looking to find out in more detail how exactly the planets and signs effects take place, like does the energy from them come to you without you realizing it? And does this energy program you to have certain emotions or subconscious thoughts that bring effects into your life without you realizing it? Or are the planets constantly blessing and cursing at their own will?

Can someone who knows the answer or who has more knowledge please say more.

Thanks.

Well everyone is born at a certain time and place in the world and the way the planets are aligned at the moment of your birth determines your life, self, characteristics etc. The planets simply just are. They are celestial bodies that have their own energies. Planets don't discriminate and throw curses. They just have their own energies that can make or break you and that manifests on earth and on us. We are here the planets are there and we are subjected by it. We as satanists have power and the more our power increases the more we will be able to control the planetary energies and bot be subjected to them. Like the gods are powerful and they are not affected by planetary energies. They can control them.

Subject: Neptune in Pisces

I've been reading about the effects of Neptune in Pisces, things like the fabric of reality seems to be ripped asunder. Beliefs about reality are being challenged. Social and economic conditions are unstable and subject to devaluations. Literal floods, like what happened in Russia just a few days ago. And one really interesting one was Neptune in Pisces can bring great delusion or amazing clarity. I believe what I've gathered from the jos site, we'll soon see this mass delusion lift from the world.

Okay thanks. I have also heard HP Maxine say that aspects in the natal chart can indicate experiences from past lives, such as Mercury - Pluto conjunction showing skill in controlling the mind and meditation gained in past lives.

So say someone has Saturn in their 6th house of work and health. Does Saturn afflict the health and employment opportunities by creating a subconscious fear or doubt about these areas of life? Or will it afflict them regardless of how positive a person is about their work and health?

I'm just trying to figure out how it comes together, because if the Planetary energies come at us and work from inside ourselves it must be possible to gain control over them just as we do with the elements.

This may sound dumb but if there were a way of figuring out my birth time by studying my natal chart, I would like to know.

My story: I was born as a dead baby, so nobody bothered about my birth time and my birth certificate doesn't carry it. The doctor couldn't read my heart beat, I didn't respond to the oxygen so I was dead but quite sometime later when I was to go into mortuary, I came to life. My mum was crying over my dead body for quite sometime and refused to hand me over to the doctor who wanted to put me in mortuary, then I came alive. Thanks to Father Satan.

Both. From within and also the Saturn energies are there outward causing problems with health and work.

It works from inside and out of ourselves. Either way we can control it through power meditation and using planetary squares.

I have a gemini stellium. I have Sun, venus and mercury in the 4th house and they are all in gemini. That makes me a super Gemini Lol My yod is Sun and Venus at the apex, inconjunct Uranus, Neptune and pluto.

On Mon, Jul 9, 2012 3:43 AM EDT f.follets wrote:

The stellium by definition is a conjunction of three or more planets in a sign. Even if there are three planets in a sign, but they aren't all conjunct, it's not really a stellium. Of course said sign will influence the chart heavily, more than the others, but it still isn't a stellium.

The Yod is a configuration of two planets in sextile that are simultaneously inconjunct a third planet. For example: a Yod could be formed by a planet in Aries and a planet in Gemini in sextile which are also simultaneously inconjunct a planet in Scorpio. Simultaneous oppositions to a same planet don't count as a Yod.

Subject: Transiting Pluto 9th House
I was reading posts about Jupiter transiting 12th house, and I got to thinking. So I checked the time in my life where I realized xianity was bullshit, and I became Pagan and started meditating and doing yoga. This was a decade ago, and I saw that Pluto was transiting my 9th house:

"Pluto through the 9th house- Changes in religious beliefs, fanaticism in beliefs, long distance travel or immigration, This is a good time for learning and education. At this time, one can attract powerful teachers for better or worse. There may be changes in regards to in-laws or the partner's relatives. This transit signifies intense involvement with religion, other cultures, metaphysics, philosophy, education and the law".

Anyone else experience this?

For sure! Pluto just finished transiting my ninth house a year ago. So all this time when pluto was transiting my 9th house for almost half my life (I'm 20) I began getting into spirituality, I was wiccan before coming to satanism. I started getting into metaphysics heavily lol very deep into it. Maybe too deep.

This was the time I went through a permanent transformation with my spiritual beliefs(satanism). I found satanism about 3 years ago. I wonder if many of us have found satanism through a transiting pluto in the 9th? Transiting pluto in tenth now. Changes in regards to father. And it happened after many years my father was released from jail and we met after all these years. Transiting pluto has other effects too.

Wow I had the same experience. I was wiccan I decided to become straight pagan and then I was trying myy best to follow the gods of old as well and when I decided to go further back into the ancient gods that's when I came across satanism. It was great timing!LOL

No I don't spin my own yarn that would be a really cool trade to learn though. I was more just thinking back to when I started learning the runes; and had been reading under Bjork that parents used to wrap there new born baby in the rune for protection that stayed with the child through their entire life. I remember thinking these are the things I wish I had known when I was a new mother.

Hail Satan!

Siguard, kindly take note that your opinion of me seeking attention is false. I kindly advice you that this should be the last time you raise an infiltrator alert on my posts, as infiltration is not my purpose here.

Subject: Transiting Planets in Houses...?

Heil Fellow SS.
I'm just wondering if I'm right about this...(I know I can ask my GD or Satan, but these groups are also here to help, right?)
So from deductive reasoning, I've come to the conclusion that planets transit your houses this way...

- Lets say, for the sake of argument, that my first house is mostly in Taurus, and partly in Gemini according to my natal chart (it's not, just an example). When a planet enters Taurus, is it transiting my first house? And will it do so until partly into Gemini?

- Also, I assume that to gauge it's possible effects on me I would have to take into account the other planets that are in my first house according to my natal chart and the relations between all of these? I feel I'm missing something here, like maybe I need a Solar Return chart or a lunar one to really analyse this? I'm very new to this, so please be patient in your replies ;)}
Hey everyone. I'm pretty new to this group. and so far, I'm really enjoying it.

I'm glad that there is a group for astrology. we really need this group.

So glad that you guys are here.

by the way, can anyone explain where I can figure out when planets are in retrograde or not?

Thank you everyone. and I sincerely appreciate your replies.

Lunarium.co.uk has retrogrades, planetary hours, moon phases also dr standley website has a planetary events calendar that tells about all the planets etc
You're almost correct. Say your hypothetical ascendant is at 10 degrees of Taurus and the 2nd House begins at 10 degrees of Gemini. This 30-degree space between Taurus and Gemini is your "first house". A planet will be transiting your first house only when it reaches 10 degrees of Taurus, and will stay there until it reaches 10 degrees of Gemini. If the planet has just entered Taurus, then it's still in the 12th House.

House sizes may vary greatly depending on where on the world and which part of the day you were born. Every house begins at a certain degree (the house cusp) and ends at a certain degree (the next house cusp), and these are fixed. In transits and progressions, you'll always use the same house cusp degrees.

Any planet in your natal 1st house will be affected by planets transiting your 1st house as soon as they're close enough. If you have, for example, natal Mars at 3 degrees of Gemini (therefore on your first house), transiting Jupiter, now also in Gemini, is conjunct your natal Mars.

Solar and Lunar returns are different charts cast at the exact moment your Sun/Moon reaches its natal position. A Solar Return happens once a year and a Lunar Return happens once a month. They provide a very broad view of how your year/month is going to be, but you don't really need them to analyse your transiting planets.

I hope I was able to explain it well. It's way easier to understand this by looking at an actual chart.
Re: unknown birth time

There is a field in astrology called rectification, to find out your exact birth time.
"Astrology rectification is the branch of astrology that uses past events and various astrology techniques to determine the time of birth when it is unknown."
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Natal_chart#Rectification

The time of birth is very important, the exact minute & second.
In Jyotish - Indian astrology, they make a rectification for every chart to make sure, & calculate also seconds & millisecond.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Hindu_astrology
So I suggest that you find some good Jyotish astrologer to determine your time, & explain to him your problem.
I suggest you go to private consultation, but anything about Jyotish is very expensive.
I don't know where you live but I can suggest the head astrologer of one Europe-Slavic based institute.
The western astrology also has its own field of Rectification, but they are not that accurate as Jyotish.
And I never trust westerns when it comes for any time based accuracy at all...

In Western astrology there is also a debate what is the time of birth? Is it when any of your body parts get out of the womb, when the head goes out, when you take your first breath, or when your umbilical cord is cut, or ...?

Some astrologers suggest that the time of birth is your first breath, symbolically the degree of exaltation of the Moon (3rd degree of Taurus), & the death is your last breath symbolically the degree of exaltation of the Pluton (3rd degree of Scorpio).

A stillborn natal chart is always fun to investigate.
Thank you for sharing... :]

Is it? You know very well what you are, and so do I. You have been banned once, so now you're keeping a low profile.

By this hardly plausible story you want to attract attention - 'oh-poor-you'.

If a child is stillborn, it is DEAD. Period. You provide so little data as to the actual event that you can modify it the way you please - just like the xian church did with the shitty jewish fiction.

If it was the way you've said, medical journals and the media would publish the case.
As for the answer to the people who might ask for the same in the future, but will not make attention-seekers and martyrs out of themselves, one can learn it via the pendulum. E.g.:

'was I born between 3 and 4?', 'was I born between 3:30 and 3:45?' etc.

Thank you f.follets!
You're answer is very clear and precise. I didn't include degrees in my question, but I know exactly what you mean. I've looked at my Natal chart and have been analysing it as best I can...that's how I came to the possible explanation I posted about transiting planets.
I'm glad I wasn't too far off. Astrology is quite intricate, but absolutely worth learning...very interesting stuff. Thanks again for your reply.

Been out of pocket for a week dealing with personal issues. I will try to catch up on posts soon but I have another busy week & then I will be out of town for a few days in about a week.

Thursday evening, 1 September 1774, in the Long Room at City Tavern, South Second Street @ Walnut, Philadelphia, PA:.. 39°56′49.2″N, 75°08′42″W

By the 1770s the three stories high new City Tavern had become a social and economic center for Philadelphia. The clubrooms hosted various benevolent and social organizations, including the St. George's Society, the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick and the Jockey Club. The elegant Long Room was the setting for gala entertainment and balls. Downstairs, in the Bar and the Coffee Room, important business affairs were conducted by principal merchants of the city.

In 1774, as the breech with Great Britain widened, politics were the dominant topic of conversation at City Tavern. In May, leading citizens held a meeting in the Long Room to shape Pennsylvania's response to the "intolerable acts." Three months later, as the delegates to the American Continental Congress began to arrive in Philadelphia, the City Tavern was thrust center stage in the dispute with England.

The Massachusetts Bay General Assembly adjourned sine-die immediately after this vote to convene an American Continental Congress at Philadelphia. The Revolution in Massachusetts was thus begun.

SOUTH CAROLINA... “Resolved, That the late Act for shutting up the port of Boston, and the two Bills relative to Boston, which by the last accounts from Great Britain, had been brought into Parliament, there read and committed, are of the most alarming nature to all his Majesty’s subjects in America— are calculated to deprive many thousands Americans of their rights, properties, and privileges, in a most cruel, oppressive, and unconstitutional manner— are most dangerous precedents; and though leveled immediately at the people of Boston, very manifestly and glaringly show if the inhabitants of that town are intimidated into a mean submission to said Acts, that the like are designed for all the Colonies; when, not even the shadow of liberty to his person, or security of his property, will be left to any of his subjects residing on the American Continent.

A letter from Maryland: “You mention the 20th September, at Philadelphia, as the time and place for the general Congress; but the Colony of Massachusetts has fixed on the 1st of September, at Philadelphia, for that purpose; and we with the rest of the Eastern Colonies have agreed to the same time and place. New-Hampshire excepted, from whence we have not yet been favoured with their sentiments on the present situation of our American affairs, so that we are uncertain how they intend acting, but are in hopes they will join in the general plan of operation.”

“There is a talk … that it would be proper to have a Congress of the most sensible men amongst all the Colonies to meet somewhere to try to ward off the blow aimed at that great goddess of the Dutch East India Company in America, called AMERICAN LIBERTY. You will have discovered that I am no friend to Presbyterians, and that I fix all the blame of those extraordinary American proceedings upon them.”

AMERICANS drink COFFEE … BRITONS drink TEA

The grand AMERICAN CONTINENTAL CONGRESS of 1774 started out in Philly PA at Daniel Smith’s (new) CITY TAVERN, in the Long Room.

By the initiative of the Massachusetts Bay General Assembly, this all American Continental Congress was scheduled to convene on a Thursday, the First of September 1774. And so they did first convene, on the first evening in September:

At 6:00 P.M.LAT (17:59:33 LMT). [Time moment per delegate Robert Treat Paine’s diary entry]. Then were assembled some 25 or 30 of what would become 55 delegates by Monday morning, the Fifth of September. According to delegate Silas Deane’s letter to his wife, the assembled “agreed to wait for the Gentlemen not arrived until Monday Next, before We proceeded to Business.”

It looks like you're lowest in water and earth, so after you've learned to invoke the elements, do more of those. Are you doing the SWTP? There's a whole section on invoking and balancing your elements.

Write a list of your traits. One of the things you consider to be your virtues/strengths.(Open mindedness, learning, adaptable etc) The other your vices/weaknesses. (Inconsistency, laziness, ect) It may not necessarily be these I'm just giving you an example.
Once you have made these two lists get 8 pieces of paper or pages in a book. Two for each element.

Put your positive traits which are of the fire element in one list and the negative traits of that element on a separate list. Do this with all the elements.

Then you will want to spend some time correcting each undesirable trait by invoking the element which can counteract it.

For example, you have an over dominance of air and lack application. You invoke Earth and affirm "I am hard working and productive. Always achieving a lot in everyday life".

Do this with all your negative traits until you feel there is nothing more for you to do. You will then have achieved the elemental equilibrium and balance.

You put Jupiter in Gemini as an Earth sign, did you mean Virgo? They are both ruled by Mercury, but Virgo is Earth. Do you feel grounded? Does your life lack passion or are you without much emotional ties? I would focus on using the pentagram to balance your elements rather than risk unbalancing yourself more by invoking just one.

What exactly are you struggling with? What do you know already?
One can always begin by learning about the signs of the zodiac themselves, the planets and their characteristics. Then, start learning about the chart: the angles (AC, MC, DC, IC) and the houses, the elements, modalities, triplicities and quadrants. This is the most basic knowledge necessary to understand and read charts.

You can find everything I mentioned easily on the internet, just google the terms and read the results. Thoroughly.

Also, get a drawing of your own chart and start trying to figure it out (go to http://astro.com and select "Free Horoscopes" from the menu, then go to the bottom of the page and select "Chart drawing, Ascendant"). It's much easier to learn stuff by looking at your own chart.

If you have any trouble figuring something out, just ask and I (and the other members, I'm sure) will be glad to help.

Subject: Planets From Other Solar Systems

Hello, I was wondering does anyone have any information on planets which orbit other stars and what invoking their energies could do? I expect that each planet would have it's own unique effects. But is there any way of telling before hand? For safety I mean.

Most of the planets astronomers have discovered orbiting other stars tend to be gas giants, like Jupiter and Saturn. The reason for this is smaller planets are less visible from the Earth where as gas giants cast a shadow and sometimes exert a gravitational pull on their stars.

But anyway, I once invoked the gas giant Upsilon Andromadae C. It made me feel extremely weak and I could barely stand. I really felt like I was about to vomit.

Also the gas giant which orbits the star 51 Peg. I forget the name of this planet but I do remember it's mass is 6x that of Jupiter. I invoked this planet and it's effects were almost like a blend of Jupiter and Mars, I felt optimistic and positive after invoking it but also it gave me lots of physical energy as well. Definitely something of the Fire element.
But yeah share your thoughts and experiences with this. And if you haven't tried it, you may like to sometime.

Thanks.

Hail Satan!

Awhile ago one of our members invoked Upsilon and he said he felt like he was going to die. I haven't invoked energy from other planets because you never know the energy but I have invoked Neptune energy and it made me feel dizzy, light headed, spacey and tired and calm (a strange mixture) I wanted to lay down a lot and I was most comfortable with my eyes closed (go figure). I am alittle chicken when it comes to invoking energy from other planets lol very brave :)

Most of the planets astronomers have discovered orbiting other stars tend to be gas giants, like Jupiter and Saturn. The reason for this is smaller planets are less visible from the Earth where as gas giants cast a shadow and sometimes exert a gravitational pull on their stars.

But anyway, I once invoked the gas giant Upsilon Andromodae C. It made me feel extremely weak and I could barely stand. I really felt like I was about to vomit.

Also the gas giant which orbits the star 51 Peg. I forget the name of this planet but I do remember it's mass is 6x that of Jupiter. This sounds like a very interesting thing here is something that may be possable, try to get a feeling of the energy a little first like focus on it not invoke, there was this unknown star I invoked a little energy from that felt really positive soft calm kind of inspiring I felt like it would give me leadership qualities it was orangish colored but had green energy it appears as two stars big in the sky near morning its the bottom star I like that one (not betelguise I have no clue what that one is) hmm neptune I kind of had an odd experience with, I got kind of disconnected, and strange feeling, but laughing uncontrollably very odd energy it was like I could not control laughter and was even lacking ordination somewhat, strange it kind of gave my aura a drug like feel, it was like I was overstimulated overenergized. I like this attitude of trying things out, but yeah of course we must be cautious as there are some horrible things out there, actually I would guess on somethings if you can't tell the only option is to chance it. I got Polaris (or some star not sure what this guy was pulling) on me once, someone who I later found out to be an infiltrator (taken care of now) told me to open an image of Polaris and see if that was the star and actually put the energy on me. It was like very dark blue waves that were strong, (not demonic colored) that were not flowing naturally with my aura and chakras but in the opposite way, I could literally see them Chaotic, it made my heart rate go up and down, and random paranoia and anxiety then happiness like my feelings would just with then id get sad then angry, I had no control over it I did not like that at all, it seemed to progressively get worse, I used Nauthiz and Algiz a lot to get that energy off me. As well as trying to send it off to a synogauge near me since obviously this wasn't positive. Its kind of a gamble but if you are up for it you might discover some interesting things. I had to spend quite some time banishing that. Anyways good luck everyone this sounds interesting.

What if anything can I do to be sure that I can make positive friends. I have had issues with this my entire life. Is there anyway to sublimate the energy of this placement I believe (if that site is accurate) cancer is on the cusp of that house I have been doing the moon spiritual Square is that going to help out or is there something else I need to do. Any suggestings and I hate to sound dumb if I am already doing all I can to help out with this I am still trying to learn as much as I can about astrology (mostly reading posts) that is why I joined this group I am really glad it exists.

There is no neptune square. So what you must do it becareful of who you hang out with and also you can program your aura to attract certain positive people to you. Neptune in the eleventh house also means being involved in a spiritual group or having spiritual friends. This is inbedded in your birthchart so what you can do is do a spell or something to attract better people towards you.

Spiritual yeah but always in a negative way, nothing that has caused any good outcomes so far, I see that theme too it seems like somehow this placement has taken a very negative turn or direction so far, but is there anyway to affirm directly related to neptune or direct that energy for positive results with that planet in this placement, or meditations I could use. This one placement seems to be cause for needless problems in my life cause generally dishonest people, mentally ill along with druggies seem to be natively attracted to me somehow, and I find it hard to find real friends, let alone a relationship with anyone. Neptune is an odd planet that seems to have some very malific and some positive things about it I find that planet fascinating yet I don't know what to think of it, or how to sublimate its energy if it is taking a negative course it doesn't seem all bad though like it could somehow be directed into a positive course in this placement but I am not sure how.

Subject: Re: New to Astrology

Hello Ashley, the best way to start is to learn the 12 signs of the Zodiac, what their elements are and also know the characteristics of each element. Additionally learn which planets rule each sign and which houses they also rule. Each planet rules a sign/s and a house.

For example Neptune, is of the water element, rules Pisces and the 12th house. Neptune, Pisces and the 12th house are all connected with, Spirituality, Deception, Illusion, Dreams, Ideals, Compassion, Drugs and Alcohol, the Oceans etc.

The houses are the positions in which a sign or planet appears in the sky.

If you know your birthtime, go to www.astro.com click free charts, personal portrait and upload your birth information. At the bottom you'll find the houses your planets are located in as well as the signs.

Hope this helps.

Subject: Chiron - What's the deal with it?

Heil Fellow SS.
So, i've been looking on the internet for info on Chiron since there isn't anything on the JOS (that I can find). My first question is, how important is this minor planet/asteroid in our charts...should I even bother with it?

My second question is, if the info on the internet is correct (doubtful), is this like a slightly less powerful Saturn? It describes Chiron as your biggest astrological "wound", but with great potential for healing when delt with properly...kind of like Saturn properly sublimated can teach great lessons through hardships and/or hard work.

Any input on Chiron from more informed members would be greatly appreciated. Thanks in advance.

I’d use something like "Free POSITIVE energy from such and such".
http://www.zanestein.com/chiron_a.htm - This should do the job :)

Zane Stein is said to be the person most knowledgeable regarding this centaur.

Chiron is neither an asteroid, nor a comet - the celestial body was named 'centaur' ;) This is an astronomical fact.

Yes, one should bother dealing with this body, as it provides some additional data, rather meaningful :)

You can find some articles in the net - type 'Chiron in signs' and 'Chiron in houses'. Surely, some of the authors WILL be kikes, but we are Satanists so Satanic reading is applicable.

To give an example - I've read Liz Greene's (jewess) article on Chiron. There are some paragraphs which state 'there is no way out of suffering, and one is bound to be liberated only by death' - this is from astro.com. The sentence (paraphrased) of course concerns the mythical centaur, the leader of his race, who, when wounded by Hercules could not pass away (a demigod - son of Phylyra and Cronus) so after he renounced his immortality by giving it to Prometheus, was he finally liberated, and after 9 days (9 is a number connected to Chiron) merciful Zeus placed him in the constellation of Saggitarius, the 9 zodiac sign. A Satanist WILL see the alchemical message. Corporeal death and liberation from the mundane, and thus one attains transcendence.

Chiron is not like a 'less powerful Saturn' - Chiron, travelling between the orbits of Saturn and Uranus is the 'intermediator between the Old and personal (Saturnian) and the Modern (Uranian)'. He can show us HOW, in WHAT WAY can we realise ourselves.

This subject is wide in scope and one should search the net for him- or herself.

Lol I remember liz greene's post on www.astro.com about how 'One should not fight saturn, but get on with it and realize that this is life'. Kind of shit. I was like SURE, then I went and defeated saturn for another day in the line. Its hilarious how they infect Astrology with such crap. Another laughable fact is that these jewish astrologers make astrology seem empty, dull and stupid and only physical. While its a lot more, that if people knew, they wouldn't neglect its importance. Its like what they do to the new age meditations. Making meditation seem stupid or the ooooommmm kind of thing. They are the incarnations of deception.

Now that the kid is young, you can use and repeatedly use again the protective aura meditation around her and the protective energies of the rune Algiz. Before the shit hits the fan. Do this for 40 days straight if you can, then another 40. You have to do this, or like fate indicates in her chart she may become what you fear. Better make that up now, because fate is quite unpleasant and unrightfully smacks anyone on the head without question. Very nice that you looked into it, you can now change it. Stars matter.

Just wanted to say thanks again to Siguarddraconis, as I was looking up further info on Chiron using the link you provided and other searches, thoughts started flashing in my head directing me on how to deal with the energies of this Centaur in my chart. It was my GD helping me out, I felt her presence next to me (unmistakable, She is so Beautiful and Powerful!). It actually clarified other issues she'd been helping me with, to attain balance in the physical sense...Hail to Satan and the Demons/Domonesses, their willingness to help and guide us always astounds me. They are so wise!

And I'd also like to say congratulations on your new colour and development Hoodedcobra, you're an inspiration to me (and many others, I'm sure).

I am so far behind on posts now it will be another week before I can get caught up.

I would like to say something on this one though before I leave for the weekend. I do agree with replies to it as well.

The cycle of this planetoid is 51 years. I have had my return recently. I have been very cautious about giving it any real significance, but I have followed it for observation & most software will put it in your chart & treat it as any other planet. You will notice the return at age 51 as it is a conjunction, so the most powerful aspect. From my own experience, I can't say a lot for the rest of the transiting aspects as they seem too colored by other transits so I have reserved judgment. However, one can typically gain some insight from the mythology behind the name.

I would say that I did have to deal with healing a wound. Physical & otherwise. I will leave it at that.

Culled:

In ancient times, Chiron, the Wounded Healer, was originally a god of healing. In later mythology, as a teacher of heroes and an oracle, he survived as one of the centaurs. These wild creatures, half man and half horse, were not noted either for their sensitivity, or their intelligence and represented mankind's attachment to the lower animal passions. In modern astrology, he stands for the deep wounds in the subconscious that we have to heal.

A comet-like planetoid now called Chiron was discovered on November 1, 1977. This rara avis flies between the courses of Saturn and Uranus in a highly elliptical 51-year orbit, closer at perihelion to the Sun than Saturn and almost as far out at aphelion as Uranus. This has the effect of moving him swiftly through some signs, such as Libra, but very slowly through others, such as Aries. The current scientific position is that Chiron probably originated in the Kuiper Belt, a disk of objects orbiting beyond Neptune. Chiron's discovery marked the burgeoning of a new class of celestial objects now known as Centaurs. Although he was neither the first (if you count Hidalgo) nor the largest (Chariklo, Chiron's mythological wife) of many such minor planets to be discovered, Chiron still remains the most significant in terms of astrological significance.

Chiron, immortal son of Kronos (Saturn), governs healing and relationships & is typically called the wounded healer.

Unlike the drunken centaurs, Chiron was wise, with extensive knowledge of the healing arts, astrology, music and medicine. Heracles (Hercules) unintentionally wounded his teacher in the knee, during his battle with the centaurs. Thus his wound was in a sense self-inflicted, for he himself had taught the hero to make the poisoned arrow by dipping it in the blood of the Hydra.

The last of his kind, Chiron relinquished immortality so that the titanic rebel Prometheus who brought the gift of fire stolen from the gods to humans. Thus he died so that humanity might live. [sound familiar?] After his death, he was placed in the firmament as the constellation Centaurus, the Centaur.

Chiron is a knowledge-holder who transmits higher teachings, either as an outer teacher (Saturn), or as an inner teacher or spirit guide (Uranus). Embodying the archetype of "the wounded healer", Chiron stresses the importance of going within to find an answer and then sharing it with others.

His teachings are now resurfacing through the advent of holistic health and education. Chiron is often seen to be a "maverick", perhaps due to his eccentric orbit, and his closeness to Uranus.

Chiron, recently discovered, is not a traditional planet, so has no essential dignities, and no long history of research. Interested astrologers are at variance with regard to his influence and even his name! Modern astronomical discoveries like Chiron are sometimes seized upon by those who are dissatisfied with the way traditional astrology operates, thinking that if it's new, it must be important. This approach reveals a lack of understanding of astrological principles. The new discoveries (even Pluto, Neptune and Uranus) are still under consideration and are external to the framework of astrology, even though they clearly have effects on human behaviour and significant roles in generational transitions, natural events and so on. The jury is still out on them, as it is on Chiron, the Centaurs, the Asteroids and other notables such as the Galactic Center.

"In reality, the spirit is often chained up in the cellar, buried under ancestral rubble, until the wound of living has reached its density then spirit bursts through. At fifty, death is no longer just a psychological process or metaphysical metaphor; it is a physical reality. The pain of living is peaking. While death may seem unreachable, on a faraway horizon, nonetheless, it is visible, more visible that ever before. Moving towards that inevitability seems to also hold the key to a renewed release of spirit."

How does one defeat Saturn? I firmly believe for the weak Saturn is really bad but through meditation and empowerment even Saturn's energies could be put to good use and help you. I've been using it to bring on a greater sense of self discipline and it's serving me well. Saturn isn't going anywhere we should make the best of what is and what will always be.

Chiron doesn't seem to be of great importance from what I've read about it.

Zane Stein is said to be the person most knowledgeable regarding this centaur.

Chiron is neither an asteroid, nor a comet - the celestial body was named 'centaur' ;) This is an astronomical fact.

Yes, one should bother dealing with this body, as it provides some additional data, rather meaningful :)

You can find some articles in the net - type 'Chiron in signs' and 'Chiron in houses'. Surely, some of the authors WILL be kikes, but we are Satanists so Satanic reading is applicable.

To give an example - I've read Liz Greene's (jewess) article on Chiron. There are some paragraphs which state 'there is no way out of suffering, and one is bound to be liberated only by death' - this is from astro.com. The sentence (paraphrased) of course concerns the mythical centaur, the leader of his race, who, when wounded by Hercules could not pass away (a demigod - son of Phylyra and Cronus) so after he renounced his immortality by giving it to Prometheus, was he finally liberated, and after 9 days (9 is a number connected to Chiron) merciful Zeus placed him in the constellation of Saggitarius, the 9 zodiac sign. A Satanist WILL see the alchemical message. Corporeal death and liberation from the mundane, and thus one attains transcendence.

Chiron is not like a 'less powerful Saturn' - Chiron, travelling between the orbits of Saturn and Uranus is the 'intermediator between the Old and personal (Saturnian) and the Modern (Uranian)'. He can show us HOW, in WHAT WAY can we realise ourselves.

This subject is wide in scope and one should search the net for him- or herself.

Great info on Chiron, siguard. I always take Chiron into consideration.

It's important to notice that Chiron, being the "bridge" between Saturn and Uranus, the first transcendental planet, represents the path to transcendence itself through the healing/perfection of the soul. Chiron is the tutor of the demigods, and shows them the path to godhood. These are all also numerological characteristics of the number 9.

Despite its obvious connection to Sagittarius, some astrologers regard it as the true ruler of Virgo, given the similarities between their themes and overall influences, and I tend to agree with this. It really does make sense when you take some things into account.

Though empirical data on Chiron's influences is still very limited, there's information enough to get insight from it in a reading, and it's usually very valuable.

HOW do we know when certain planet's will mean good bad things? when the planet is close to how it was when we were born? or does it depend on where the planet is in certain houses or signs? is it when it's the opposite from that position at birth? or does it only depend on where certain planet are? does it depend on the actual planet?

Yeah its better to start now stars can have a powerful impact 40 days just keep doing this like hoodedcobra666 said but this is a rune to add or consider adding now so far as pronunciation I am going to help here since I always try to make things easier and do create sigils with runes and understand it can be confusing here is the Norweigen pronounciation what I always use for algiz
Algiz Elgr yy-ee-lll-ggg-rrrr
Bjork Bjarkan bbb-jjj-aaa-rrr-kkk-aaa-nnnn

Subject: Re: Planets chakras about the draining of my soul i have a scorpio stellum and this is a very true thing, ive been destroying myself because of the tendencies that come with it to the point of barely being in touch of my emotions which used to be a primary factor of my life and a very strong personality which was almost obliterated, but since coming to satan and meditating ive started to remember what those were like and slowly are coming back :)

personal story aside if you have this try to take a look at your life and see if what you're doing is worthy of your intense take at how you drive yourself.

Someone could have a stellium scorpio [generally powerful souls] and they could have been getting drained their whole life, or experiencing the destructive and self-destructive parts of Scorpio into their personality. A Satanist that meditates is by far stronger, but our chart is our baseline. Hope I helped with this knowledge, I try to understand these concepts too.

This is the one I've been waiting for. Mars in Scorpio, this is an excellent time to begin the Mars mantra and improve your Sex drive, Sex appeal, Willpower, Strength of all kinds, Athletic ability and even your ability to fight. For those of us who do Martial arts like myself this is an excellent time. I actually have natal Mars in Scorpio conjunct Sun which has helped me a lot.

However there is just one problem, just after Mars enters Scorpio Saturn will soon be entering this sign and will inhibit Mars's energies. Is it still okay to perform the Mantra?

Thanks.

How would Saturn inhibit Mars's energies? I have both planets in the same sign and house in my natal chart, and my Mars is VERY strong, HPS Maxine even wrote in my report that it offsets the bad things that Saturn could have caused for me. My Saturn could have me in a really bad place, if not dead, at least broken and shattered. But my Mars kicked it's ass and gives me that attitude so I'm here!

Oh okay thanks for clarifying. I didn't hear that specifically but I have heard a lot said about how Saturn restricts and hinders what it contacts. But I wasn't entirely sure whether it would cause the mantra to fail so I just wanted to be clear.

Thanks for your help.

I have wondered about having my that in my chart too, Lydia. I have a conjunction of these 2 planets, and every time I try to find out about it I read that it is bad. But they don't say how its bad or why, just that it is especially bad in Scorpio. I have them conjunct in my natal chart in Scorpio.

Mine are in Scorpio too. Mars is strong there since it co-rules Scorpio (http://www.angelfire.com/empire/serpentis666/TABLE.html), whereas Scorpio is a neutral sign for Saturn. Have you had a natal chart done by HPS Maxine? She can tell you more about it, since you have to take your entire chart into account.

Could someone point me to a post that talks about the recommended books and/or resources for learning astrology?

Also, to do a work for money using the hour of Jupiter, I'm not sure how to calculate the hour. I found a website that looks like it does it, but can someone point me to either something better, or is this the best way to do it.

Well I am not going to judge your comment other than to say that in astrology, we view them as challenges, regardless of the 'condition' or the specifics. Most people have some challenges. Those with few or no real challenges have a tendency to waste opportunities presented to them. Challenges should be targeted for success.

I have a natal Mars opposition natal Saturn. That is like pushing the gas pedal & the brake pedal at the same time. (There other manifestations.
That is just one example. There are also aspects to them & house conditions, which I won't go into.)

Sure, I will. In fact, I just did.

M18 well I want to bad enough but I waS born under some very bad signs most likely due to my past life energy kinda like a horse in a race with a thousand pound handicap on its back. Seriously I am doing what I can. My GD told me via pendulum that I am way behind spiritually from what I should be right now, but not my fault totally because someone that could have helped me refused to for their own OCD reasons I am guessing but I am still alive and doing what I can under these extreme conditions, won't get int it sniff sniff, but although we have responsibilty to learn no war was won alone, thus we have Hell's Army and it is not one person.. so I do my best and wait til it all comes together, at least I am in the race now.. if you think of me feel free to send me so golden energy *****

One never stops learning it & you can study it all of your life & probably never learn it all. People are always discovering new angles to it as well. I learned it obsessively/compulsively in my spare time over the course of about 3-4 years. During that time is when I stayed pretty buried in it. I had a different profession so it wasn't really easy. But if you want to know something bad enough you will do what you have to. I am self-taught in absolutely everything I do. There are courses that you can take. I believe Maxine has taken some. It probably would hurt if I did too at some point when the time is right. (That time isn't now.) But it depends on what you want to do with it as well.
How long did it take for you all to learn all this. It seems to me there should be a college just for this Thank you - that is for winblows. I use a Mac.

Date: Tuesday, 31st July

Time: Hour of Mars. You can use ChronosXP to work out the correct time for your specific location: http://chronosxp.sourceforge.net/en/

The Moon is going to be in the sign of Capricorn, a good time for turning our Gentile People against the enemy. Capricorn also offers the benefit of permanence with workings.

NOTE: The Moon is going to go Void after 7:30pm USA time, so ensure to perform the Ritual before this time if possible. If not possible, you may perform the Ritual on another day during the hours of Mars. The time given is, however, ideal due to the Moon Sign and anyone who is able should perform it on this day!

Target and Outcome: Raising hatred and anger against the jews.

Ritual Affirmation: "Our Gentile People despise the jews".

Using: Runes
- Hagal
- Fehu
- Odhal & Sigil

Link to Sigil: http://exposingthelieofislam.files.wordpress.com/2012/07/kikedestructionjuly2012.jpg

The Four Steps:
1- Open the Ritual
2- Read and burn the Ritual Prayer
3- Vibrate the Runes and Empower the Sigil
4- Burn the Sigil

As you vibrate the Runes and Sigil, you are going to direct the Energy raised into the Sigil to Empower it. The Energy will be programmed by the Affirmation. See the Runes on the Sigil vibrating with the Energy, performing its task. See the Energy encompassing and impregnating the Sigil.

----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Now is an exceptionally important time for all of our Brothers and Sisters to be engaging in Spiritual Warfare. The enemy is falling fast and is doing everything they possibly can to stay in power. It has been all over the news recently that they have been desperately trying to come up with ways in which to curb the recent rise in "anti-semitism" (Truth). Mitt Romney is currently over kissing israel's ass and swearing to defend the jews against our Gentile People in Iran. The disgusting abuse of our Palestinian Gentile People is continuing and more and more people are beginning to become aware of it. It is obvious that the enemy is desperate- therefore, WE WILL CONTINUE TO FIGHT THEM AND HIT THEM IN EVERY WAY POSSIBLE. We must be relentless! Especially when it comes to Spiritual Warfare. Every single one of us needs to be doing our bit.

HAIL SATAN!!

----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Step 1:
Begin Ritual

(Use either the Standard Ritual Format or the Grand Satanic Ritual): http://www.angelfire.com/empire/serpentis666/Ritual.html

Step 2:
Reading and Burning of the Ritual Prayer.

At the height of the Ritual, read out the Ritual Prayer with intent.

If you wish and something that is a very good idea to add Energy to this working, you can also empower the Ritual Prayer prior to the Ritual as explained by High Priest Vovim Baghie:

Light the Prayer in the Flame of one of the Candles and place it in the Burning Bowl. For the duration of the Burning, repeat the Ritual Affirmation while visualizing the outcome.
Feel the hatred rising. Raise as much hate as you possible can and infuse the prayer with it. Think of all of the pain and suffering our People have felt at the hands of the kikes. Think of the Destruction and Desecration of our Ancient sites and artefacts, of our Sacred Knowledge given to us by our True Father Satan. THINK OF THE BLASPHEMY AGAINST OUR GODS, and especially against our God Satan! All of this at the hands of the kikes. See our Gentile People turning against them.
Step 3:
Runic Vibrations

Once the Prayer has burned fully, place the Sigil on your Altar.

Begin the Runic Vibrations, starting with Hagalaz:
"HHHHAAAAGGGGAAALLLLAAAAAAAAATTSS" (The G is guttural and the TS like in "Pizza")
Vibrate a total of 9 times.
Direct the Energy raised by the Vibration into the Sigil by focusing on the Sigil and visualizing Hagalaz lighting up in a dirty red-grey colour. As you inhale, repeat the Runic Affirmation: "The Energies of Hagalaz are working to raise hatred and anger in our Gentile People towards the jews." focusing on the Sigil and directing the affirmation into the Sigil. As you exhale, vibrate the Rune.

Once you are done, repeat the Ritual Affirmation with intent.

Move on to Fehu: "FFFFFFFFHHHHOOOO" [] The e is pronounced like the e in "set"
Vibrate a total of 9 times.
Direct the Energy raised by the Vibration into the Sigil by focusing on the Sigil and visualizing Fehu lighting up in a dirty red-grey colour. As you inhale, repeat the Runic Affirmation: "The Energies of Fehu are working to raise hatred and anger in our Gentile People towards the jews." focusing on the Sigil and directing the affirmation into the Sigil. As you exhale, vibrate the Rune.

Once you are done, repeat the Ritual Affirmation with intent.

Move on to Ódhal:
"ÖÖÖÖTHHHHAALLL" (Ö is pronounced like the "u" in "fur").
Direct the Energy raised by the Vibration into the Sigil by focusing on the Sigil and visualizing the Odhal Rune lighting up in a searing red colour. As you inhale, repeat the Runic Affirmation: "The Energies of Odhal are working to raise hatred and anger in our Gentile People towards the jews." focusing on the Sigil and directing the affirmation into the Sigil. As you exhale, vibrate the Rune.

Once you are done, repeat the Ritual Affirmation with intent.

With a pen, write the Ritual Affirmation onto the Sigil while focusing on the outcome.

Light the Sigil in the flame of the candle and place it in the Burning Bowl. While the Sigil Burns, affirm that the fire is releasing the Energy onto the Astral to perform its job. Visualize the outcome.
Close the Ritual with "HAIL SATAN!! So Mote it Be!"

Ritual Prayer:
"We are the Sons and Daughters of the Mighty God Satan! By our DNA we are linked eternally to Him, and by our Souls, His Creations, we are His Children! We Stand Together tonight, united under Hell's banner, to call back our Gentile People! To awaken them to the Truth! May their anger and hatred for the enslavement that has been inflicted by the enemy be unleashed! May it sweep the Earth like a raging storm, bringing destruction to the culprits! Death to the enemies of Satan!! We declare that it is so, in His Sacred Name!!
SO MOTE IT BE!

HAIL SATAN!!
HAIL BEELZEBUB!!
HAIL ASTAROTH!!
HAIL AZAZEL!!
HAIL LILITH!!
HAIL ALL THE MIGHTY GODS OF HELL!!

HEIL HITLER!!
HEIL HEINRICH HIMMLER!!
HEIL TO ALL OF HELL'S TRUE HEROES!!

HAIL TO HELL'S ARMY, AND OUR CERTAIN VICTORY!!

------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

*Do not forget to thoroughly cleanse your Aura and Chakras once you are done with the Ritual. It is also a good idea to regularly cleanse your Ritual Space and banish any negative Energies. The Satanic Blue Flames instantly banish any enemy energies and thought forms. Severing the Link as stated by High Priest Vovim Baghie is also important:

Hail Father Satan!!
Hail Beelzebub!!
Hail Lilith!!

Heil Hitler!!
Heil Heinrich Himmler!!

I would be fine with the idea of dying and being reincarnated if i could be at least roughly the same as i am in this incarnation, but of course I could be completely different in the next life. I could be born with chart ruler conjuct Saturn, or Saturn in the 1st house, or any other shitty position and/or be someone I don't want to be. I guess the gods would be the only ones with any power to influence the natal chart. If indeed they do have this power, obviously outer planets (I consider planets further away from the sun than the earth to be outer planets) would be beyond their control, but what about the ascending sign, Venus/Mercury/Moon placements and chart ruler aspects? Could they possibly influence those?

I have the same personality as previous lifetimes, I know this from my memories and also reading biographies of my previous incarnation (or 2 incarnations ago if I had a short life before my currant one, I still need to find out exactly). Also, it just doesn't make sense for us to be completely different in each life. Our personalities are part of us, part of our souls, what makes us individuals.

My theory is that we reincarnate only when the planets suit our personalities. Our natal charts reflect who we are and what we've done. I believe this to be a natural way of the universe, as it's just illogical if we become completely different in each life, and the universe is logical. Therefore, I have much faith in my theory.

Re: Cazimi aspect

That's very reassuring, thanks for the reply. Out of interest: how could you read biographies of your past lives? Did you keep diaries in those lives and manage to track them down or something?

Just of one life, I was somewhat famous. Not an actor or anything like that but well known anyway. There are a few inaccuracies of course, but it was still really great reading about myself.

Lydia thats a truely beautiful observation and it makes sence too. Our individual souls have their own unique energys and so we reincarnate when the planets favour that very energys of our souls! I feel like im a very ancient soul but still very new in my development hehe.

HAIL SATAN!

That's great, those planets conjuncting your ascendant are fortunate. Lot's of mental and physical energy. Sun opposing Saturn means it's likely there's some issues with the father. I've also read it gives an "I shouldn't" attitude, like self censorship, the Sun is the conscious mind and Saturn is rules and restriction to put it into perspective.

I'm doing a basic natal report for a 3 year old. He has a bucket configuration with Saturn at the handle, and Saturn is also his ruling planet (Capricorn ascendant). And his Saturn is in Virgo, 8th house, which is bad for financial and job affairs, so I'm wondering how things will turn out. On the bright side, he has Jupiter and Venus conjunct his ascendant.

Subject: Saturn at the edge of the 1st House
I remember Saturn was discussed in the main JoS e-group - Message #40335. Yet, how will its interpretation AND energies' display look like if it is on the edge of the 1st House? Will it still be the 'protector' of the person and interpreted as in the 1st House, OR will it be interpreted as the 2nd House? The planet is less than a degree away from the the edge of the 1st House.

I can only speak on one point here, I have Saturn in the 8th house myself, all the problems I'm about to list I have had myself and have identified my 8th house Saturn as the cause, though myself having five planets in Scorpio (8th ruler) including it's ruler Pluto conjunct my ascendant, I am sure this placement may have had more impact on me than usual.

1) It's likely that he'll end up with feelings of guilt or shame around shared resources, such as friends paying for him when he's short on cash, parents helping him out with rent etc. Things like rent and money owed out, will weigh heavily on his mind as an adult.

(You may want to encourage him to learn to accept we all rely on other people and there is no shame in needing help, additionally I found being more willing to assist others financially helped me overcome that guilt)

2) In love and sexual affairs, he'll have difficulty allowing himself to give up parts of himself or his own life, such as spare time, sharing apartments etc, compromising in general, this goes beyond selfishness and is a much deeper fear. (8th house is where we dissolve parts of our ego and merge with others, Saturn rules restriction)

Sexually he'll have fetishes and desires which are unusual, maybe even perverse or sadistic and this could cause him to feel shame or embarrassment and keep them secret from others even his partners which will lead him being sexually unfulfilled.

The best cure for me was to just force myself to take the humiliation of being open and learn to laugh at myself, though with him being a Capricorn that will probably be more difficult for him.

3) He'll have difficulty coming to terms with major changes. Not self initiated changes (Uranus ruled) but the forces beyond our control (Pluto) the unavoidable changes, leaving home and becoming independent, growing up, aging, long term separation from loved ones, death, etc. And will try his best to push these thoughts out of his mind.

(It might be wise for him to be encouraged to confront these emotions and most importantly he must learn to accept all things must pass. I overcame this inhibition that way)

All these things interconnect btw, giving up part of yourself, death (endings long term changes), merging, sharing resources etc.

Hope this helps, if there is anything else you want to ask that you think I could help with let me know.

Hail Satan!

Is the Moon a considered a planet in Astrology? To me this question sounds a little ridiculous however, Monday is the Day of the Moon. The Moon seems to be used like it is a Planet. I know that the Moon is not one of the 9 Planets revolving around the Sun. But what about in Astrology?

How do you know when a planet is in a certain house? Also when would you be having a retrograde period? I had my chart done by HP Maxine.

--salvere--

I just bought the moon sign book an was whounding in november it says the moon is void on 21-23 an has a blank an goes to 25th does that mean the moon is void for pices 21-24 i realy need to know an hail satan

Maxine has said in the past, or at least from what I understood about what she said, that if the Ascendant's planet if Saturn, the Saturn will function in a positive way.

Post was in the main forum?

It CAN be classified this way, but the more appropriate term is 'luminary'. The Sun and the Moon are basically luminaries, if you want to be 100% correct ;)

Subject: Re: planets in houses

There are such things as Cusps of Houses. The cusps of the 1st, 4th, 7th and 10 House are major ones since they are aspected by planets, thus the planets give a 'tinge' of their own energy.

And as for the houses themselves, when you have, say, the cusp of your 3rd house in 10 deg. Capricorn, with the cusp of your 4th house in 4 deg. Aquarius AND if the planet is in 15 deg. Capricorn it means that you have it in Capricorn in the 3rd House.

Retrogrades happen regularly.

Mercury - thrice a year for about 24 days
Venus - every one and a half a year for 42 days
Mars - every two years for 80 days
Jupiter - annually for 120 days
Saturn - annually for 140 days
Uranus - annually for 155 days
Neptune - annually for 158 days
Pluto - annually for 160 days*

It is advisable to make your chart via www.astro.com. The 'R' next to the Planet in the sign means that this planet was in retrograde motion. The above mentioned, however, deals with periodical retrogrades, it is different with natal retrogrades. Safe to say, when a planet that is the old ruler of a sign (Mars of Scorpio, Saturn of Aquarius, Jupiter of Pisces) are retrograding the energies are internalised thus they are displayed in the way of the former signs (retrograde Jupiter's energies are displayed like those of Pisces)*

HP Maxine does a great job in interpreting our charts, as I too had it done :)

Does this help a bit?

Hail Father Satan!

Thanks for explaining that. I was looking it up yesterday and found both sides, some say yes, some say no. Now I know.

I did however find something interesting. I didn't know there were some dwarf planets as well as meteors used in Astrology, I wonder how important they are. Chiron is the only Fake in the mix.

For astrological purposes, the Moon is treated as though it were another planet, although it is, most obviously, not one.

Sexually he'll have fetishes and desires which are unusual, maybe even perverse or sadistic and this could cause him to feel shame or embarrassment and keep them secret from others even his partners which will lead him being sexually unfulfilled.

The best cure for me was to just force myself to take the humiliation of being open and learn to laugh at myself, though with him being a Capricorn that will probably be more difficult for him.

3) He'll have difficulty coming to terms with major changes. (It might be wise for him to be encouraged to confront these emotions and most importantly he must learn to accept all things must pass. I overcame this inhibition that way)

All these things interconnect btw, giving up part of yourself, death (endings long term changes), merging, sharing resources etc.

Hope this helps, if there is anything else you want to ask that you think I could help with let me know.

I am just now trying to learn Astrology to help time my workings I downloaded the chronos program and have all of the list of when what planet is in retrograde and all of that but It can be overwhelming trying to put it all togather can someone help me understand how to merge all of this information together?

Thank you

1st of all, I know the terminology.

2nd of all, I clearly explained the case. When you analyse a chart, you CAN explain separate parts, which constitute the WHOLE.

It is the same with the human organism. It can be discussed in terms of its liver, heart, brain, etc. YET the parts are the pieces of the whole.

And just how a natal planet can transit a chart - a planet that is STATIC - in a set position - and does NOT move?

The entire chart is telling us how the PERSON will behave. The sign and house with the aspects to planet yes, they tell us about how the planet will behave - but this planet solely.

And no, this is not about the anaretic degree - this concerns the zodiac sign, whereas I was asking about the house.

Example: the cusp of the 2nd house is in 21°12' Vir, and Saturn is in 20°45' Vir.

Salvere!

Siguard Draconis.

SATANAS VIA, VERA ET VITA EST.
VAE OMNIS TRADITOR!!

In another abominable display of just how lowly the lives of our Gentile People are in the eyes of the jews- a jewish murderer has been let off with a mere 45 day sentence for his crime that led to the death of two Gentile Women. The Women had been doing nothing but standing in what remained of their home which had previously been obliterated by the same jewish forces, and in fact displayed a sign of peace as they were approached. The jews went ahead and opened fire on the innocent civilians despite this. It is unfortunate that they were naive enough to believe they would be shown mercy and respect by a jew.

This calls back to mind the case of Rachel Corrie, a Gentile peace activist who was working in Palestine to attempt to prevent the destruction of the homes of innocent Gentile Palestinians by israeli thugs. She was brutally killed when one of the israeli demolition workers PURPOSEFULLY drove over the house she was standing in front of with a bulldozer. Again, this murdering jew got off with no charges.

Note how they come up with excuse after excuse to explain away the senseless killing of our Gentile People.

THESE PARASITES HAVE TO BE STOPPED. It is up to every single one of us to carry on fighting. Expose them before the eyes of the world, so that all may see their true colours. They have destroyed our past and STOLEN from us what is rightfully ours! They have insulted and blasphemed our Beloved Gods in the worst possible ways, and they have denigrated our True Satanic Heroes. They continue to slaughter our People like cattle in an abattoir, and this will not stop until they have been destroyed!

Thank you, High Priestess.

One thing jews love is to tell you they are jewish. It is our duty to call them on this wherever they rear they ugly heads. Let them know that it is NOT OK to be jewish, let alone to broadcast it as though it were something to be proud about.

Don't even trust the ones who seem tolerant. They still support "Israel", and the looting of gentile countries.

Thank you Racheal Corrie. We will remember you forever.

Transiting and Natal planets are different. When Transiting planets are in aspect with Natal planets, where they are in the Natal Chart, they trigger events in your life. Transiting planets in aspect with other Transiting planets (i.e. in aspect right now in the sky) aren't personal; but while everyone might feel it, the effects may differ depending on the natal chart.

Unless you have Natal Mars in the last 10 degrees of Libra, Saturn isn't conjunct your Mars (which is what matters more directly in your life). Transiting Saturn in Libra is in conjunction with Transiting Mars in Libra right now but not your Natal Mars.

The Saturn-Mars conjunction happening right now can be unpleasant for everyone (see in which house Libra falls in your natal chart for more details on where you might feel its effects).

Not likely, Saturn has been in Libra for the last 2 and a half years now and is on it's way into Scorpio. Any negative events that you were going to go through (as a result of this particular transit at least) would most likely have already gone. Check the degree to which your Mars is in libra at www.astro.com/ then see the degree to which Saturn is in Libra at now, if Saturn is past the degree to which your Mars was in Libra in your natal chart then the worst is over.

It CAN be classified this way, but the more appropriate term is 'luminary'. The Sun and the Moon are basically luminaries, if you want to be 100% correct ;)

I am just beginning to study Chiron, myself, but two books I plan on getting are

What significance, if any, does Chiron have, specifically in the 8th house/Virgo and in conjunct with Mars?

I don't mean to intrude on this string, but thanks for the heads up on the Saturn transit. Saturn is presently at an exact conjunction to my natal Mars at 24 Libra.

Not likely, Saturn has been in Libra for the last 2 and a half years now and is on it's way into Scorpio. Any negative events that you were going to go through (as a result of this particular transit at least) would most likely have already gone. Check the degree to which your Mars is in libra at www.astro.com/ then see the degree to which Saturn is in Libra at now, if Saturn is past the degree to which your Mars was in Libra in your natal chart then the worst is over.

Thank you both! Now I'm relieved. Mars is far away from Libra in my Natal Chart. I can't wait to get to the predictions part in learning, but I have to master the basics first.

Thanks again.

Even if it is a rock formation of some sort Chrion is not used by those who have advanced knowledge of Astrology. I heard Chrion is some sort of angelic garbage, something the enemy uses.

Additionally High Priestess Maxine does Not recognize Chrion as a Planet. Like I said, even if it is a large chunk of rock, ice or other space debris, it's of no significance to those in the know- Us Here.

Personally I choose to totally disregard Chrion, it's unimportant to me. I'm still learning about Astrology, therefore I am very careful where I get my information from. I'm most likely just going to stick to what has been provided in the files section. Later on, I will find out what other books are a good reference.

It can take up to 10 times longer to Relearn something, instead of learning it correctly from the start.

Hi guys. I wondered if anyone else has what is called a "cazimi". Cazimi occurs when Sun is in extremely close conjunction (17 minutes or less) with another planet. Such planet is called "The heart of the sun" and is much more powerful.

My cazimi is Mercury 10 minutes away from the Sun (both in Leo) in the 12th house. Mercury is also my chart ruler (I'm an ascendant Virgo).

Do any of you guys have this?

I have that too! Sun and Mercury 23 degrees and Jupiter 24 degrees in Virgo and the 8th house. One of my good friends has Sun and Mercury in Leo conjunct as well (don't know what house D:), we have a lot of stimulating conversations. Also planets in the 12th are subject to loss and misfortune, but since your Sun and Mercury rule the 12th and first house I guess that's pretty lucky then! I have Neptune and Uranus in the 12th somehow both rule my 2nd house, Aquarius on the cusp and Pisces intercepted, can't seem to save money nor do I really believe in it, like what is money it's imaginary, it is literally created out of nothing.

Anyway. Maxine said Mercury combust with the Sun can cause a mental blind spot, like overlooking your own behaviors or communications, or total focus on a goal and totally ignoring any interference or opposing opinions. It was in this group if you want to search for it.

Mercury is combusted when near the Sun UNLESS in Scorpio.

I've searched this topic and people who have SU and ME in Scorpio are lucky ones in this respect.

Yet I wonder how it is with SU and the trans-Saturnian planets in regards to Sun conjunctions.

Saturn has an aspect to most of my planets. What does mean (if anything) regarding my spiritual development?

I am trying to learn Astrology to emphasize my outcomes for workings and also to use Astrology to find out what times are favorable for me personally just in every day life.

Siguard, I have Sun conjunct Neptune (and Mercury, N. Node and Mercury) all in Scorpio, and it seems to me that the Sun-Neptune conjunction amplifies to a great extent both the desireable (art, intuition) faculties of Neptune, as well as the more difficult ones (confusion, dreaminess, not paying attention, etc).

The generation with Neptune in Scorpio certainly has their share of challenges, like right use of sexual energy, but since I am willing to work with it, I consider it a favorable, but intense aspect. Neptune's affect on Mercury has been profound, in my case, and I have had to apply much effort in "grounding" my thought processes. So, in a sense, Neptune's presence in my chart has had maybe some of the same effects of a combust Mercury.

Did I answer, at least in part, your question about trans-Saturnian planets?

So, in a sense, Neptune's presence in my chart has had maybe some of the same effects of a combust Mercury.

Mercury is combusted when near the Sun UNLESS in Scorpio.

I've searched this topic and people who have SU and ME in Scorpio are lucky ones in this respect.

Yet I wonder how it is with SU and the trans-Saturnian planets in regards to Sun conjunctions.

Do any of you guys have this?

I have that too! Sun and Mercury 23 degrees and Jupiter 24 degrees in Virgo and the 8th house. One of my good friends has Sun and Mercury in Leo conjunct as well (don't know what house D:), we have a lot of stimulating conversations. Also planets in the 12th are subject to loss and misfortune, but since your Sun and Mercury rule the 12th and first house I guess that's pretty lucky then! I have Neptune and Uranus in the 12th somehow both rule my 2nd house, Aquarius on the cusp and Pisces intercepted, can't seem to save money nor do I really believe in it, like what is money it's imaginary, it is literally created out of nothing.

Anyway. Maxine said Mercury combust with the Sun can cause a mental blind spot, like overlooking your own behaviors or communications, or total focus on a goal and totally ignoring any interference or opposing opinions. It was in this group if you want to search for it.

You don't have to have a YOD to have a higher purpose. I read the article on YOD and the higher ranking Nazis. Out of 100, only 6 had YOD. They managed to accomplish a great deal for our cause and get to a high position.

--- In JoS_Astrology@yahoogroups.com, "hoodedcobra666" <hoodedcobra666@...>

Well I feel very close to Satan etc, but as a matter of fact I have no Yod like many people do. I'm a warrior of Satan and I meditate a lot, advanced, with a strong sense of a certain purpose in life, but I don't have any Yod configuration. My chart is somewhat strange.

Now what about the place of the Sun on one's chart? I mean this is an underrated position and sometimes we neglect it. What does the Sun sign mean for a person, about their past lives etc?

> I studied a chart that the bearer had 21 Degrees of Scorpio at the star ukuluhai. Could this mean anything good in regards to his skill on black magick and destructiveness? In a positive Satanic sense of being a very good black magick worker. Because this doesn't seem like a good position to me.

Britt, what I suggest is that for workings, you learn the color associations of the planets and the gemstone and scent (essential oil) associations, too, and use those when you have studied the placements of the planets in the sky during the time of your projected working. This, of course, can be used in conjunction with a transit chart, or a knowledge of your natal chart, at least.

If a planet is retrograde, the way I understand it is that you can still use the planet in workings, but in a different way. For example, if you were seeking to understand the dynamics of a creative block regarding your painting or sculpture, you could use a Venus retrograde period to better-explore the energy of Venus and why you have felt cut off from it. In this case, a Venus connection to Mercury, Sun or ruler of chart would be helpful.
Retrograde periods help us to review our relationship to the specific planetary energy.
Remember that the Moon is probably the most powerful planetary energy in your workings, whether they be invoking or banishing in nature.

I am just now trying to learn Astrology to help time my workings. I downloaded the chronos program and have all of the list of when what planet is in retrograde and all of that but it can be overwhelming trying to put it all together can someone help me understand how to merge all of this information together?

Thank you
It could be whatever, Saturn is mainly malefic but you can turn this to your advancement and put a shade of 'seriousness' in this, which will greatly benefit you in your evolution through spirituality.

Subject: triangle in the sky past week southern sky
A few nights the past week I was walking home from the shops and I saw 3 points of light I assumed stars making a perfect triangle pointing straight up as it looked I was walking south - southwest looking at it. I googled and found a similar picture taken from USA only it was point down. It said it was Saturn, Mars and the star Spica. The 2 at the bottom were big and bright white and the star at the top dimmer but flickering different colours. The night it was the most perfect and brightest I had a very intense meditation. 'Spica' I think it is Spica tonight has moved out of the alignment and rising north - northwest as I am looking in that direction and Saturn and Mars are less bright. Is that what I was seeing? Did anyone else in the Southern Hemisphere see it and what kind of energy did you feel?

Subject: Uranus

Hi, I was wondering if there is a way to increase the amount of energy taken in from Uranus? I ask because much of my understanding of more complex ideas comes to me like how Uranus is described, that eureka moment that sudden realization. Is there a way to increase the frequency of this? I also read DAGAZ is like Uranus; anyone have success with that? Any advice would be greatly appreciated:

So you are trying to take in Uranus' energy into yourself for its benefits? You can try to invoke energy from Uranus. Absorb its positive properties. And I use the Dagaz rune for my sixth chakra. You can vibrate the Dagaz rune and program it to give you flashes of knowledge etc. Be creative.

Subject: Mercury Retrograde

My daughter recently traveled to another city to meet up with her brothers for a vacation. Sure enough, Mercury went retrograde about half way through the week and her non-stop flight home was cancelled and she ended up having to spend the night in a hotel put up by the airline. She managed to catch the next available flight home, but she had to transfer planes and sit through a 10 hour layover in Houston. This is very typical of Mercury retrograde.

Notable historical events affected by Mercury retrograde include:
The sinking of the Titanic [April 1912]
The sabotage of the Hindenberg [1937]
The sinking of the Spanish Armada in 1588 [an unexpected gale blew up]
Columbus set sail to India and by accident wound up in America [1492]
Atlanta Art Association chartered jet crashed in Paris, killing 130 [1962].
Astronaut Gordon Cooper experienced radar malfunction, which caused delay and was forced to do manual entry on the final mission of Project Mercury Space Program [1963]
European Space Communication satellite exploded upon takeoff [1977] Pakistani airline crash in Saudi Arabia killed 156; New Zealand airliner crashed in Antarctica killing 257 [both 1979]
Delta airline jumbo jet crash at D/FW airport killed 137 [1985]
AT&T phone operations disrupted for 9 hours [1990]
Hubble Space Telescope went into orbit seven years after launch date, with immediate communications problems [1990]
JAL Flight 123 - The crash of Japan Airlines Flight 123 in 1985 is the single-aircraft disaster with the highest number of fatalities. In this crash, 520 died on board a Boeing 747.

March 3, 1974, Turkish Airlines Flight 981, a McDonnell Douglas DC-10, crashed in a forest northeast of Paris, France. The London-bound plane crashed shortly after taking off from Orly airport. All 346 people on board died.

On September 1, 1983, a Soviet interceptor Sukhoi Su-15 shot down Korean Air Lines Flight 007 after it flew into Soviet airspace, killing all 269 passengers and crew [Mercury stationary, going retrograde]

The list is endless and the above are only a very few notable examples. Of course this does not mean that every flight, boat or train trip, etc., is doomed, as many disasters have occurred when Mercury was NOT retrograde and of course, many trips reached their destinations safely when Mercury WAS retrograde. My point here regarding Mercury retrograde is, if something can go wrong, the odds are that it very well might go wrong. Travel plans tend to get fowled up much more when Mercury is retrograde. Cars also break down more when Mercury is retrograde. Electronics and all communications also experience glitches when Mercury is retrograde.

Electronics, technology, all forms of travel, all forms of communications, contracts, leases 'DON'T SIGN, DON'T BUY ANY OF THESE WHEN MERCURY IS RETROGRADE!' computers, stereos, TV sets... not a good time to treat the arms, the hands, the lungs, the nervous system, the nose, the brain... telephones tend to mess up, the media experiences glitches...

Electronics, cars, boats, motorcycles; any transportation medium purchased when Mercury is retrograde or is about to go retrograde can experience malfunctions and other problems, much more than when Mercury is direct. This also includes signing important papers, leases, documents and such. You may overlook an important phrase or stipulation, or something may need changing. Test taking and exams may not proceed as smoothly. Buses often go on strike, there have been major riots that have occurred when Mercury was retrograde, meeting people can also go wrong, as giving precise and accurate directions and communications are off, snail mail is more likely to get misdirected and/or delayed.

One thing Mercury retrograde is favorable for is doing editing and revising. This is a time to go over anything written, your website, or anything that was begun when Mercury was direct and do editing, correcting and such. Research can also be favorable when Mercury is retrograde.

Travel, planning, communications, technology, education, business transactions; all areas ruled by Mercury have a much stronger tendency to be affected with glitches and delays. Plans are often altered by unexpected circumstances, such as Columbus winding up in America rather than India [very typical of retrograde Mercury], your house cusps that contain Gemini and Virgo, and the house with Mercury in it; the affairs of these can also go awry.
Mercury will be retrograding on Election day. So you can tell a major wrench is in the works. It will be retrograding back into Scorpio and that may indicate that election results may generate jealousy, vindictiveness or an intense public outcry. Thanks HP Maxine!

But since the Sun square is 30+ days long, we will be entering Libra in just 22 days. That means I should wait, correct?

Now, I don't know where Saturn is at the moment, nor where Jupiter is.

I don't know if it is a good time for me to begin my squares and mantras.

Can anyone tell me where Jupiter and Saturn are at the moment, and when a good time would be to begin these mantras and square? and....should I begin them at the same time, or should I do them one at a time?

No, as long as you START and BEGIN the mantra when the Sun Is in another sign other than libra and aquarius. The same goes for when doing a 40 day working and one day the moon is void all day it won't mess up your working.

Hello everyone, I've recently done an online astrology chart reading, but I'm still very new to the whole astrology and I want to learn as much as I can to help empower my soul and be more knowledgeable of the planets and their signs. I know for sure that I, being a gemini, have Mercury in my sign, but according to some facts there are two other planets, which I don't know of yet.

I was really hoping someone on here could help me learn how to read my chart, or if there is a good website that will allow me to learn all the different signs and such that will help me read my chart. I'll attach a photo as well of my chart so people can see it.

Each SIGN has their own traits and energies that make them fire or water etc. With Scorpio you are looking at just those traits and not the whole sign as a whole. Remember that's Mars traditionally ruled scorpio so there is some influence in there also remember that pluto rules Scorpio. Look at the plutonian traits. Scorpio is water but look to mars and pluto and you will see why it has some 'fiery' traits.Saturn isn't just poverty. Read up on Saturn more. Capricorn has the negative and positive traits of Saturn manifested within the sign.Capricorn are usually business-y and very ambitious and hardworking and successful because of what Saturn brings to the table.Saggitarius is a fire sign on its own. Look at its traits but Jupiter has to do with higher education and it rules Sagg which is a fire sign.It all has to do with the polarities and planetary energies. Pisces is the "wateriest of the water signs" because if you read up on water and the planet Neptune you will see why. This all ties in to reading astrology very carefully and paying attention to the signs separately and the planets separately and then putting them all together. It can be a bit complex. So what you need to do is carefully read up more on the planets and signs. Go to JoS website by the astrology index and read up about the planets and the signs.

Is it common to have siblings with the same rising signs or close? Me and 2 of my younger siblings have Capricorn ascendants and one has Saggitarius. Is this common or was that just a weird once in a while thing? It's funny though with transits it's usually a whole family thing like Uranus is in our third houses, we found out we had another brother that no one knew about.

I say we all do a SHIT LOAD of destruction rituals against romney to incite vindictiveness and jealous under the powers of mercury retrograde against him so that he gets NO votes at all :) and since jews are so fucking inferior then why not control them to take obama's side, though that may be bad because they always infiltrate shit plus they control both sides anyway, that is why smaller socialist and lesser known political parties are starting to rise up against both sides but that may have its faults too because they’ve been telling people not to vote for either Obama or Romney and vote libertarian which is kinda bad because how would that stop Romney?

She managed to catch the next available flight home, but she had to transfer planes and sit through a 10 hour layover in Houston. This is very typical of Mercury retrograde.

Notable historical events affected by Mercury retrograde include:

- The sinking of the Titanic [April 1912]
- The sabotage of the Hindenberg [1937]
- The sinking of the Spanish Armada in 1588 [an unexpected gale blew up]
- Columbus set sail to India and by accident wound up in America [1492]
- Atlanta Art Association chartered jet crashed in Paris, killing 130 [1962].
- Astronaut Gordon Cooper experienced radar malfunction, which caused delay and was forced to do manual entry on the final mission of Project Mercury Space Program [1963]
- European Space Communication satellite exploded upon takeoff [1977] Pakistani airline crash in Saudi Arabia killed 156; New Zealand airliner crashed in Antarctica killing 257 [both 1979]
- Delta airline jumbo jet crash at D/FW airport killed 137 [1985]
- AT&T phone operations disrupted for 9 hours [1990]
- Hubble Space Telescope went into orbit seven years after launch date, with immediate communications problems [1990]
- JAL Flight 123 - The crash of Japan Airlines Flight 123 in 1985 is the single-aircraft disaster with the highest number of fatalities. In this crash, 520 died on board a Boeing 747,
- March 3, 1974, Turkish Airlines Flight 981, a McDonnell Douglas DC-10, crashed in a forest northeast of Paris, France. The London-bound plane crashed shortly after taking off from Orly airport. All 346 people on board died.
- On September 1, 1983, a Soviet interceptor Sukhoi Su-15 shot down Korean Air Lines Flight 007 after it flew into Soviet airspace, killing all 269 passengers and crew [Mercury stationary, going retrograde] people, and another 500 more injured.

The list is endless and the above are only a very few notable examples. Of course this does not mean that every flight, boat or train trip, etc., is doomed, as many disasters have occurred when Mercury was NOT retrograde and of course, many trips reached their destinations safely when Mercury WAS retrograde. My point here regarding Mercury retrograde is, if something can go wrong, the odds are that it very well might go wrong. Travel plans tend to get fowled up much more when Mercury is retrograde. Cars also break down more when Mercury is retrograde.
Electronics and all communications also experience glitches when Mercury is retrograde.

>>> Electronics, technology, all forms of travel, all forms of communications, contracts, leases 'DON'T SIGN, DON'T BUY ANY OF THESE WHEN MERCURY IS RETROGRADE!' computers, stereos, TV sets... not a good time to treat the arms, the hands, the lungs, the nervous system, the nose, the brain... telephones tend to mess up, the media experiences glitches...

>>> Electronics, cars, boats, motorcycles; any transportation medium purchased when Mercury is retrograde or is about to go retrograde can experience malfunctions and other problems, much more than when Mercury is direct. This also includes signing important papers, leases, documents and such. You may overlook an important phrase or stipulation, or something may need changing. Test taking and exams may not proceed as smoothly. Buses often go on strike, there have been major riots that have occurred when Mercury was retrograde, meeting people can also go wrong, as giving precise and accurate directions and communications are off, snail mail is more likely to get misdirected and/or delayed.

>>> One thing Mercury retrograde is favorable for is doing editing and revising. This is a time to go over anything written, your website, or anything that was begun when Mercury was direct and do editing, correcting and such. Research can also be favorable when Mercury is retrograde.

>>> Travel, planning, communications, technology, education, business transactions; all areas ruled by Mercury have a much stronger tendency to be affected with glitches and delays. Plans are often altered by unexpected circumstances, such as Columbus winding up in America rather than India [very typical of retrograde Mercury], your house cusps that contain Gemini and Virgo, and the house with Mercury in it; the affairs of these can also go awry.

My fiance and I both have a rising sign of Leo. I believe that's how we connected on a social level so quickly. Many of our friends have said we come off similarly and I know this is why. Though my sun is in Virgo and his Cancer, so on a deeper level we are very different. It could be coincidental that you and your siblings have the same rising sign as you, I don't think it's a common pattern though.

Many times people in our lives were in our lives before, and we can see this connection in our natal charts. My brother and I have like 20-25 harmonious aspects when comparing our natal charts, and I know we have been close in many, many lifetimes ^_^
We won't get anywhere with the current system both sides screw gentiles, there was a nauseating loss of rights and the constitution is now basically obsolete. Congress has the real power anyway. What we will probably see with Pluto in Capricorn and Neptune in Pisces and the way the economy is, money will likely lose value and we'll see people revolt when the economic problems hit the US.

This also includes signing important papers, leases, documents and such. You may overlook an important phrase or stipulation, or something may need changing. Test taking and exams may not proceed as smoothly. Buses often go on strike, there have been major riots that have occurred when Mercury was retrograde, meeting people can also go wrong, as giving precise and accurate directions and communications are off, snail mail is more likely to get misdirected and/or delayed.

One thing Mercury retrograde is favorable for is doing editing and revising. This is a time to go over anything written, your website, or anything that was begun when Mercury was direct and do editing, correcting and such. Research can also be favorable when Mercury is retrograde.
Travel, planning, communications, technology, education, business transactions; all areas ruled by Mercury have a much stronger tendency to be affected with glitches and delays. Plans are often altered by unexpected circumstances, such as Columbus winding up in America rather than India [very typical of retrograde Mercury], your house cusps that contain Gemini and Virgo, and the house with Mercury in it; the affairs of these can also go awry.

Is it common to have siblings with the same rising signs or close? Me and 2 of my younger siblings have Capricorn ascendants and one has Saggitarius. Is this common or was that just a weird once in a while thing? It's funny though with transits it's usually a whole family thing like Uranus is in our third houses, we found out we had another brother that no one knew about.

I was really hoping someone on here could help me learn how to read my chart, or if there is a good website that will allow me to learn all the different signs and such that will help me read my chart. I'll attach a photo as well of my chart so people can see it.

Hey all,

I have a very serious looking Saturn Conjunct Pluto arriving swiftly in November. I actually just met the man of my dreams and we fully intend on getting married. I want to make sure this isn't an indicator of death or serious misfortune, because it certainly seems like it.

Pluto's in my 11th House, Saturn in my 12th, so close to my Ascendant that it's technically in first house. Ascendant in Sagittarius, Pluto in Scorpio, and Saturn in Sagittarius. Should I be worried? I'll definitely be doing a lot of energy work to off-set the potential negative energies of this transit. I'm just planning on packing up and moving to another city with my fiance, scheduled in part to coincide with the middle of November. Should I be especially worried?

Subject: Jewish media admits Nazis NOT responsible for massacre of Polish Gen

"WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The American POWs sent secret coded messages to Washington with news of a Soviet atrocity: In 1943 they saw rows of corpses in an advanced state of decay in the Katyn forest, on the western edge of Russia, proof that the killers could not have been the Nazis who had only recently occupied the area."

"The Soviet secret police killed the 22,000 Poles with shots to the back of the head. Their aim was to eliminate a military and intellectual elite that would have put up stiff resistance to Soviet control. The men were among Poland's most accomplished officers and reserve officers who in their civilian lives worked as doctors, lawyers, teachers, or as other professionals. Their loss has proven an enduring wound to the Polish nation."

"But returning to their POW camps, the Americans carried a conviction that they had just witnessed overwhelming proof of Soviet guilt. The corpses' advanced state of decay told them the killings took place much earlier in the war, when the Soviets still controlled the area."

As we know, the Soviet Union was Jewish through and through, including Stalin himself. It was the jews who were responsible for the deaths of MILLIONS of Gentile Men and Women, and NOT the other way around!

It is extremely telling that an article such as this has actually been publicised within the Media at this time. The jews are losing power, and people are waking up!!

Another thing this article proves beyond a shadow of a doubt is the US government of the time was working with the jews and against the Gentile People.
This atrocity is one of many examples of how our People have met gruesome fates at the hands of the enemy. One only needs to research Dresden to find another example of this. Again, the jewish run governments were responsible for this horrific event.

OUR PEOPLE ARE WAKING UP, and it is time for us to step up the fight!

Do 2 workings of 40 days with the rosary and you will be fine. During this time, work on putting an aura of protection around your fiance like 3-4 times a day. Of course follow this up with your meditations. I don't know what to tell you as I'm not very astrologically knowledgeable at the given, but this could somehow jumble changes/evolutions that you have planned [according to the house thes are in], if it comes into your life like that.

HAIL SATAN!!!!!!!!!!
Is Saturn making any aspects to Mercury and/or, to a lesser extent, Mars? Mercury is the ruler of your 7th house and hard aspects to Saturn may bring problems to your relationship and/or your significant other. Mars rules men in general and can give some important data.

Do you have any planets in your natal 7th house? Depending on how well aspected and dignified they are, they may offset some of Saturn's evil influences.

Jupiter is transiting your 6th or 7th house right now, bringing good things to these areas of your life.

You are nearly at your first saturn return and life tends to get upside down when this happens. It's not quite there yet, but soon Saturn will be opposing your Descendant, and this can be unfortunate. I personally wouldn't worry much about the saturn-pluto conjunction bringing problems or death to the one you love, but I'd surely start working on Saturn Squares and other energy work to offset the oncoming conjunction to your ascendant.

Which house(s) does Pluto rule? If it's your 12th, there may be some hidden issues coming up with this conjunction. Maybe very powerful (Pluto) hidden enemies who would undermine your goals. As Saturn is transiting your 11th, there may be some kind of isolation from friends or even lack of aid or sympathy from the groups you are part of. This isn't especially bad, since your focus right now is on yourself and your fiancé. This may be just an obvious consequence of your decisions: you're moving somewhere new, and it's just normal to be alone in the first moments. The 11th, however, is also the house of goals and Saturn brings frustration, so it's good to safeguard your progress with meditation and obstination to complete whatever you set out to do.
This, of course, concerns only the current transits. To have a broader understanding of what is to come, it's important to examine your solar return and progressions.

Subject: Horary Astrology

This branch of astrology has been keeping me very busy these days. My interest in this grew very quickly but there aren't many reliable resources out there.

For those who don't know, Horary Astrology is a very ancient practice that uses charts for divination. A chart is cast for the moment the astrologer receives or comes up with a question. The chart is then examined to assure its veracity and, if everything is right, the astrologer begins interpreting the chart to give an answer. Interpreting the chart, however, is very complex. A lot of details count and can change everything.

It is said these charts can answer almost any kind of question, they can be used to find lost objects, people and foresee death.

While I go deeper on the subject myself, has anyone here had any experience with this? Anyone willing to share information or experiences?

As the exact date/time has yet to be determined, and I have been having mixed results with my pendulum I am wondering if anyone knows where I can get accurate information regarding an astrological approach to understanding a parent/child relationship. My husband is a Cancer with a Moon in Aries and I am a Virgo with my Moon in Aquarius. Both of us have a Leo Ascendant.

It is expected that our child will be born April 2nd 2013, though my husband has a strong feeling it will be on April 5th. We had both wished to have an Aries baby, so we couldn't be more thrilled.

I would like to know if it is the Sun sign I should be interested in regarding parenting or if perhaps our Moon sign or possibly Venus will be more helpful. Any and all protective energy and blessings are greatly appreciated. I am looking forward to my child having a wonderful support system through our amazing Gods, Goddesses and the children they love so much. Hello brothers, sisters!
I have a question, as am a beginner in astrology, I would like recommended books that can help me understand what exactly are houses, ephemeris, and how could I make and read a chart. I read the JoS astrology pages but found myself seeking understanding in what it meant! I read other pages seeking how to make a chart, but found a confusion in understanding what it meant, ascendant signs and latitude and longitude are also confusing. I looked through the files but still I seek a beginner guide. I would really like to pursue and learn astrology so I seek help! Books or any sources of help would be greatly appreciated.

Hail Satan!

Thank you very much.

Hey

I am totally new to astrology and had never looked into it before I became a SS, and I am totally lost.

Where did you all learn astrology to begin with?

Are astrology books online and in the local library reliable sources?

For example, I don't know how to find out what sign the moon is in, when I "have a saturn"? These are just examples, I'm totally lost and would really like to learn.

Thanks!

Subject: Re: Sun Sign Compatibility (Parent/Child)

Congratulations on your new family member!! :)

I would say, it's hard to know anything until the child is born. But (I assume) you are a Dedicated Satanist, so whatever child is born, there should be a loving bond there regardless.

All parts of one's chart are relevant. Nothing is "just there" - you have to look at everything if you want to truly understand.

The Sun represents the Father, the Moon is the Mother (you) - so whatever positions these planets are in, aspects, houses, etc. will indicate how the child will generally react to their parents - the Sun being the Father and the Moon, the Mother. Saturn plays a role here as well, as Saturn is authority in general, and is often linked to the greatest authority figures in the child's life. Often this is the Father. Saturn also deals with old age and tradition, so grandparents can tie in here as well.

As for your charts - what is in your 5th house? Your husband's? This is the most blatant indication of how your children wind up. If there is a prominent Mars in your/your husband's 5th house, or if Mars is very strong in the child's chart, then consider giving the child plenty of sports equipment early on, or exposing them to outlets for physical energy. This will help to ensure that they wind up athletic and not an asshole (which are two potential manifestations of Mars).

It sounds like you may very well have an Aries child. You may get more than you bargained for - barring other contrary influences, these are arguably the most headstrong people in the zodiac! Fortunately, their anger doesn't usually last long so once the fight is over you can usually just get on with your lives.

If they have a prominent Saturn for example, then be aware that they may feel confined by authority and may need extra encouragement to express their feelings and desires, which is important. Don't go easy on them as far as discipline, but always explain to them WHY they must be disciplined when the time arises. Talk to them like an adult. Also, it can be important for these people to understand history, as Saturn deals with time. Expose them to what they need - you are the Mother. Your instinct will tell you more than I possibly could.

The thing to do is to look at their chart, understand them as a person and what makes them tick, and then think about what they NEED as a PERSON to develop. THEN, consider the parts of your charts that deal with the relationship between parent and child, and consider the best APPRAOCH to GIVE them the things that they NEED.

This is all very hypothetical though, until the child is born and you can draw up their astrology chart.

Just pray to Satan for a safe childbirth and a healthy child, and I am sure all will be well. Congratulations!!

HAIL SATAN!!

I know for romantic relationships Mars, Venus, the Sun, and the Moon are really important, I guess they're all important, it's a really good question. I would look at your child's expected birthday and look at where the Moon and Sun are at since they're the parent planets.

Synastry is all about relationships, it's pretty interesting.
http://www.cafeastrology.com/articles/synastry.html

I would also looks at your own chart to see what's in the 4th house or aspects the IC since it's all about family affairs. The 5th too since it tells you about what kind of children you will have.

Also grats!

My family, fiancé and I are all really excited. I should have mentioned before that we both had a super strong feeling it was twins, I just didn't want to believe it because I have such a small frame. I was 5'6 and 115lbs before I got pregnant. I now weigh 123 and its only been 12 weeks into the pregnancy. I thought it was strange I can already see a little baby bump when many first time moms go 4-5 months before they really show.

As the exact date/time has yet to be determined, and I have been having mixed results with my pendulum I am wondering if anyone knows where I can get accurate information regarding an astrological approach to understanding a parent/child relationship. My husband is a Cancer with a Moon in Aries and I am a Virgo with my Moon in Aquarius. Both of us have a Leo Ascendant.

It is expected that our child will be born April 2nd 2013, though my husband has a strong feeling it will be on April 5th. We had both wished to have an Aries baby, so we couldn't be more thrilled.

I would like to know if it is the Sun sign I should be interested in regarding parenting or if perhaps our Moon sign or possibly Venus will be more helpful. Any and all protective energy and blessings are greatly appreciated. I am looking forward to my child having a wonderful support system through our amazing Gods, Goddesses and the children they love so much. Thank you Brothers and Sisters, may we live to learn and fight until our souls are complete.

Congrats on the twins. We are glad it’s just one heartbeat they heard for us though. We only want one healthy girl. The Gods has already told us she is very advanced from previous incarnations too.

Continuing the thread regarding my pregnancy... I just had my ultrasound and I'm having twins!! They look healthy! This is such a blessing. The only difference they will likely have is a rising sign. My family, fiancé and I are all really excited. I should have mentioned before that we both had a super strong feeling it was twins, I just didn't want to believe it because I have such a small frame. I was 5'6 and 115lbs before I got pregnant. I now weigh 123 and its only been 12 weeks into the pregnancy. I thought it was strange I can already see a little baby bump when many first time moms go 4-5 months before they really show.

Congratulations sister! I’m very happy for you. Many blessings to you and those babies.

Subject: Jupiter

Hi, I have Jupiter in detriment and retrograde in my chart and also no Sagittarius planets. I’ve also never meditated on this planet or worked with it's energy in any way. So I am totally not experienced with this planet or energy at all.

I have heard many good things about Jupiter though and the more I am reading it seems to be a very important planet in terms of getting opportunities and generally improving your life. I know it sounds stupid to say is this the reason for my bad luck or difficult life because I know almost everyone feels like that sometimes. But is someone who lacks Jupiter/Jovian energy missing out in life or prone to hardship?

Please share thoughts, knowledge and experiences.

Thanks!

Well not neccesarily. The hard luck etc is mainly because of Saturn and mars or any other planetary influence that would give you hard times. But having Jupiter and or sun can really offset many saturn transits. What you should do is do the sun square spiritual when the sun leaves libra. Also when Jupiter goes into cancer you can do the jupiter square and invoke energy from it :) Jupiter is a great planet.

Simple answer:

Everything has polarity, good & bad. Mainstream astrology over rates Jupiter. Most of the time, Jupiter generally represents expansion & growth, good or bad. Too much if anything, even if good, can be bad. Keep in mind too that the planets are not the signs & the signs are not the planets. There are many times where Jupiter has pissed me off as badly as Saturn usually does.

Wish I could start posting regularly again here, but I just don't have time at the moment.

Saturn gives hardship, Jupiter gives good luck.

So, yes, having a poorly placed Saturn or a poorly placed Jupiter does make one's life worse.

Fortunately, Satan shows us how to improve this. Just because your Jupiter isn't well-placed doesn't mean your life is gonna be terrible. I know people with poorly-placed Jupiters who live very fulfilling lives.... though of course, their lives aren't perfect and could be better.

When Jupiter enters Cancer in 2013, I would jump on the opportunity to perform multiple Jupiter Squares:

http://www.angelfire.com/empire/serpentis666/Jupiter_Square.html

With knowledge and the application of that knowledge, we can prosper far beyond those who are without.

HAIL SATAN!!
This is not a pretty transit but it certainly doesn't mean someone is necessarily going to die. What it DOES mean is that your resources will be limited, more than usual. Authority figures (boss, police, government) may impose themselves on you in ways that are uncomfortable. I wouldn't jump into any commitments while this transit is occurring... strained resources are a prime reason why relationships suffer or collapse. This is a test.

Not only is it a potential test of your relationship, but it can also test your general sense of personal power, your sense of freedom, and your job/career. Legal troubles are more likely at this time. Of course, nothing serious at all may manifest. It depends on how strong your soul is and whether there is any bad karma lingering about. But you won't know for sure until you know for sure.

Of course, do what you are going to do. But once you sign papers and a wedding is official, then the only way to get rid of the person is divorce, and divorce is a very messy thing. Believe me.

If I were you, I would just live my life and be happy. Meditate and just generally be careful. Avoid trouble with the law. If you have a man that you are head-over-heels for.... you said you "just met" him?? I don't care WHAT astrological transits are happening, it is NEVER a good idea to marry someone you "just met." That makes no sense.

The most I would do is move in with this person and live as though you were married. Share a home, share a bed, continue in your careers or whatever you do, share the money, whatever. But marriage itself is awfully official and people rush into these things thinking it's "romantic" and all this nonsense when in reality the only thing that matters worth a goddamn is the relationship you have with the person. Being married will never make a relationship better. It only makes it worse.

I'm not saying marriage is a bad thing. When you marry the right person at the right time, it is beautiful and a source of great joy. But once you are married, you've "made your choice" and when people have made permanent decisions like this, they start getting lazy and/or restless. Something to think about.

HAIL SATAN!!

Mars co-rules Scorpio. Mars is therefore unusually strong when in this sign.

Just do the squares and that's it.

Saturn does rule Capricorn but it also traditionally rules Aquarius.

Fortunately, Satan shows us how to improve this. Just because your Jupiter isn't well-placed doesn't mean your life is gonna be terrible. I know people with poorly-placed Jupiters who live very fulfilling lives.... though of course, their lives aren't perfect and could be better.

When Jupiter enters Cancer in 2013, I would jump on the opportunity to perform multiple Jupiter Squares:

With knowledge and the application of that knowledge, we can prosper far beyond those who are without.

I had a question about Earth and its influence on our natal chart. I recently was touching up on my astrology and was reading some stuff where an astrologer was pointing out that Earth isn't emphasized enough in our charts. He was saying since all planets have an effect on us and seeing as how Earth is a planet then why wouldn't it have an influence as well. Most astrology sites I've read from and even the JOS don't ever mention an Earth sign. I was just wandering if the Earth does have an effect on our natal charts and if it does why is it never really mentioned? I should also point out the astrologer's hypothesis was the ascendant was our Earth sign. Well I would like to hear anyone's thoughts on the subject. Thanks.

Either the astrologer is a cheat or you misunderstood what he was saying.

Every beginner of astrology learns that there are two luminaries, the sun and the Moon, the inner planets (Mercury, Venus) and the outer ones (Mars up to Pluto).

When a chart is cast, it is cast from a geocentric position. If we were born on Neptune, we wouldn't include Neptune n the chart. If on Pluto, we'd not have it included, etc.

The reason why no astrology sign mentions the Earth as a planet is stated above.

Great, my theory is that he was a cheat. There IS NO such thing as the Earth sign - and this hypothesis can be proven by any other REAL astrologer who knows what he or she is dealing with.

Charts would definitely be compatible. Not the same, but complimenting each other very much. I'm fairly new at astrology but a natural talent for it is even shown in my natal chart (HPS Maxine wrote that in my natal report), and you and I are friends so if you want someone to take a look for free I'd love to, if you feel comfortable with that.

In my opinion this can be due to the fact that you are unconsciously using energies from your soul to boost the Solar Revolution outcomes.

Some sort of auto-ritual that your mind performs while it's the right moment.

In my experience depression can be due to a temporary loss of spiritual energy/aura power. So, as the Sun-Sun conjunction is not expected to lower your energies, this is probably due to the fact you are using much of your energies to achieve some sort of goal, in that very moment.

This is my own interpretation

Our natal chart shows where the planets and constellations are from the Earth's point of view and the houses show the rotation of the planet. Earth definitely has an electromagnetic field but since we're enveloped in it all the time you can't really study it unless you lived on another planet.

Try to keep your energies high. Depression can mean inconsistencies in your meditations.

Now, as for the birthday. Everyone is somewhat vulnerable 2 weeks on either side of their b'day. I don't know the exact details for the lore and tradition of giving presents, but from what I heard, this was to ward off evil. Now, this doesn't mean that anything real bad or drastic will happen, but it is wise to be aware.

In my research, I have come across people who have died within 2 weeks of their b'day and other things. I am in sort of a hurry here, but another example is Sylvester Stallone losing his son and some other tragedy within 2 weeks of his birthday. Stallone born July 6th, 1946; his son died July 13th 2012. This case is extreme.

Transiting saturn was within orb of conjoining his chart ruler jupiter [18 degrees of libra] and moon [22 degrees of libra]. This saturn also was in very wide orb of his sun [9 degree gap], the sun is the natural ruler of children; transiting pluto within orb of a trine to 8th house mars, ruler of his fourth house of home and family; the 8th is the death house. Natal Mars at fatal 9 degrees of virgo, conjunt fixed star zosma of suffering rules his fourth house of home and family.

I have learned much over the years by researching events in the lives of notable people. I have seen quite a few major events occur within 2 weeks on either side of the b'day. Always keep yur energies high through meditation, especially near your b'day.

Look to the house/s that have Aquarius on the cusp; also the house with uranus. There could be a crisis coming that involves an affair ruled by these houses in some way. Transiting Saturn squaring uranus can also indicate being in a pressure situation of which you want to break free of, but can't, due to restrictions of some sort- i.e...lack of money, family ties, etc.

Transiting saturn in scorpio is not a good time for scorpios, especially those who have several planets in scorpio. Keep your energies high through meditation. This also hits on taurus, aquarius, and leo, as these signs will be opposed [taurus] and squared [leo and aquarius] by saturn. Keep your energies high and this will drastically reduce the negative effects of saturn. I know from direct experience concerning this.

I ran across a post but can't find it- sun to sun compatibility. When two people's suns square each other, their egos clash, especially if in fire signs, like aries [the worst for this].

Mars causes strife and emotional outbursts and in extreme cases, violence. When transiting mars makes a hard aspect to the moon [domestic strife and upsets], or chart ruler [emotions can run high]. This I note usually occurs when mars is approaching within 1-2 degrees of exact. For example, say you have a Leo moon at 14 degrees; when mars hits 13 degrees of leo, aquarius, scorpio or taurus, you will feel the effects. Mars in trine aspect can do the same, but lesser. I have noted times of frenzied activity with the trine- tons of work, fast paced, loads of to do's and such.

Saturn always gets the bad rap [obviously], but I have noted in charts that either have an unaspected saturn, or saturn with no hard aspects, the lives were anything but happy. One woman I knew had a life in total chaos. Ssaturn is known for stability and this woman had NONE. By the time she was 30, she had been married 5 times, she had 3 kids [not from any of the husbands], she put all three up for adoption [one was 4 at the time], and this haunted her every single day of her life. Her self-esteem was total shit, her health was horrible, she could never stay very long on a job or live very long at any permanent residence, as circumstances always came up. She was bi-sexual, but went through men [no stable relationships of either sex]. She had 29 of scorpio with sagittarius intercepted in the first. Ruling Pluto at one of the worst degrees 15 of Leo.

Saturn at its positive gives endurance and stability.

This makes perfect sense of the fact that my children and I (I'm pregnant with twins) almost died one week ago today which was exactly one week after my birthday. I'm happy to be away from that danger period and am devoting a great deal of time to be sure there will be no issues in the future. Thankfully, we will be ok... An interesting thing I read about Caput Algol..
"Algol often indicates violent death, but it does not exclude elevation and wealth. Robson considers it the worst star. Junctinus of Florence believed that when in it is in conjunction with the Sun or the Moon, or the ruler of the Ascendant, or the ruler of the 8th House, the individual is very likely to experience a violent death. It is only when it is in conjunction with Jupiter, and when the said conjunction receives soft aspects, that Algol may bring about power and wealth."
I know someone personally that has Jupiter conjunt Algol and that is very true.

Thank you for letting me know this. A good friend of mine is a Scorpio, we'll have to work together and keep our energies up.

Is this a bad time to perform any love spells? Venus rules love and attraction and Virgo is the sign of Celebacy. I know when the moon is in Virgo love spells shouldn't be done but is this the same when Venus is in Virgo too?

Thanks.

When moon is in Virgo SEX spells should not be done. If you want to do a love spell begin it when moon is in Taurus, Cancer, Leo or Libra. Libra is best. Venus is weakened in Virgo so if youy want to do a love working that is STRONG then your best bet is ti wait until Nov. 2nd, 9th or 16th to start the venus square because it will be STRONG in Libra.

I don't know if there is a way to strengthen Pluto but if you wanted to use some of its energies then you could try invoking it but be a bit careful when doing so. You can program your aura to absorb Pluto's energies in a positive way. If there was ever a Pluto square then maybe lol

You do not need a mantra to work with a planet's energy, you can simply meditate on the planet or it's symbol and once you feel it's energy draw it into yourself.

But please listen to what I have to say next as it's important, I have to warn you of some things.

I have worked with Pluto's energy extensively for several years now. It's a personal planet in my chart and it's energy is a lot stronger than any other planet in our solar system, second only to the Sun and other Stars. Pluto can also be an extremely dangerous planet for those who don't know what they're doing and it's energy is very very difficult to handle.

Unless you are exceptionally powerful and know your own mind very well, this planet's energy will control you, instead of the other way around.

This is because Pluto works with your unconscious, over which you have no control and where your ego has no say whatsoever. It's energy will bring up buried emotions and these can be things you don't even know you have and can manifest as a sudden urge to be violent, with hate and rage for example. Or it can attract situations that bring up these emotions into your life and this can be more than just a little upsetting, this can result in a lot of destructiveness.

But this is HEALTHY but you have to remain aware of what's going on and be in control of yourself, make sure you are at the level where you can control your thoughts and feelings at will.

Despite what the RHP tells you about the self beyond the conscious ego, it's not all "love and light". There are no concepts or morality at this level and because it's usually the destructive and "immoral" things which we are forced to block, it's usually these which come out with Pluto, which makes Pluto same more destructive than what it really is.

It makes no difference if you think child molestation is evil, or wanting to collect teddy bears is unmanly and makes you a wussie, or not wanting to work makes you a lazy bum, if any urges like that are in your unconscious Pluto will bring them out for better or worse. And nobodies opinion on these things matter to your unconscious mind, not even your own. I'm not saying it is any of those things, just making an example.

Like when Venus is in Libra conjunct Spica (which will be 24.5 degrees in Libra for 2012). With that same logic, say you started the Venus square in Taurus while Venus was conjunct Caput Algol the results could be less fortunate.

I have found pluto all by itself to be a neutral planet, especially in predictions, its influence conforming to the planet it is come into contact with more than anything, but it can operate for positive events and also malefic events. In any event, its influence is major transforming changes.

Pluto's transits include births, deaths, marriages/permanent relationships, obsessive and very painful love, obsessions, permanent disabling accidents, issues of power, major domestic changes of all kinds... When Pluto hits something it is permanent. Pluto in the first house of a solar return signifies a 'first in the life.' I had this when I had my first baby as a teenager. This was very transforming in becoming a new mother and was permanent.
Pluto is power. It can also be brutal. Pluto in the seventh [marriage/partnership] house can bring an obsessive, jealous, controlling spouse/partner who is extremely abusive.

Pluto in the fourth [mother/home and family] often indicates an overly controlling and dominating mother. Same applies to pluto/moon aspects [moon rules the mother], and pluto/sun [sun rules the father]. With the pluto here, the impressions run very deep regarding the parent. I knew of a case where a man grew up without a father and it scarred him deeply. He had a tight pluto/sun square in his chart.

People who have pluto/venus aspects, even with the trine, their feelings run deep. They can become obsessive in love relationships. They are jealous by nature and controlling. No amount of love is enough love. Like...’if we could get any closer, you would be in back of me.’ Definitely not for the lighter air signs, as pluto/venus wants total possession of their loved one.

Pluto/mercury is a good combination to have as this aspect, especially with the conjunction, square and opposition, and to a lesser extent the trine; this one makes a natural mage as people who have this have the gift to focus and concentrate their minds to an almost piercing level, depending on how close the aspect it. The tighter the orb, the more pronounced the influence. These people also are snoops by nature.

Pluto/mars- the do or die aspect. These people will use force or whatever means is necessary to achieve their ends and can be deadly enemies. They are fearless and cut-throats. Rarely neutral about anything. Either love it or hate it.

Pluto in the houses is where you have your obsession, or in some cases, power issues. Pluto in the third house- an obsession with knowledge and one who keeps repeating one's self and communicates intensely. Pluto in the eleventh will often bring powerful friends. Pluto in the twelfth can indicate intense loneliness unless this energy is sublimated through meditation, then it becomes power.

Pluto is nothing to experiment with. This planet, though not a malefic per say, goes beyond saturn when it comes to its power. Natural ruler of the eighth house, the house of transformation and death.

Draco, you are a hundred percent right. Splendid. I agree with every line you wrote and thank you for this specification, it helped me. I am going through a square Neptune/Uranus and it brings me so much destruction from my unconscious. I can 'block' some of it, but it surfaces and I can't do much about it. To be honest I actually enjoy it. I feel so much potential to destroy. Memories that I had since I was a kid, supressions, fear or whatever else is getting out and I emmit an aura of fear. I have so much destructive power at this time and I go full on people who wrong me, which has had a freeing impact on my personality. For the first time in my life I feel so much anger, I feel capable of wrecking people to shreds. Though I don't let it 'overtake' me and I always try to use logic. Sometimes I get crazy dreams and stupid emotional fears, which obviously comes from this transit too. But its fucking cleansing and has changed my life for the better, so I can say I turn this to my advantage. Pluto is a blessing if you can control your reactions and you know your inner self. I knew I had all these burried inside and meditation helps sublimate the bullshit in a nice manner, at least. Meditation is truly medicine for the soul. Accompanied with some other good transits it helps me get forward.
I wanted to ask you, since I appreciate your input, how did Pluto really feel for you? I mean the energy, what type of workings you tried to do, or something. I have it conjunct on Scorpio moon and Inconjunct on my Mercury...So both make a fucking perfect combo. I have combusting emotions. I am in control and calm, I never get overtaken...But when my emotions lash out, then chaos unveils, for better or worse. So what is your experience Draco?

With the pluto here, the impressions run very deep regarding the parent. I knew of a case where a man grew up without a father and it scarred him deeply. He had a tight pluto/sun square in his chart.

Okay well then i definitely dont wanna fuck with plutos energy right now. Im already kinda nuts as it is, sometimes. Pluto is my chart ruler and it exactly conjuncts my ascendent, scorpio. I dont think im at the level i need to be yet to harness plutos energy. Im afraid i cant control it. I can barely control my regular rage. Was just curious what effects it has on a person and how that works and what it does to a person.

This only occurs when the Moon is the planet of latest degree. You will end all cycles of experience with a lunar perspective of the cycle in question.

Is this Saturday a good time for a destruction spell, or one to stop an enemy from prospering? I heard those kind of spells are best performed on a waning moon, then I heard NO spells should be performed during the dark moon phase. What is best?

Where did you hear or read that you cannot do spells during waning moon?? that is wrong. Black magick spells and spells for banishing are best done during waning moon. Spells for love, health, money or increase of all sorts are best done during waxing or full moon.

When the moon is waning (full to new). Waxing is like growing, waning is like dying, new is the weakest, full the strongest. The sign should be in Taurus, Capricorn, or Scorpio as well.

Also, I'm not sure where you are but the moon goes void tonight at 7:47 EST until 7:01 EST on Saturday. Shannon has shared this website: http://www.lunarium.co.uk/ with us many times and it is awesome. Check it out for your location.

Seriously, I heard spells are not to be performed during a DARK moon, waning is ok. However, for a destruction, banishing, or freezing an enemy, I was wondering if the dark moon phase might be just as good. FYI, the dark moon phase is 3 days before the new moon. (correct me if I'm wrong)

The Dark moon is the New moon. When the moon becomes full or new it becomes at a certain time for example the full moon can begin at 10:36pm etc.
And with the new moon it can begin at 12:16am but it is said that if you do a spell for black magick or banishing 3 days or anytime before the exact time that the moon becomes new is strongest and if you do banishing spell hours after the exact time that the moon becomes new that it will have some waxing influence. Same goes with the full moon. So that can be taken into consideration. BUT saying that no spells should be done during Dark moon is not logical and makes no sense so think about that. Only time spells should not be done is during VOID Moon. Understand? A wiccan would say something similiar to what you have so called read. SPELLS can be done at anytime just keep the moon times and phases in consideration.

Thank you for answering. Yeah, it seems almost every book, pagan or occult site I go on has been hijacked by the Wiccan way. One of the things that drew me to JOS was the article "Black Magic and Mental Health". Yet when you do any internet searches on revenge or protection magick, all you get is wiccan this or that.

Hello I am brand new to this group i have a heavy interest in astrology i would like to know my chart i know there is a link on the jos site but would someone be willing to tell me about my chart. i usually don't like being lazy but at the moment im in a situation where i cant even access the site because i am living in a xian home with my mortal family.

I am unaware of what is needed to figure my chart but my birthday is july 3rd 1984 i was born at 5:35 in the morning any other information please email me.

Hail Satan and the true gods of hell.

I am wondering about the YOD aspects. How many degrees are considered a tight aspect and how many a large aspect?
I am no expert or lesser aspects then I think that inconjunct can have its effects within 5 degrees or so.

--- In JoS_Astrology@yahoogroups.com, High Priestess Maxine Dietrich <maxine.dietrich@...> wrote:

> I am short on time so I will answer several questions asked here at once.

> The inconjunct is an aspect of adjustment in some way. It is a major aspect, I have found. For example, when someone has a baby, especially the first child [major life change], often, along with other heavy transiting and progressed aspects, there is also a planet making an inconjunct. Say someone has a slow moving planet placed natally in his/her fifth house of children, such as uranus, not always, but many times, transiting uranus will make an inconjunct to that person's ruler, when a first child is born. This is just an example.

> The yod configuration, as I mentioned in another post in the main JoS group, is found in the charts of those who are here for a purpose. This is not to say that everyone who has a yod is here for a purpose, but everyone who IS here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjuncts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod heans is at some point in the person's life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then can only go forward with the fated life. The tighter the yod [more exact the aspects], the more important the role.

> Now, as for 0 and 1 degree being used in prediction, this is most often used in solar and other planetary returns. For example, 0-1 degrees of cardinal signs are exceptionally critical, then there are critical degrees. These are based upon the manions of the moon in Vedic astrology and are very accurate. As for Vedic astrology, I have found many of their interpretations to be... inaccurate, as with the use of the sidereal zodiac, but as for the foundations of this- benefic and malefic planets, houses and such, by blending with Western astrology, much more can be interpreted and redicated with accuracy.

> Now, for example, say someone has solar return mars in ther solar return at 0 degrees of aries, with SR aries on the cusp of the seventh house of marriage/partnerships. Because this is an exceptionally critical degree, one can be assured within the year for that solar return, a new love relationship or interest will manifest, or a major commitment in an already established one. This is only one. Years of a new major love relationship of significance have many more aspects involved and if the couple move in together, then there are aspects to the fourth house, planets in the fourth and so on. Many of these will be on critical degrees, signifying that the affairs ruled by the houses that these planets rule, will be emphasized during the year of the solar return.

> SR pluto in the first house of the SR return indicates a 'first' in one's life, such as a firts child being born or something significant that one has never experienced before.

> Planets near the angles and on critical degrees in a natal chart indicate certain areas of the life

> Concerning the question on the 8th house- 'saturn' is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. It is also the house of power. Eva Braun had a void of course moon ruling her seventh house of marriage, placed in her eighth house. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.

> One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natual mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.

> I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 Montréal at 14 years of age- no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.

> Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.

> In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true- the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. Planets therein should be directed through awareness and meditation so that their positive qualities are manifested instead of the negative ones. Planets in these three houses are more difficult to handle, the twelfth being the worst, then the 6th and the 8th.

For those of you who are young and in this group, just know that through Satan and meditation, bad things in the chart can be sublimated. No chart is perfect and everyone has his /her saturn among other things. Knowing the potential bad things in your chart gives you a powerful too in changing these, something those who are without do not have.

is here for a purpose, but everyone who is here for a purpose has the yod. The yod is a single planet making inconjuncts to two planets in sextile aspect to each other. There can also be more planets tying in, but that is a classic yod. This can also involve the ascendant/decendant axis, which is this lines up exactly, is very prominent, as to the person being here for a purpose. Now, what the yod means is at some point in the person's life, an adjustment will be needed in the area of a life change so that the person can carry out what they were meant to do here. After years of preparation and learning, when the person is ready, he/she will experience a life change where adaptation to the new changes will be needed. Once this has occurred, he/she will then be locked in and can only go forward with the fated life. The tighter the yod (more exact the aspects), the more important the role.

Now, as for 0 and 1 degree being used in prediction, this is most often used in solar and other planetary returns. For example, 0-1 degrees of cardinal signs are exceptionally critical, then there are critical degrees. These are based upon the mansions of the moon in Vedic astrology and are very accurate. As for Vedic astrology, I have found many of their interpretations to be inaccurate, as with the use of the sidereal zodiac, but as for the foundations of this- benefic and malefic planets, houses and such, by blending with Western astrology, much more can be interpreted and redacted with accuracy.

Now, for example, say someone has solar return mars in their solar return at 0 degrees of aries, with SR aries on the cusp of the seventh house of marriage/partnerships. Because this is an exceptionally critical degree, one can be assured within the year for that solar return, a new love relationship or interest will manifest, or a major commitment in an already established one. This is only one. Years of a new major love relationship of significance have many more aspects involved and if the couple move in together, then there are aspects to the fourth house, planets in the fourth and so on. Many of these will be on critical degrees, signifying that the affairs ruled by the houses that these planets rule, will be emphasized during the year of the solar return.

SR pluto in the first house of the SR return indicates a 'first' in one's life, such as a first child being born or something significant that one has never experienced before.

Planets near the angles and on critical degrees in a natal chart indicate certain areas of the life.

Concerning the question on the 8th house- 'saturn' is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is, Scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. It is also the house of power. Eva Braun had a void of course moon ruling her seventh house of marriage, placed in her eighth house. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.

One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natural mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.
I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 Montréal at 14 years of age- no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.

Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.

In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true- the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. Planets therein should be directed through awareness and meditation so that their positive qualities are manifested instead of the negative ones. Planets in these three houses are more difficult to handle, the twelfth being the worst, then the 6th and the 8th.

For those of you who are young and in this group, just know that through Satan and meditation, bad things in the chart can be sublimated. No chart is perfect and everyone has his/her saturn among other things. Knowing the potential bad things in your chart gives you a powerful too in changing these, something those who are without do not have.

Hail Satan and the true gods of hell.
Hey,

I was just wondering when will Betelgeuse be most effective? Because I want to draw energy from this star.

Hail Satan!

You can draw energy from this star anytime. The energy is MOST pleasureable and beneficial. It can banish depression and make you laugh a lot if you invoke too much energy lol

Why is the stellium in the 12th house the worst? Or are the planets only harder to handle if you have a stellium in scorpio in the 12th house? I'm confused. My 6 yr old son has a stellium in pisces in the 12th house. 0° venus, 18° mercury and 12° uranus. This worries me.

It requires helluva lot of spiritual work so as to reach the hidden depths. My guess: the 12th House has been branded "the house of self-undoing" because spirituality has been aggressively suppressed, and it is / may be this very reason that people were unable to fully reach the depths of their own abyss to find the hidden light (strong aura sublimates negativity).

Sco is death, transformation and intensity so this may add, should the person have some planets in Sco and in the 12th. In other words, this person can either screw him/herself big time OR... >:]

The fact of your son having those planets there means only that he has to work on his self-development. VE is strong, but ME quite the opposite (in exile), however, this MAY imply that your son can have tremendous psychic potential which HAS to be channelled - TAMED I'd dare to say. Bear in mind, Neptune (Pis - domicile /home sign/sign of dignity) is strong, so this may add to you son's escapistic tendencies (either fantasies OR worse - drugs, alcohol and whatnot).

Pedagogically speaking, I'd direct your son to hard facts (preventing escapism, not to mention blocking angelic filth), so that he can be grounded (occultism can be explained physically/logically). This is of utmost importance. And above all you must not worry but as I said, encourage him to evolve :)

Hope it helped a little bit.

Planets near the angles and on critical degrees in a natal chart indicate certain areas of the life.

Concerning the question on the 8th house- 'saturn' is not the natural ruler of the eighth house. It is scorpio. Each house has several different areas of rulership/emphasis in the life. The eighth is sex, death, joint finances, and debts. It is also the house of intensity and planets placed therein have a more emotional effect in the life as to the houses they rule. It is also the house of power. Eva Braun had a void of course moon ruling her seventh house of marriage, placed in her eighth house. Ruler of the 7th in the 8th often indicates one being married to someone in a position of power and the added void of course moon, indicated one in a million- Adolf Hitler. This was unique to her chart.
One with a stellium [grouping of three or more planets] as you describe is often present in the chart of a natural mage, as is a stellium in scorpio. This comes from a past life in developing the soul, but is difficult to handle because of the intense feelings and emotions it produces along with a very strong need for frequent sex or a sexual outlet and if it is not handled properly through direction and meditation in this life, it can destroy [pluto/scorpio]. What this means is in a past life, the owner of this reached a certain point in the development of the mind, then died. This is still on the soul and unfortunately, because most of our former lives are forgotten, the powers there are not put to use unless the one who has them is again drawn to the occult and takes up power meditation, where this was left off in the former life. Usually, at some point, a former mage will be drawn to the occult and often self-learning regarding meditation and spirituality and when directed, this is most positive to have.

I have noted two examples of this gift, both born on the very same day. Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who had the Scorpio stellium and its driving intensity to go to the top and make history with 7 perfect scores at the Olympic games 1976 Montréal at 14 years of age-no one before had ever done this, and to change gymnastics forever. She channeled this obsessive energy into athletics, which was very positive for her and took her to the top.

Another person who was a co-worker years ago, I did his chart, he was born the very same day, November 12, 1961; and did nothing to direct the potent energies of the Scorpio stellium, as he let his sexual obsessions destroy him, as this stellium can influence one to overdoing things. He stayed in the men's locker-room for 18 hours at a health club where he worked at, voyeurism and masturbating, which was blatant to others who complained, and was canned from his job there. He also had other destructive behavior, as he would lay in the tanning booths for over an hour until he had purple slabs on his skin and smelled like he was cooked. His stellium was out of control and never directed or channeled in his life. He was ruined by it.

In Vedic astrology, there are three houses which can be unfortunate and this proves true- the sixth, the eighth and the twelfth. Planets therein should be directed through awareness and meditation so that their positive qualities are manifested instead of the negative ones. Planets in these three houses are more difficult to handle, the twelfth being the worst, then the 6th and the 8th.

For those of you who are young and in this group, just know that through Satan and meditation, bad things in the chart can be sublimated. No chart is perfect and everyone has his/her saturn among other things. Knowing the potential bad things in your chart gives you a powerful too in changing these, something those who are without do not have.

Subject: My Experience With Pluto: To HoodedCobra666 & Gonzalesyn

HoodedCobra666 & Gonzalesyn: Sorry this is late I been busy and wasn't expecting that response from you guys. Thanks though Cobra I appreciate it.

These are just my experiences with Pluto so I can't guarantee everyone else here will experience the same. And I have Pluto conjunct Mercury, Venus, Sun and Mars in the sign of Scorpio which Pluto rules. So what I experienced is probably not going to be representative of what other people experience. Just the same as how someone with a strong Capricorn emphasis or Capricorn ascendant experiences Saturn as a benefic. While for the rest of us it's the worst malefic.

I first began working with Pluto's energy without an intended working, their isn't a lot of in depth info written on this planet as still not much is known. So I figured the only way to learn is to invoke it and see. At first its energies are very difficult even to will with your own mind. It's a lot different to the sun for example, where the energy just flows through you with ease, pluto feels like you have to use all the power of your will just to bring it inside you. This is only when you first work with it, once your used to it, it seems to become easier and easier. Especially once you build up a connection with it. Like any planet, demon or energy source really.

As I began drawing in it's energy the first thing I experienced was obsessive love, (according to HP Maxine I am prone to this anyway cause of my Venus Conjunct Pluto in Scorpio) But within a day of working with Pluto's energy, I fell deeply in love with a girl I had only known for a short time. This was three years ago and my soul wasn't as strong as now and my mind was definitely not as strong. So I became obsessed with her and wanted to perform love magick because the love was one sided. And this obsession then compelled me to relentlessly void meditate and empower my chakras because at that time I wasn't strong enough for love magick. And it ended up bringing me a lot of progress, I was working on my soul at least 10 hours a day, although the experience with this girl was the most painful of my life. With all the power I gained I was still so obsessed with her that I couldn't even perform any love or sex magick because I was overwhelmed with emotion just by thinking about her. THIS IS WHAT PLUTO CAN DO. Even just a tiny amount of it's energy. You'll never be the same.

I regret nothing though, because the experience lead to me having power of the mind and soul which I never dreamed I could have. This tends to be a common theme with Pluto though, the pain is usually something mutually transforming. You will suffer much with Pluto, (usually it's suffering of the emotional kind, unlike Saturn which is usually the physical kind) but Pluto will bring you things you never thought you could have, infact it will throw you towards it. There is really no other way to put it, Pluto completely overwhelms you with emotion and drive towards something or someone.

I continued working with Pluto throughout this experience and it eventually brings you to a point where this intense desire and emotion which for the average person is compulsiveness and obsession, becomes a fearlessness and sense of power inside you like no other once you have worked with it enough and if you couple working with Pluto with focusing your mind and empowering your soul. There is almost nothing a psychologist could tell me about myself which I don't already know thanks to Pluto, it has got me in touch with feelings I never knew I had and I feel almost psychologically invinsible sometimes.
Okay well then i definitely dont wanna fuck with plutos energy right now. Im already kinda nuts as it is, sometimes. Pluto is my chart ruler and it exactly conjuncts my ascendent, scorpio. I dont think im at the level i need to be yet to harness plutos energy. Im afraid i cant control it. I can barely control my regular rage. And i would also like to hear ur experiences with pluto Draco.

> I have worked with Pluto's energy extensively for several years now. It's a perosnal planet in my chart and it's energy is a lot stronger than any other planet in our solar system, second only to the Sun and other Stars. Pluto can also be an extremely dangerous planet for those who don't know what they're doing and it's energy is very very difficult to handle.

> Unless you are exceptionally powerful and know your own mind very well, this planet's energy will control you, instead of the other way around.

Or it can attract situations that bring up these emotions into your life and this can be more than just a little upsetting, this can result in a lot of destructiveness.

There are no concepts or morality at this level and because it's usually the destructive and "immoral" things which we are forced to block, it's usually these which come out with Pluto, which makes Pluto same more destructive than what it really is.

> It makes no difference if you think child molestation is evil, or wanting to collect teddy bears is unmanly and makes you a wussie, or not wanting to work makes you a lazy bum, if any urges like that are in your unconscious Pluto will bring them out for better or worse.

> And nobodies opinion on these things matter to your unconscious mind, not even your own. I’m not saying it is any of those things, just making an example.
HP Maxine has already stated that she's working on a pdf file for the JOS. She just has to update parts of the site first because a lot of it remains in the state it's been, which means some of the information is old and outdated. So I would wait for her to update.

As for the ebook, this has been discussed many times over and lots of people say it's a good idea but it hasn't been created yet.

As for what we think about the kundalini or the serpent, here is a direct quote from the JOS and a couple of links.

http://spiritualwarfare666.webs.com/Satanic_Symbols.htm - "When the serpent is activated through power meditation and specific exercises, it ascends through the seven chakras, bringing intense awareness, enlightenment, psychic powers and abilities, and all-knowing. The hooded cobra, seen in many ancient carvings and paintings in Egypt, symbolizes the resulting expanded consciousness of raising the serpent. This is the TRUE foundation of Satanism- raising the serpent (kundalini). Those who are successful in raising the serpentine energy are on a much higher spiritual level and can no longer be deceived by Christianity and its related programs."

Hi. I just joined today. I have a three questions, please. Is the www.joyofsatan.org available as a single download (.zip file)? There is so much material, on that site, I was wondering if there is a convenient way to save it to our PCs.

My second question. When your books are available, again, could you offer an e-book option? That could be convenient for us and circumvent any interference by the USPS.

My third question. What is your opinion of Kundalini?

Thanks,

The Black Sun
I'm honestly very wary right now because HP Maxine said in her post that the energy of Pluto is very permanent and is stronger than that of Saturn and is not to be messed with.

Well, my sun is in Scorpio, my Mercury and Venus are in Scorpio, and my Pluto is in Scorpio. And of course, Scorpio is ruled by the planet Pluto. So since Pluto rules Scorpio (or is Pluto ruled by Scorpio??), that means all these other planets are coming into contact with a very permanent powerful Pluto.

Is this something to be concerned about for those of us that have stelliums in Scorpio? :(

Raven Lythrum I have all the same planets in Scorpio as you conjunct Pluto. I have posted twice in this group about Pluto, please read. See if you can relate to anything. How do you feel about your astrology chart in general?

I can't stop thinking about Jupiter. If you look at the astrology charts of famous and very successful people, so many of them have Jupiter well placed. Either making a positive aspect to many of their personal planets by a tight degree, in a favorable sign/house or both! I can't stop thinking about Jupiter. How much better life could be if I had a stronger Jupiter. Having the best planet in the solar system in my chart, in a house it's weak in, a sign it's weak in and retrograde just sucks.

It's no wonder I have never been a true success at anything and their was never any one thing I was completely happy with, nothing has ever gone completely right no matter how much effort I put in. And yet I hear people with Jupiter strong always have things go their way even if they're not hard working at all. And had it not of been for astrology I wouldn't even have known what I am missing, I wouldn't even have known how good things get for other people.

I know Jupiter is retrograde but anything we can do to work with it's energy right now?

There doesn't seem to be as much activity in this group as the others so I was thinking maybe we could all just bring up random parts of our charts, like a house position, conjunctions etc. And just say what we think about how it's affected us and ask questions about it?

It has been said that people with stelliums in Scorpio have been developeing their soul in past lives, and have already been into occult/magick.

I can say by experience that Pluto people like you are able to transform people who are in contact with them, through psychological deep experience.

Pluto/Scorpio people can transform what they "touch" and this is a gift of this age (many people born with Pluto in Scorpio in the last years).

If you have a Plutonian partner your potential for tranforming the human unconscious mind is higher.

Pluto is also the "shadow", or the psychological aspects we want to hide and not show to others. It's the part of you fighting against your enemies while you dont' even argument to them. Plutonian people are like unexploded bombs: it's not wise to tease them, and if their souls are open the effects are devastating.

You could be a powerful warrior of Satan and you even don't know (yet) it as you could have destroyed target people simply by hating them.

It is my opinion that a big part of the spiritual war is played on the fields of Pluto.

HAIL SATANA!!!

I'd be up for that! And not only ours but other charts we've seen. And also of notable people, that's a good way to learn, since we know of their lives (history, etc) so we can find the aspect that causes whatever, and the timing of the planets at that persons life that caused whatever.

Wow thank you for telling me that Lydia! I'll definitely give it a try. You're lucky to have Jupiter well placed.

Hail Satan!
I have Jupiter in a good position, but as most of my natal planets are retrograde I'm only now starting to benefit from it at age 28.

It's funny timing that you brought it up. This past Thursday I started the square for it, just to see if I would still get anything from it since it's in Gemini. I am definitely feeling the energy! It won't hurt for you to try. HPS Maxine recently wrote in another group that if you're feeling the energy from a square, then continue it. So try it for yourself!

That sounds like a great idea. We could also find out if there's anything in common with all of us, like many planets in 8th and/or 12th houses or something.
You should start!

I've invoked it's energy. I got NO negative effects from it (as far as I know). But it really transforms oneself you know, I'd wake up like, "That was a workout". This might be because it's in a rather prominent place in my chart at the moment.

For me it's colour is mainly black, with white specks in it.

My son has a sun conjunct with venus in Aquarius in his 7th house; I think it will be interesting to see who he chooses for a marriage partner as this conjunction is in his 7th house making marriage important but at the same time he will want his independence (which is starting to show now as well as his vanity he's only 2) but he loves to be told that he's very handsome. He also has a mars in leo which I can already see his hot headed temper coming out; but his mars and venus are opposed which I think will hamper his love life, perhaps making him a little overbearing to his partner.

You can tell by what sign and degree the planet is in.
So if your 12th house is Gemini and Jupiter is currently in Gemini, then Jupiter is transiting your twelfth house.

Please, can someone give me some info, or direct me to somewhere/one who can.
For the past 18 months things have really turned for the worst in our lives. When I say our, I include myself, hubby and 2 kids. First, we lost our home and car, due to the fact that my husband helped a friend with a cash loan that she did not repay. We were fortunate enough to find a place quickly, but not without sacrificing other things, such as my daughter had to drop out of school and my son had to give up his internship and we had to live apart from my husband. Hubby found accommodation close enough to his work place to enable him to keep his job. Kids and I relocated and started looking for jobs. My son found a job quickly, I could not. The guy who took us in, eventually forced himself onto my 14 year old daughter sexually. After hubby confronted him, he evicted us, calling police on us etc. Police refused to accept our charge of rape/statutory rape... Said it was sour grapes. This guy assaulted my husband, causing him injury after which he needed surgery. Due to long sick leave, hubby lost his job.
This is only a fraction of our story. Things have now escalated to a point where we were all unemployed. We even called assistance from welfare organizations, even the government welfare society and yes... Not a single one was prepared to extend a helping hand. We even offered to do maintenance work and garden work for these organizations, as some of their buildings obviously needed some TLC. They too said that our situation is not an "emergency" and therefore can not help us. We first need to have absolutely NOTHING, they can't even provide us with food parcels. It has happened twice where so called friends offered hubby work. Meant we had to relocate, in both the cases. We got there and we were informed that unfortunately the job was given to someone else in the meantime!!!! We have sold everything we can and are about to be kicked out of our apartment, no where to go. Every single relationship, and other aspects of our lives have turned into absolute chaos. We have no idea what we're doing wrong...
Have done numerous banishing rituals but nothing seems to work. Can the answer be in our birth charts? I have done a free online birth chart for each of us, but can't find an online site that explains the results. We genuinely do not have money to pay for someone to help us with this, but somehow I think our rescue might come from there. If we just know from which direction the negative flow of energy emerges, we could address issues and turn this devastation in our lives around. I am so tired of good news turning into crap. Every time we see some light, or think our luck changes, we get so excited, only to find the next day or so that whatever the good news was, has turned into bad luck.
Please, we are in dire straits. Need advise urgently. Anyone is welcome to inbox me if they want to or reply in the group.

Hhhhello... I had asked this question on the JOS main group but they directed me here, so here I am. :P

I found out about my astrological chart, but there is something I'd like to ask...
Can anyone explain what it means if 3 planets are in conjunction in the 12th house which is in opposition with Saturn...? And if it's something bad (which so far I've understood it is) is there a way to 'fix' this?
Thank you in advance. :)
By experience, I can say this is not rather the case of a bad chart/transit (even if it could be, look at Saturn) but more likely a psychich vampire attached to one or more of your chakras, usually the Solar Pleaxus chakra.

This makes you unable to execute your will and your desires because your 3rd chakra is constantly depleted. When you meditate, you charge it and your desider begin manifesting, to crash when your energies are dropped down again.

Is your husband a dedicated Satanist? He could be a door open to this if he is not.

Look at bad aspects to your Sun and/or to known people in your life who may have their Saturn placed on your Sun.

This is my opinion to begin looking for a solution.

We were fortunate enough to find a place quickly, but not without sacrificing other things, such as my daughter had to drop out of school and my son had to give up his internship and we had to live apart from my husband. Hubby found accommodation close enough to his work place to enable him to keep his job. Kids and I relocated and started looking for jobs. My son found a job quickly, I could not. The guy who took us in, eventually forced himself onto my 14 year old daughter sexually. After hubby confronted him, he evicted us, calling police on us etc. Police refused to accept our charge of rape/statutory rape... Said it was sour grapes. This guy assaulted my husband, causing him injury after which he needed surgery. Due to long sick leave, hubby lost his job. This is only a fraction of our story. I am still puzzled.

A lot of people use Western zodiac that is somewhat outdated since our earth wobbles. Right now the difference between the two is about 24 degrees (a lot).

It creates really conflicting data. For example according to western zodiac sun is in one sign, but on the visible sky it is in the previous one.

If the wobbling effect is somewhat irrelevant, any one advanced in this matter could explain why position of stars from about 3rd century a.d is more accurate then now? It doesn't make sense for me.

Western is called tropical & based upon the Earth's orientation & cycle with the sun along the path of the ecliptic instead of the constellations that are forever moving. Zero degrees Aires is always the spring equinox, etc.

Procession is one degree every 72 years. Transits have to account for this procession for correct timing.

Both systems have value.

IMO shit happens, doesn't even begin to cover what you and your family has been through. Yes as H P Maxine has stated, it could very well be the planets. I know it is very expensive in your situation, but a birth chart reading from H P Maxine has helped us tremendously, but 75 dollars is hard to come up with, but sounds to me like you have tried everything else including magic, so it might just help you know what to do next. Plus IMO I think that SS are treated very differently from those that are without, even if we don't make it publicly known.

Thank you, I will focus more on my Solar Plexus Chakra to empower it and also give a bit more attention to the others.

Yes, hubby and both kids are all dedicated Satanists (Hail Satan)

Is there a way I could find out who the guilty bugger is, possibly causing this attack? Would surely love to return the favor :)

Thank you Brian. Yes, I'd love to get that reading from HP Maxine. I am from South Africa and our currency is almost 9 times weaker than the dollar, so imagine what such a reading would cost me. With time I shall save bit by bit until I can finally afford it.
I agree with you 100% about us being treated differently. I think it is because of the energy we emit. I love people and am very social, but since we have dedicated, have not been able to maintain a single friendship.
Never the less, I don't get thrown off balance by them.
A question: do you think in this case it would be okay for me to ask Father Satan for some protection until I can afford to obtain my birth chart reading, or is it weak of me to follow this route?

By all means yes its always important to talk to Satan about your life. But don't forget the importance of aura of protection too. And I understand it is very expensive even for Raven and I that is why I got her one but not myself. I always put her first in everything.

You may want to invest in an astrology report done by H.P. Maxine she's very experienced and was able to answer some difficult questions I had about mine, which aloud me to better understand other charts that I've been reading. As well as strengthened my ability to better predict using astrology.

I really would like an answer to this one too, because we have been using planetary mantras which came from the east where the vedic system is used, according to our western zodiac and this could distort the results. How can they both be true? In western someone is an aquarius the most unconventional sign but in vedic they're a capricorn the most conventional sign or in western they're an aries the most self interested sign, but in vedic they're pisces the most self sacrificing sign, yet both systems are correct? That makes about as much sense as an apple with a handle.

A lot of people use Western zodiac that is somewhat outdated since our earth wobbles. Right now the difference between the two is about 24 degrees (a lot).

It creates really conflicting data. For example according to western zodiac sun is in one sign, but on the visible sky it is in the previous one.

If the wobbling effect is somewhat irrelevant, any one advanced in this matter could explain why position of stars from about 3rd century a.d is more accurate then now? It doesn't make sense for me.

This Monday, as soon as the Moon enters Taurus, there will be 2 Yod formations, a T-square, 5 planets in critical degrees, and another formation the name of which escapes me, but consists of 2 semisquares, 2 sesquiquadrates, 2 oppositions, and looks like a thin rectangle. The Moon, Venus, Mercury, and Neptune will all be at 0 degrees with Mars at 16 degrees of a mutable sign. This moment in time seems to possess unprecedented powers of transformation, and I have not seen this many critical degrees take place at once since I last viewed Oprah Winfreys' natal chart. It is also a good time to start the Lunar square.

If anyone else has enough foresight to notice any rare patterns, asects, or anything else that would pique interest in a astrologer please post it here. I am always looking forward to times like these to work my magic.

I know less about Vedic & Hindu, but the systems are certainly different. Nor should they be mixed. They operate differently. The techniques are different. But people that I have talked to who use them say they firmly feel they are just as valid. Hindu is very strong on cycles of life experience from I have heard, & purportedly very accurate. I am sure there would probably be something corresponding to these cycles in western if you tried to make an A B comparison. I think one could also say that in the sense that how one person experiences a said transit is different from another. Transits do not operate in isolation. Additionally transits can & usually correspond to solar arcs, secondary progressions, solar & lunar returns. Even Venus returns. Etc, etc. For example, the progressed moon follows the Saturn cycle. 29.5 years.

Apples & oranges are both fruits are they not? Don't plant apple trees in orange groves. Also regarding the comment "reading". I liken that more to palmistry & tarot. Astrology can be used for divination, but it is far more than simply divination.

That's my personal take on it. I would say that if you want to learn the others systems, go for it. There should cerainly be something to gain from it.

I ran across a very good astrology video on Youtube recently. The guy in the video is a jew, but the video is worth the watch nevertheless. As it has been mentioned before, they are into this topic just like everyone else. Search there for "Quantam Astrology". I think eveyone here could gain something from it.

It was interesting in that video how he said Saturn transits are the most apparent because it has to do with real world things. And went on to talk about Saturn/Pluto aspects and how they effected civilizations in history.

Great suggestion, thank you so much. Sometimes I get so caught up in my problems that I forget to consider the obvious.

I am very new to astrology and have no idea what it means where Saturn is transiting for me. I have found a site for beginners Astrology, but have only learned about the different glyphs for each planet and Zodiac Sign, which planet rules which Sign, the basic attributes of each sign etc. Very basic stuff and what a Natural Birth Chart looks like. Could you, or any one else reading this, perhaps direct me to a mobile friendly site where I can learn more, please? I have very limited resources, but am very eager to learn.

Thank you kindly for your assistance thus far:)

I think asking you Guardian Demon to show the person responsible of the attack in a dream would be the besto solution.

It is also important to check where Saturn is transiting now for you.
By experience, I can say this is not rather the case of a bad chart/transit (even if it could be, look at Saturn) but more likely a psychic vampire attached to one or more of your chakras, usually the Solar Plexus chakra.

This makes you unable to execute your will and your desires because your 3rd chakra is constantly depleted. When you meditate, you charge it and your desires begin manifesting, to crash when your energies are dropped down again.

Is your husband a dedicated Satanist? He could be a door open to this if he is not.

Look at bad aspects to your Sun and/or to known people in your life who may have their Saturn placed on your Sun.

This is my opinion to begin looking for a solution.

Subject: Prominent Neptune

I was wondering if anyone else has this. In my chart Neptune is in the 12th conjunct AC 4 degrees away, and hard aspects to Sun, Jupiter, Mercury, and Venus. I feel like I live life in a fog, an awesome fog! I can usually visualize or imagine things better than I can physically see. It has given me kind of an addictive personality and escapist tendencies, I did hard drugs before but when I dedicated and started meditating I felt like this was the feeling I was looking for the whole time, not tripping balls at a rave getting grinded on by random kids. I don't even smoke or drink now, usually, I try to avoid alcohol because after a night of drinking I wake up and really want to get drunk again and that feeling lasts for like 3 days.

Anyway what I really want to know is if anyone has this aspect and/or what their thoughts/opinions whatever are on it. And how to channel this energy to open your mind and be more aware of the subtle realm astral realm, w/e. Sometimes I think I see or hear things, but I'm not sure if it's from inside my head or outside.

I love Neptune's energy, it's wonderful to invoke before meditation. I use it almost as a replacement for weed. Takes you away from all the nagging things going on. I don't have a prominent Neptune in my natal chart but I think this can be a gift in the way of spiritual advancement if you use it right, though because it's a square and not a trine or conjunction it's effects may tend to be more negative. But through meditation we learn to handle our energies so you'll be able to use it positively as you advance spiritually.

> I was wondering if anyone else has this. In my chart Neptune is in the 12th conjunct AC 4 degrees away, and hard aspects to Sun, Jupiter, Mercury, and Venus. I feel like I live life in a fog, an awesome fog! I can usually visualize or imagine things better than I can physically see. It has given me kind of an addictive personality and escapist tendencies, I did hard drugs before but when I dedicated and started meditating I felt like this was the feeling I was looking for the whole time, not tripping balls at a rave getting grinded on by random kids. I don't even smoke or drink now, usually, I try to avoid alcohol because after a night of drinking I wake up and really want to get drunk again and that feeling lasts for like 3 days.

Anyway what I really want to know is if anyone has this aspect and/or what their thoughts/opinions whatever are on it. And how to channel this energy to open your mind and be more aware of the subtle realm astral realm, w/e. Sometimes I think I see or hear things, but I'm not sure if it's from inside my head or outside.

Subject: Where do we find out if a planet is waning/waxing?

Hi,
I know in order to perform a spell correctly the corresponding planet/s must be strongly placed and waxing. (Such as Venus for a love spell). Where or how can we find out the planets phases? There is tons of info on the moons phase, but how about the rest?

Lunarium.co.uk has all the info, planetary hours, moon phases and signs and when the planets are retrograding. Just adjust it to your time.

I was looking up the moon mantra and came across mantras for the North Node and South Node. I recall reading that the North Node can bring occult gifts and psychic power.

I vibrated AUM RANG RAHUVE SVAHA AUM enough times to get a feel for it. And AUM BHRAM BHRIM BHRAUM SAU RAHAVE SVAHA, it definitely has power and is doing something, it made my head feel really good.

Well. I'm not sure about that but I'm sure it won't hurt your magick if you don't know if a planets is waxing etc. That applies more importantly to the MOON. :)

According to the Vedic system the allegory of Rahu & Ketu is about a Dragon which sought to be immortal by drinking the elixer of life, it was beheaded by Shiva the moment it swallowed it. The head remained alive and became Rahu and the body Ketu. And so Rahu in your chart represents where you are never satisfied, constantly hungering and always wanting more because it's just a head so whatever it swallows it can't contain, it also represents the things you desire most desperately but are unable to obtain, your obsessions which can never be satisfied, because it's just a head it's never full and can never obtain it's goals for it has no limbs to grasp with.

Ketu is the exact opposite, the mighty body of a dragon but has no head, so it represents the things you have and take for granted. The things which come by you easily because of good past life Karma but which now you no longer care for. It also represents where you act beyond the ego identified self, cause it has no head so has no judgement.

Rahu & Ketu are always opposition to each other, in each others polar signs. For example if Rahu is in Capricorn then Ketu has to be in Cancer.

I'm just going by the Vedic system the western system may tell a different story about them.

I have heard that the Sun is considered a malefic because it 'combusts' whatever it aspects tightly. Is this true? I know this is more commonly spoke about in the Vedic system but I don't know for sure as most of what I hear about the Sun in the houses in both systems is positive.

Both the north and south nodes have to do with fate. The south node is more serious and has saturn overtones. If the natal south node is conjunct the ascendant or chart ruler in a solar return, then watch out.
The influences can be unpredictable, depending on what the past life ties are. The year will definitely be fated.

Often, in the charts of lovers, close friends, family members and others who are significant in one's life, there are close connections from one's planet/s to the other's south node. These have to do with past life ties for better or for worse.

Semi-sextiles [because of the very tight orb of 1 1/2 degrees on either side], and other aspects that are very tight or exact in orb are also fated; meaning a fated event that will occur in the present lifetime. This is even moreso if these tie in with the nodal axis.

http://www.howisyourdaytoday.com/articles/mantras/mantrrah.htm
http://www.howisyourdaytoday.com/articles/mantras/mantrket.htm

Now obviously om is AUM and namah can be SVAHA.

I've always used the western zodiac. I have found the sidereal to be unreliable.

As for the Vedic teachings, I have found some truths, such as the natures of the planets are more important than the aspects with interpretation. Idiots write of all trines and sextiles being favorable and all squares and oppositions being bad. This is not true at all. The natures of the planets have to be taken into consideration, along with the houses they rule, where they are posited in the chart and so forth. Trines can be rotten, say if one's chart ruler is trine to the ruler of the sixth house, he/she will more than likely have considerable health problems, even if so-called 'benefics' venus and jupiter are involved.

Say someone has the chart of a reserved personality, such as many capricorn planets, many planets in the twelfth house, etc...A mars/jupiter square or opposition is extremely helpful in balancing the personality with this. Squares and oppositions are not all bad. Saturn/sun hard aspects for example can be troublesome, but these keep the ego in check, unless the chart is full of low self-esteem aspects. I have known certain people who think they are a 'god' so to speak; extremely over confident, assuming, overbearing and sooooo entitled. Because of the exaggerated sense of self-importance, many of these people alienate others and end up failing at major things. Jupiter/sun aspects, even the trine are notorious for this sort of thing, especially in charts where there is no ego check. A balanced personality will have a combination of both hard and soft aspects. Saturn is not always bad.

You have to take the entire chart into consideration. I have studied both eastern and western methods of interpretations and have found many truths in both and also many things that were 'off.'

On another note- I know of a person with a sun/venus conjunction. This aspect often indicates personal vanity- [I lived with this individual]. This conjunction was in the home sign of taurus. There were no hard aspects to saturn to keep this person in check. She would primp in front of the mirror for hours on end. The bathroom was always tied up. This person got up at 4:15 am every morning. Spent until 5:45 am in the bathroom primping her hair, make-up, etc. Left for work and then complained that when getting to work, that others would come into the ladie's room [even on the third floor where it was quiet], while she ‘fixed her hair and make-up.’

Regardless of any lack of money, even under-age dependents going hungry or without, this person ALWAYS had her 10 am Thursday morning beauty appointment at a nearby salon.

Getting back to this person at work, she would also primp on the lunch hour. Then upon returning home at night, spend another hour and a half in the bathroom pin curling her hair and primping. No one could even take a 30 second piss.

I have seen this shit more than once and it is nauseating to say the least. No...this person certainly wasn't trying to conceal any feelings of inferiority as there weren't any. She could do no wrong.

I could cite many more examples as I have been an astrologer for over 35 years and have done the charts of nearly everyone close to me, relatives and many others. The points to look out for are an unbalanced personality, especially if you are considering getting into a personal relationship with someone in question. This takes a lot of learning and experience and the sad thing is many books out there are off on quite a few things.

One person I know married a woman who hated sex. Unfortunately, he found this out too late. I still maintain, two people who are considering something as important as marriage should find out BEFORE they get married if they are both sexually compatible. Looking at her astro chart, I could see sexual trauma and other problems related to men. The marriage ended in divorce.

When looking at any chart, you have to put things together. Most, but not all charts have what I call confirming aspects. These are aspects and planetary placements that support certain personality traits, events in the life, and in the case of opposing ones, where certain aspects contradict each other], these often balance the personality.

Subject: Re: Prominent Neptune

I know a lot oabout this planet from years and years of research and study of many different charts; both people I have known and charts of famous notables.

I am going to be straight forward about this. No chart is perfect. Neptune though, is something to be aware of. The energies of this planet are very difficult to sublimate. Meditation, which is actually ruled by neptune can help.

On the upside, neptune rules etherical beauty, it is the higher octave of venus. Many artists, actors, creators of beauty, musicians and related have a prominent neptune. Neptune aspects to venus can inspire the most awesome works of art and creativity, Tis is the creative aspect par excellence, but the love nature often suffers as the individual with these is too idealistic and too wanting of total romance and perfection in their love relationships.

Neptune also rules extreme sensitivity and drug/alcohol abuse. Here are a few examples of prominent neptune:

Gregg Allman - Musician: Neptune squaring his chart ruler venus- he was also a heroin addict.

Marilyn Monroe - Movie star: neptune in the first house- co-ruler of her chart. This undermined and weakened her personality, as neptune weakens. The more prominent the neptune, the more it works to weaken the personality and make one inconsistent, unrelaible and have escapist tendencies. While this planet gave her glamour and beauty, she died of poisoning [how this happened, no one really knows the details], neptune rules poisons. Neptune rules the theatre and Hollywood.

Hector Berlioz - Composer and Musician: Neptune conjunct his ruling moon.

David Bowie - Musician: Neptune in exact conjunction with his ascendant

Marlin Brando - Film star - neptune in close trine to his ruling jupiter

Montgomery Clift - Actor - neptune in close square to his ruling mercury. Heavy drug and alcohol user. Many of his planets are on unfavorable degrees. he was prone to depression and had 'deep emotional scars.' With uranus at the handle of his bucket chart, he always felt alienated.

Alice Cooper - Musician - neptune in almost exact conjuction with his ascendant. Alcohol and drug abuse.

Jacques Yves Coustaeu - noted oceanographer and marine biologist who brought the public much information on the sea and sea life. Neptune [rules the ocean and marine biology], in his 10th house of career.

Leonardo Da Vinci - noted artist and sculptor - neptune conjunct his midheaven [cusp of 10th house of career], inconjunct his ruling jupiter and trining his venus.

Claude Debussy - Musician and Composer - Neptune inconjunct his co-ruler mercury, trining venus, and opposing jupiter. [Jupiter often amplifies whatever planet it contacts].
Gustave Paul Dore - Artist - Neptune in the first house, exact conjunction to co-ruler mercury; neptune is also his co-ruler. Neptune sextile venus.

Clint Eastwood - Film star - Neptune in tight conjunction to his midheaven, trining his co-ruler mars.

Hermann Goring - Third Reich Leader - he was wounded in the groin [bullet wound], during putsch and given morphine, of which he remained addicted for the rest of his life. His chart ruler pluto is in exact conjunction with neptune.

Mick Jagger - Musician - neptune in sextile to chart ruling sun, leo ascendant and co-ruler jupiter in leo. Heavy drug and alcohol user.

Elton John - musician - neptune in opposition to his ruling sun.

I could go on endlessly with more and more examples, but here is the other side of neptune. Neptune rules insanity. Neptune, as I mentioned already, its influence is undermining and weakening, self-pitying, unreliable and given the other aspects and placements in the chart, it can be a lot worse.

Judy Goodyear - murdered husbands and even her son [which she drowned after she poisoned him for a long period of time], for insurance policy money through use of poison. One can see an unbalanced personality here - aries stellium indicating extreme selfishness in tight square aspect to jupiter, amplifying these tendencies with no hard aspects from saturn to offset this. Neptune in conjunction with her ascendant. Neptune at 0 degrees of libra, a critical degree, more than likely on her eastpoint.

Jeffrey Dahmer - serial killer - This guy was definitely schizoid. This is apparant if one has studied abnormal psychology. He was clearly insane from early childhood. 1st house neptune.

David Berkowitz - serial killer - neptune in exact sextile to ruling pluto.

Richard Allen Davis - serial killer - neptune in exact sextile to ruling pluto. Sadistic with anger issues - bucket chart with mars strong in capricorn at the handle. 5 planets in the intense and sexual 8th house.

Ed Gein [where they got the movie 'Psycho']- serial killer, necrophile - neptune in conjunction with co-ruling jupiter. Other noted placements - chart ruler mercury at 15 of leo, a very unfortunate degree; one of the worst. Saturn in pisces at the handle of a bucket configuration, in the tenth house, opposing the sun, indicating problems with the father, that left deep and lasting scars as saturn is at the handle which drives the chart, ruling the eighth house of sex, which has capricorn on the cusp. Pluto/moon opposition - domineering mother, close relationship. When I say 'drives the chart' I mean the influence is very strong in the way of some personal/psychological scars/hang-ups that never go away.

Jeffrey MacDonald - murderer of children - scorpio on the eighth house cusp, with its ruler pluto in the fifth of children. Neptune in opposition to first house co-ruling moon.

William Heirens - child murderer - aquarius on the cusp of the 8th house, with its co-ruling saturn in the 5th.
Neptune in tight ruling trine to chart ruler moon.

Gary Michael Heidnik - serial killer - devout christian preacher and pastor; bishop. Held captive and also some murdered; several prostitutes in his basement where he tortured them. Neptune in conjunction to chart ruler venus in the 12th house.

Edmund Emil Kemper - serial killer, murderer and mutilator of teenagers - aries on the cusp of the 8th house with its ruler mars in the 5th of children.

Howard Unruh - child killer - ruler of 8th in 5th.

Now obviously om is AUM and namah can be SVAHA.

No. The only malefics are Saturn (greater) and Mars (lesser).

If a planet conjuncts the Sun, it is said it is combust, or destroyed (unless in Scorpio). This concerns conjunction only.

http://groups.yahoo.com/group/JoS_Astrology/message/31 - it concerns SU conj ME here, but still.

"What I know of the sun combust mercury is that it can give a mental blindspot; something one who has this cannot see clearly in his/her life, such as their own communications and behavior, but this is not always the case and you have to look at the entire chart to see how this is operating, what sign is it in? which houses are ruled by mercury and that sort of thing, also the aspects, if any, to the combust conjunction. This aspect can also give total focus, not in the way of concentration, unless it is in scorpio, but total focus on a goal, leaving distractions and that sort of thing, anything outside of being deterred from the goal as the 'blindspot,' in refusing to allow any conflicting information, opinions and such to interfere."

Oh. She wasn't saying Scorpio protects from combustion, just that Sun combust Mercury can give much focus but not concentration like Mercury in Scorpio gives. So if Sun combusts Mercury in Scorpio it will give the ability to concentrate on a goal with out outside distractions not because Scorpio protects from combustion but from the nature of Scorpio.

I was thinking if any sign would lessen combustion it would be Aquarius or Libra since the Sun is weaker the energy of the Sun wouldn't overwhelm the planet it conjuncts so much.

This aspect can also give total focus, not in the way of concentration, unless it is in scorpio, but total focus on a goal, leaving distractions and that sort of thing, anything outside of being deterred from the goal as the 'blindspot,' in refusing to allow any conflicting information, opinions and such to interfere."

and weakened her personality, as neptune weakens. The more prominent the neptune, the more it works to weaken the personality and make one inconsistent, unreliable and have escapist tendencies. While this planet gave her glamour and beauty, she died of poisoning [how this happened, no one really knows the details], neptune rules poisons. Neptune rules the theatre

alcohol user. Many of his planets are on unfavorable degrees. he was prone to depression and had 'deep emotional scars.' With uranus at the handle of his bucket chart, he always felt alienated.
Alice Cooper - Musician - Neptune in almost exact conjunction with his ascendant. Alcohol and drug abuse.

Jacques Yves Cousteau - noted oceanographer and marine biologist who brought the public much information on the sea and sea life. Neptune [rules the ocean and marine biology], in his 10th house of career.

Leonardo Da Vinci - noted artist and sculptor - Neptune conjunct his midheaven [cusp of 10th house of career], inconjunct his ruling Jupiter and trining his Venus.

Claude Debussy - Musician and Composer - Neptune inconjunct his co-ruler Mercury, trining Venus, and opposing Jupiter. [Jupiter often amplifies whatever planet it contacts].

Gustave Paul Dore - Artist - Neptune in the first house, exact conjunction to co-ruler Mercury; Neptune is also his co-ruler. Neptune sextile Venus.

Clint Eastwood - Film star - Neptune in tight conjunction to his midheaven, trining his co-ruler Mars.

Hermann Goring - Third Reich Leader - he was wounded in the groin [bullet wound], during putsch and given morphine, of which he remained addicted for the rest of his life. His chart ruler Pluto is in exact conjunction with Neptune.

Mick Jagger - Musician - Neptune in sextile to chart ruling Sun, Leo ascendant and co-ruler Jupiter in Leo. Heavy drug and alcohol user.

Elton John - musician - Neptune in opposition to his ruling Sun.

I could go on endlessly with more and more examples, but here is the other side of Neptune. Neptune rules insanity. Neptune, as I mentioned already, its influence is undermining and weakening, self-pitying, unreliable and given the other aspects and placements in the chart, it can be a lot worse.

I have noted in the charts of many serial killers, rapists of children [on another note...child rapists and molesters often have the ruler of their eighth house of sex placed in the fifth house of children], have a prominent Neptune.

Judy Goodyear - murdered husbands and even her son [which she drowned after she poisoned him for a long period of time], for insurance policy money through use of poison. One can see an unbalanced personality here - Aries stellium indicating extreme selfishness in tight square aspect to Jupiter, amplifying these tendencies with no hard aspects from Saturn to offset this. Neptune in conjunction with her ascendant. Neptune at 0 degrees of Libra, a critical degree, more than likely on her Eastpoint.

Jeffrey Dahmer - serial killer - This guy was definitely schizoid. This is apparent if one has studied abnormal psychology. He was clearly insane from early childhood. 1st house Neptune.

David Berkowitz - serial killer - Neptune in exact sextile to ruling Pluto.

Richard Allen Davis - serial killer - Neptune in exact sextile to ruling Pluto. Sadistic with anger issues - bucket chart with Mars strong in Capricorn at the handle. 5 planets in the intense and sexual 8th house.

Arthur Shawcross - serial killer, brutal rapist and murderer of children - ruler of his 8th house, Sagittarius on the cusp, Jupiter in his fifth house of children. Neptune in exact trine to first house co-ruler Mercury.

> Ed Gein [where they got the movie 'Psycho']- serial killer, necrophile - Neptune in conjunction with co-ruling Jupiter. Other noted placements - chart ruler Mercury at 15 of Leo, a very unfortunate degree; one of the worst. Saturn in Pisces at the handle of a bucket configuration, in the tenth house, opposing the Sun, indicating problems with the father, that left deep and lasting scars as Saturn is at the handle which drives the chart, ruling the eighth house of sex, which has Capricorn on the cusp. Pluto/Moon opposition - domineering mother, close relationship. When I say 'drives the chart' I mean the influence is very strong in the way of some personal/psychological scars/hang-ups that never go away.

> Jeffrey MacDonald - murderer of children - Scorpio on the eighth house cusp, with its ruler Pluto in the fifth of children. Neptune in opposition to first house co-ruling Moon.

> William Heirens - child murderer - Aquarius on the cusp of the 8th house, with its co-ruling Saturn in the 5th. Neptune in tight ruling trine to chart ruler Moon.

> Gary Michael Heidnik - serial killer - devout Christian preacher and pastor; bishop. Held captive and also some murdered; several prostitutes in his basement where he tortured them. Neptune in conjunction to chart ruler Venus in the 12th house.

> Edmund Emil Kemper - serial killer, murderer and mutilator of teenagers - Aries on the cusp of the 8th house with its ruler Mars in the 5th of children.

> Howard Unruh - child killer - ruler of 8th in 5th.

Subject: Re: Prominent Neptune

My Neptune [Capricorn 8th House] is:

- Squaring my Sun
- Squaring my Mercury
- Sextiling my Moon
- Sextiling my Venus
- Sextiling my Saturn
- Sextiling my Pluto.

Downside: Many times [this was before meditation] I would feel incapable, confusion about myself, confusion in regards to my thoughts. Generally confusing thoughts. Illusions as far as my 'stamina' could go. Delusions about the self and perceptions about the self that were fake. Delusional paranoia episodes, fears that are not rational about myself. I.e Thinking of incapability, lack of worth etc. Delusionary emotions, sometimes. An 'Etherial' perception about life, like anything has a purpose or that the universe can be with me or against me type of thing.
Upside: Exceptional creativity in occult/psychic nature. Sudden flashes of Spiritual understanding [backed up by other things in my chart]. Sometimes exceptional creativity. I can create something out of nothing. Vivid imagination, I can feel things and attain experiences I never had just by listening to these. I can dive in and understand the emotions of others, severe empathy in some cases. Very deep emotions in love and idealizing everything [which can be bad]. Severe need for perfection in love. Intense drive to make it happen. When I'm on the downhill, about to miss something or in danger, I seem to have extreme emotional power. I can't tap to this with conscious effort. Sudden 'booms' of positive thoughts about spirituality, helps me understand and tune in to it. I never had tendencies for drugs. Or Alcohol or anything mind altering and I was disgusted by the idea. Though I had a severe need for spiritual experiences, which is fullfilled by Satanic meditation. Very deep emotional nature that sometimes I get lost in it, for better or worse. Though this mainly gives me self-awareness. Instead of being fooled and in the 'bad' side of Neptune, I see that this 'etherial' perception is actually helping things work out better in my life.

Thats my experience with this.

HAIL SATAN!!!!!!!!

It has given me kind of an addictive personality and escapist tendencies, I did hard drugs before but when I dedicated and started meditating I felt like this was the feeling I was looking for the whole time, not tripping balls at a rave getting grinded on by random kids. I don't even smoke or drink now, usually. I try to avoid alcohol because after a night of drinking I wake up and really want to get drunk again and that feeling lasts for like 3 days.

How do our astrology charts reveal what was done in past lives? And how do our charts change from one life to the next? Do we always incarnate with the same charts? I doubt they always remain the same because as a law of this universe things always change so I began to look at it as every chart is just the effect of a cause that was in the past life. But I am not sure how this all fits together.

Please explain if you have the answer to this.

Hail Satan!

HP Maxine Dietrich answered my question on the north and south nodes. (Thank you)

But I've still got questions.

What is the part of fortune?

What is the vertex?

What is the anti-vertex?

What is the midheaven?

Know ledge is power.

The midheaven is one of the 4 angles and the defines the 10th house. Physically it is directly above you, and the ascendant is the eastern horizon and descendant the western horizon.

Hello!

Does anyone know what the significance of an unaspected planet in the natal chart is? Is it a benevolent or malefic influence? I've heard that a person with an unaspected planet (no conjunctions, oppositions, squares, trines, or sextiles) is completely unaware of how they express that planet's energy, but everyone else can recognize it. Such as a person with an unaspected Mars who is unable to comprehend that they are extremely bossy and confrontational.

Does anyone else have this?

I have seen a few my past life charts and one thing that has remained the same for the most part is the position of Saturn and Uranus. Both a usually in Saggitarius. Exactly why? I am not sure, but I do believe my Uranus position makes it easier for me to find my way back to Satan(I have always been Satanic) as well as being innovative, and rebellious in the area of religion. The planets will never really repeat themselves exactly.

Not the exact that answer you're looking for, but you need to research Evolutionary Astrology. I recommend Jeff Green's books on Pluto relating to the nodes. He also has a web site, but I am not that impressed with it. There are also some other books that you can buy on that topic from the usual sources like Amazon, etc.

Subject: Saturn: A Verdict On Everyones Favorite Planet?

I know you have an opinion on Saturn. I have one too, or at least I used to. Now I have a collection of the different opinions which exist about Saturn that I am posting here. Saturn has been discussed to death for years now in these groups and in lots of other places on the internet, but that's cause there is no planet which is disagreed about as much as our friend Saturn.

So what's the truth?

Is Saturn just our enemy in every sense of the word with no positive qualities whatsoever?

Is Saturn the enemy? And if so why would a planet of the enemy as it's been mentioned, rule our base chakra and our skeletal system? Makes no sense to me, but if you know something about that which I’m missing please say.

Is Saturn connected to Satan? Both names have to do with opposition and sound very much alike, both are related to the base chakra and the sign of the Goat also. In fact Satan's two Zodiac signs Capricorn and Aquarius are ruled by Saturn or were so historically.

Is Saturn just the strict disciplinarian type who's only harsh on you for your own good?

Or is Saturn just like every other planet with it's fair share of good and bad qualities? After all it does rule the career, government, status, authority, etc. These things are pretty good if you can obtain them for yourself. Not to mention many of the very wealthy people do have Saturn in their money houses or a strong Saturn in there charts as it's mentioned on a number of astrology websites, 2nd & 8th notably but also 11th and 6th. But then of course the poor do also have the same placements.

Share your opinion, thoughts, knowledge. It's best to accept sometimes that there are some things we just don't know yet and that's the conclusion or lack there of; I'm left with when it comes to Saturn. But always looking to learn more so please talk.

HAIL SATAN!!

This article is an interesting read. I remember reading in "The Only Astrology Book You'll Ever Need" that every president nominated since 1900 during a void moon lost. This morning I did my research. Obama was nominated during a void moon.

"Obama officially received enough votes from the delegates in order to become the party's nominee at exactly 12:09 AM EDT, on September 6. The Moon was at 18° Taurus, and it was in fact void of course at the time...

Obama accepted the nomination later on September 6, at exactly 10:26 PM EDT. The Moon was at 29° Taurus, and it was still void of course"

Obama has lost, Romney is the next president of the United States.

Thank you for the replies Lydia and Shannon! :) I was concerned because I have a difficult time consciously expressing my unaspected planet. It feels like I’m always reaching for something that's just beyond my grasp, so it’s nice to know that this might be a blessing I just haven't figured out how to see/use yet.

Does the aspects to the planet ruling a house affect the affairs of the house itself?

For instance, if Leo is in the second house of money, and it's ruler the Sun is receiving a trine from Jupiter (expansion, abundance) would that mean the individual will have money and wealth?

And conversely say Cancer is in the Second house of money and it's ruler the Moon is being squared by Saturn, does that mean the individual is likely to be poor?

Mercury is currently stationed and will start to retrograde until November 26th. What should we be expecting? Car problems, bad phone service, inward thought?

Hope not he is full of crazy sauce. LOL

This post is from HP Maxine regarding mercury retrograde. "My daughter recently traveled to another city to meet up with her brothers for a vacation. Sure enough, Mercury went retrograde about half way through the week and her non-stop flight home was cancelled and she ended up having to spend the night in a hotel put up by the airline. She managed to catch the next available flight home, but she had to transfer planes and sit through a 10 hour layover in Houston. This is very typical of Mercury retrograde.>>Notable historical events affected by Mercury retrograde include:>
The sinking of the Titanic [April 1912]>>The sabotage of the Hindenburg [1937]>>The sinking of the Spanish Armada in 1588 [an unexpected gale blew up]>Columbus set sail to India and by accident wound up in America [1492]>>Atlanta Art Association chartered jet crashed in Paris, killing 130 [1962].>>Astronaut Gordon Cooper experienced radar malfunction, which caused delay and was forced to do manual entry on the final mission of Project Mercury Space Program [1963]>>European Space Communication satellite exploded upon takeoff [1977] Pakistani airline crash in Saudi Arabia killed 156; New Zealand airliner crashed in Antarctica killing 257 [both 1979]>>Delta airline jumbo jet crash at D/FW airport killed 137 [1985]>>AT&T phone operations disrupted for 9 hours [1990]>>Hubble Space Telescope went into orbit seven years after launch date, with immediate communications problems [1990]>>JAL Flight 123 - The crash of Japan Airlines Flight 123 in 1985 is the single-aircraft disaster with the highest number of fatalities. In this crash, 520 died on board a Boeing 747.>>March 3, 1974, Turkish Airlines Flight 981, a McDonnell Douglas DC-10, crashed in a forest northeast of Paris, France. The London-bound plane crashed shortly after taking off from Orly airport. All 346 people on board died.>>On September 1, 1983, a Soviet interceptor Sukhoi Su-15 shot down Korean Air Lines Flight 007 after it flew into Soviet airspace, killing all 269 passengers and crew [Mercury stationary, going retrograde]>>January 4, 1990 ï Sukkur rail disaster: A Multani Karachi Bahauddin Express collided head-on with standing 67 cars of freight train at Sangi station, Sukkur, Sindh, Pakistan. In an incident caused by railroad workers error of switched onto track line. Pakistani officials officially estimated killing 307 people, and another 500 more injured.>>The list is endless and the above are only a very few notable examples. Of course this does not mean that every flight, boat or train trip, etc., is doomed, as many disasters have occurred when Mercury was NOT retrograde and of course, many trips reached their destinations safely when Mercury WAS retrograde. My point here regarding Mercury retrograde is, if something can go wrong, the odds are that it very well might go wrong. Travel plans tend to get fowled up much more when Mercury is retrograde. Cars also break down more when Mercury is retrograde. Electronics and all communications also experience glitches when Mercury is retrograde.>>Electronics, technology, all forms of travel, all forms of communications, contracts, leases 'DON'T SIGN, DON'T BUY ANY OF THESE WHEN MERCURY IS RETROGRADE!' computers, stereos, TV sets... not a good time to treat the arms, the hands, the lungs, the nervous system, the nose, the brain... telephones tend to mess up, the media experiences glitches...>>Electronics, cars, boats, motorcycles; any transportation medium purchased when Mercury is retrograde or is about to go retrograde can experience malfunctions and other problems, much more than when Mercury is direct. This also includes signing important papers, leases, documents and such. You may overlook an important phrase or stipulation, or something may need changing. Test taking and exams may not proceed as smoothly. Buses often go on strike, there have been major riots that have occurred when Mercury was retrograde, meeting people can also go wrong, as giving precise and accurate directions and communications are off, snail mail is more likely to get misdirected and/or delayed.>>One thing Mercury retrograde is favorable for is doing editing and revising. This is a time to go over anything written, your website, or anything that was begun when Mercury was direct and do editing, correcting and such. Research can also be favorable when Mercury is retrograde.>>Travel, planning, communications, technology, education, business transactions; all areas ruled by Mercury have a much stronger tendency to be affected with glitches and delays. Plans are often altered by unexpected circumstances, such as Columbus winding up in America rather than India [very typical of retrograde Mercury], your house cusps that contain Gemini and Virgo, and the house with Mercury in it; the affairs of these can also go awry.>>>>>High Priestess Maxine Dietrich> http://www.joyofsatan.org

I've heard that a person with an unaspected planet (no conjunctions, oppositions, squares, trines, or sextiles) is completely unaware of how they express that planet's energy, but everyone else can recognize it. Such as a person with an unaspected Mars who is unable to comprehend that they are extremely bossy and confrontational.

So very recently I've been looking into astrology. I always knew it was on the JOS website but I never really tried reading it because it looked confusing which is stupid I know. But my understanding has been increasing a lot recently and I realized that astrology is a huge part in satanism especially when timing your magic and performing rituals of any kind. I'm still researching about it now but I was wondering if there is any others links any of you would recommend to me that can increase my understanding.

Most importantly... internet, computer failures. This affects our groups. emails getting lost. webpages getting unavailable for no reason.

And the most suspicious thing, yahoo groups will be upgrading their systems on Nov 18th. It's like they want a catastrophpe. I smell major problems with the groups near the 18th.

This article is an interesting read. I remember reading in "The Only Astrology Book You'll Ever Need" that every president nominated since 1900 during a void moon lost. This morning I did my research. Obama was nominated during a void moon.

"Obama officially received enough votes from the delegates in order to become the party's nominee at exactly 12:09 AM EDT, on September 6. The Moon was at 18° Taurus, and it was in fact void of course at the time...

Obama accepted the nomination later on September 6, at exactly 10:26 PM EDT. The Moon was at 29° Taurus, and it was still void of course"

Obama has lost, Romney is the next president of the United States.

The president was picked way before the election. You really think they'd have a non illuminatus or just some nobody get close to winning, no. the populations votes never count much, even when a president passes a law truely only congress can pass a law thats just his idea.
Hope not he is full of crazy sauce. LOL

I believe Saturn's so-called evil influences are just necessary. A world without boundaries and restrictions wouldn't sustain itself as it currently is. Capricorn represents the necessary structure to improve and reach the higher level of power and awareness, which is represented by Aquarius.

Saturn is responsible for testing and improving us before we reach Uranus, i.e. freedom, the superhuman state.

When the first Saturn Return occurs, the person has gone through all possible aspects between Saturn and the natal planets, and is then considered (astrologically) mature, a real adult. While it's not necessary to wait until the first Saturn Return, this marks the ideal time to perform the Magnum Opus.

From this point of view, Saturn can be considered "positive" or at least neutral. A powerful individual with enough knowledge can direct and take advantage from any planet's influences. Humanity has yet to reach the necessary level of awareness and spiritual power to naturally overcome Saturnian earthly difficulties; in other words, reach the Uranian state of true freedom.

Do you happen to have an account on astro.com? if not than do so :)

Now, aww.astro.com -> "Chart drawing, Ascendant" OR if you want to include some dwarf planets, centaurs or other things, chose "Extended Chart Selection".

The quick chart drawing will show you your planets in Zodiac signs and in Houses.

I suggest the 1st option is the best one to familiarise yourself with it :)

I ran across rulers of the houses in the houses a while ago, but nothing about aspects to house rulers.

I just thought of something and wanted your opinions of this. All my life, even as a child, I've noticed that I'm very balanced between masculine and feminine attributes. And we know that Sun represents masculine and Moon represents feminine.

My natal Sun is in Cancer, ruled by the Moon, and my Moon is in Leo, ruled by the Sun. I was born on Sunday hour of Moon. Coincidence?

I guess I'm mainly posting to get this group more active and thinking about various astrology stuff :)

How do i determine what the houses are? I mean I know my Sun and moon sign, and what sign my planets are in. But how do I find out which of the twelve houses there in? How do I do a natal chart?

I'm glad I went ahead and downloaded and saved in multiple spots all the pdfs from the groups.

Me too, I have only heard it mentioned that this matters but I have never found any source which describes the dynamics of aspects to house rules from planets. But like f.follets said it's important in determining the affects of empty houses. Both natal and in transits.

The houses are positions in the sky (hours) which the signs are at. If you get your chart at www.astro.com your house positions are at the bottom of the page.

If Taurus is your ascendant sign then most likely, Gemini is in your 2nd house, Cancer in the third house etc. But the ascendant spans from the middle of the 1st house to the middle of the 12th house so it can be in either. But the 1st house is usually the ascendant sign.

Here are the correspondences:

1st House = Mars = Aries: Physical body, physical energy.

2nd House = Venus = Taurus: Possessions, values.

3rd House = Mercury = Gemini: Mind, intellect, Communication.

4th House = Moon = Cancer: Emotions, Mother, Home, Family

5th House = Sun = Leo: Ego, Chi, Consciousness.

7th House = Venus/Chiron = Libra: Relationships

8th House = Mars/Pluto = Scorpio: Life processes, (Sex, Birth, Puberty, Menopause, Death, Rebirth; spiritual evolution)

9th House = Jupiter = Sagittarius: Philosophy, Religion, Expansion, Luck.

10th House = Saturn = Capricorn: Law, Career, Limitation, Misfortune.

12th House = Jupiter/Neptune = Pisces: Spirituality, Institutions, Hospitals, Charity.

So does that mean if my first house is Taurus that Because it is ruled by Venus that I should look at the description for Venus in the first house as my Physical body and energy?

or do the signs have their own house?

So you saying its where the signs positions were at the time of day are what houses your signs fall under. So then how do they affect me?

For example Taurus as my first house. Does that mean the description of Taurus is the depiction of my physical and outward appearance?

Sorry if that's too much questions

Hello, I am in need of some quick advice. I am due to have an operation to fix a small hernia this Thursday.

Pluto is transiting my natal Capricorn 6th house (6th house rules health) it's ruler Saturn is placed in my 8th house which rules the genitals.

A risk of a hernia operation for males is losing your testicles if the blood flow is obstructed, though this is only in very very rare cases that this happens. 3/4 out of 100 so I have heard.

However, I know Pluto transits to the 6th house can bring life changing health problems and me already having Capricorn in the house of health and it's ruler the malefic planet Saturn in the house which rules genitals and reproduction, I am seriously wondering if this is something to avoid.

My hernia is only small and it isn't a serious case, so I could begin healing myself, there would be plenty of time as I have had this hernia for 3 years already and it hasn't got any worse or caused me any pain so far.

Please help me! If you have any advice it's appreciated. I have had other major operations before but have never worried about them like I am worrying about this.

Thank you.

It appears as like a small squishy lump you can push in and out, just above your groin on your pubic bone. It's actually just a weakening of your stomach muscle resulting in a piece of your bowl coming through. Depending on how large is how serious it is.

Subject: Best time for Destruction Ritual?

This will most likely seem fairly simple to most of you, but I'm incredibly new to astrology and still trying to grasp certain aspects of it. To save all the details, there is someone who I am quite sick of that I want gone, and I'd like to make sure this all goes right.

So what exactly do I need to check here? So far I know I need to look out for a void-of-course moon, the moon's phase and what house it is in, and to make sure Saturn isn't screwing with me at the time.

Hail Father Satan!

Subject: George Bush

Someone suggested looking at the charts of famous people a while ago and I thought this was a really good idea to understand astrology better. So I have been looking at the charts of wealthy and famous people and trying to understand the aspects in their charts.

George Bush got his position in an oil company through his parents. He later managed football teams and then got elected as Texas governor.

He has Venus (Venus rules money) as the ruler of his tenth house (Status, Career) Conjunct his ascendant with a lot of powerful aspects to it.

Also the ruler of his 8th house which is Neptune, interestingly enough Neptune rules oil! (8th house = inheritance, big business) is conjunct the moon (rules family) and conjunct Jupiter (Success, Expansion, Prosperity)

He was introduced into big business, in an oil company, by his family and owes his prosperity to it. It's easy to see how the 8th house, Neptune, Moon and Jupiter are all coming into play in this case.

However the ruler of his ascendant, (ascendant rules image) which is the Sun (Sun rules identity and social standing) Conjunct Saturn (Saturn = Hardship)
And so there are many people who also dislike George Bush, probably he will be considered the worst US president in history.

I'm sure nobody wants to hear lots of boring details about his personal life and actually I don't know a whole lot about him other than that he's rich which I'm sure interests a lot of us.

So have a look and tell us what you think of it.

Because this is a George Bush post, I won't end it with a "Hail Satan", would be inappropriate for an Xian and a Freemason who done so much for the Jews and Israel.

Subject: Re: Best time for Destruction Ritual?

For magick you don't need to know what house the moon is in. Actually its different for everybody. The moon phase and sign and whether the moon is void is enough for magick. Best time for destruction and back magick is when moon is in Capricorn, scorpio, taurus works and pisces as well but Capricorn and Scorpio is best. Saturday and Tuesdays are best for Black magick. Those days are the days to perform them.

During hours of Mars and Saturn. Lunarium.co.uk has all the information on moon phase, sign and planetary hours etc you nneed for magick :) just go to edit and adjust it to your location.

Subject: Birth Charts
Hey guys i've just begun learning astrology and i got my free birth chart at http://alabe.com/freechart i did two charts because the first one i wasn't sure what time of the day i was born and it said if not sure use noon so i did and my rising sign was listed as virgo.... later that week i found out the exact time of birth which put my rising sign as Leo...

now my question here is about the rising sign specifically the chart where i used noon cause i wasn't sure what time i was born is ALOT more accurate than the one where i used my correct birth time....

is there a reason for this and which chart should i go by while learning to interpret the chart....

thank you for your responses

Most automated interpretations from astrology websites and softwares are extremely rudimentary. I strongly advise you to keep studying your chart with the correct birth time. It will make sense if you're sure of your birth time.

However, there's the possibility that Virgo is intercepted in your first house, meaning it's somewhat of a secondary ascendant. Your rising sign might be Leo but you'll still have many Virgoan characteristics because the sign is entirely contained within your most important house.

Sometimes a single degree is more than enough to change an entire interpretation.

His chart ruler, the Sun, which is already influential in its nature, is conjunct Sirius, a very powerful fixed star that brings honours and high positions in government. He was marked to be powerful.

I don't know how he was seen within his country, but for many of us who watched it from afar, he became famous for starting conflicts (MC in Aries) and spending absurd amounts of money funding them and investing in weaponry (Mars in the 2nd house of money and values). Interestingly, Mars is also conjunct the unfortunate fixed star Zosma that, along with Saturn (loosely) conjunct the Sun in the 12th house of self-undoing, contributed to his bad worldly image.

The Moon can indicate social standing and the way one deals with the public. In Libra, the Moon bestows charm and the talent to gain the favour of those around him. However, it is conjunct fixed star Algorab, which can bring deceptive, destructive, malevolent tendencies to the native. The Moon is conjunct Jupiter and he did come from a rich and influential family, but this also exaggerates all the themes represented by his Moon. His surely was a bad example of government - one not to be followed.

Venus in Leo in his second house rules the 4th house of family and origins and co-rules the 10th house. Uranus rules both the 7th house of relationships and the 8th house of inheritance, and is conjunct the North Node in the 11th house of friends and group associations. They both corroborate the lunar themes and we can say for sure that he was much helped and gained the favour of many while rising to power.

If I recall it well enough, he was satirised for supposedly being stupid, or at least "slow" in understanding. His 3rd house (mental assets) ruler Mercury conjunct the Ascendant and Pluto tell that in reality the opposite is true: he's probably very capable and cunning. Neptune also in the 3rd house creates the illusion that he's mentally underprivileged and brings forth, again, deceptiveness and the tendency to tell lies.

I seen his chart before, but this time I can see things much more clearly and easily. His sun is not conjunct his Saturn. From the chart given in the link GB’s sun is at 13 degrees Cancer and Saturn is at 26 degrees Cancer, and it is unpected in he 12th house. His speech problems more than likely come from a mixture of his Moon in the 3rd squaring his Sun, ad Mercury being at 9 degrees of Leo which is a weak placement for Mercury on a critical degree conjunct Pluto as well as that unpected Saturn in the 12th giving some real sick and disturbing skeletons in the closet. Clealy a psychopath who wants to watch the whole world burn.

Thanks for clearing that up. By the way how close do two planets have to be before they're considered conjunct?

f.follets yours is by far a better explanation than what I gave I am still learning. Btw thank you for mentioning Sirius to me, this is the first I have heard of this star, I have looked it up and it sounds incredible. I will be meditating on the energy of this star tonight!

Someone suggested looking at the charts of famous people a while ago and I thought this was a really good idea to understand astrology better. So I have been looking at the charts of wealthy and famous people and trying to understand the aspects in their charts.

George Bush got his position in an oil company through his parents. He later managed football teams and then got elected as Texas governor.

He has Venus (Venus rules money) as the ruler of his tenth house (Status, Career) Conjunct his ascendant with a lot of powerful aspects to it.

Also the ruler of his 8th house which is Neptune, interestingly enough Neptune rules oil! (8th house = inheritance, big business) is conjunct the moon (rules family) and conjunct Jupiter (Success, Expansion, Prosperity)

He was introduced into big business, in an oil company, by his family and owes his prosperity to it. It's easy to see how the 8th house, Neptune, Moon and Jupiter are all coming into play in this case.

However the ruler of his ascendant, (ascendant rules image) which is the Sun (Sun rules identity and social standing) Conjunct Saturn (Saturn = Hardship)

And so there are many people who also dislike George Bush, probably he will be considered the worst US president in history.

I'm sure nobody wants to hear lots of boring details about his personal life and actually I don't know a whole lot about him other than that he's rich which I'm sure interests a lot of us.

So have a look and tell us what you think of it.

Because this is a George Bush post, I won't end it with a "Hail Satan", would be inappropriate for an Xian and a Freemason who done so much for the Jews and Israel.

Here, there are some who would gladly bow down and lick the dirt off his shoes. There are more that see him as an incompetent fool trying to live up to his father's name. Again, with his father, there are those that come awfully close to worshiping him, there are others who view him as a money grubbing war mongerer who couldn't finish what he started. I just thought I'd put in my two cents as we have non U.S. residing members and I happen to live in the U.S. Hail Satan!

The Moon is conjunct Jupiter and he did come from a rich and influential family, but this also exaggerates all the themes represented by his Moon. His surely was a bad example of government - one not to be followed.

His 3rd house (mental assets) ruler Mercury conjunct the Ascendant and Pluto tell that in reality the opposite is true: he's probably very capable and cunning. Neptune also in the 3rd house creates the illusion that he's mentally underprivileged and brings forth, again, deceptiveness and the tendency to tell lies.

Subject: Re: Types of aspects
Conjunctions, oppositions, trines, squares and sextiles are the traditional aspects and are usually considered "major". Quincunxes, sesquiquadrates, semi-squares and semi-sextiles are considered minor. Some say the sextiles and quincunxes are "intermediate" aspects, not as important as the major, but more influential than the minor ones. However, in practice, the "strength" and nature of each aspect have much more to do with the planets or points involved than the aspects themselves.

The aspects are angles that planets make to each other, but in other words they are simply divisions of the zodiac wheel: the opposition is a division by 2, the trine a division by 3, the square a division by 4 and so on. Since there are 12 signs, 4 elements (fire, earth, air, water) and 3 modalities (cardinal, fixed, mutable) and together they form the most basic framework with which we can interpret the chart, these divisions always point to predictable, repetitive themes.

Trines occur when planets/points are 4 signs away from each other, meaning they are of the same element but a different modality. They are naturally attuned and their energies flow together, combining the different modalities with ease, thus usually bringing positive results. Sextiles (which are "half-trines") occur when planets/points are 2 signs away from each other. In this case, they are in different but complementary elements (Fire-Air, Earth-Water) and, even though they go well with each other, their expression isn't as natural as with the trines and this is why they are considered weaker.

Oppositions occur when points are 6 signs away from each other and, being so different in nature (literally opposites), the signs involved are conflicting, but can be worked with since they are of complementary elements and the same modality. Squares, occurring when points are 3 signs away, can be even more tense and challenging. The points are in very distinct signs, of conflicting elements, but also in the same modality. They can be resolved with time and knowledge, but often cause many problems.

Conjunctions are regarded as most important because they unify the natures and energies of two planets in one sign, element and modality, whether or not the planets themselves are compatible. Together, they have an unimpeded channel of expression (unless adversely aspected by other planets) through the sign they're in; therefore they are often promptly apparent in one's life or way of being, for better or worse.

This was supposed to be a brief explanation, but I guess this is for everyone who wants to know more about aspects. I hope it helped somehow.

What does a 1st house emphasis signify exactly? It's puzzling me because all the other houses rule something that a lot can be said for, but the 1st house is just the self pretty much, which seems like not much compared to the other houses. I have Sun, Pluto, Venus, and Mercury here all in Scorpio.

(Jupiter and Mars also in Scorpio but 2nd house)

In a natal chart, it's basically the same thing. However, the faster planet will always be the one aspecting the slower, so it would be more correct to write Mars/Pluto aspects.

Pluto takes many years to cross a single sign, while Mars crosses the entire Zodiac in 2 years. It is Mars that trines/squares/opposes/etc. Pluto, since it moves so much faster. Mercury, for example, would be the one aspecting Mars, since it's even faster. The Moon is the fastest planet and is always the one making the aspects, never the contrary.

In transits, though, there's a big difference between Pluto/Mars and Mars/Pluto since the transiting planets are moving "around" a static natal chart. A Mars/Pluto square happens every year and can bring issues related to violence, intensity or self-assertion, but it lasts only a few days. A Pluto/Mars square usually happens only once in a lifetime and can last months, bringing life-changing circumstances.

Saturn is transiting my eigth house now. :-| When that happens that means financial issues and or money may be tight. Also someone who you rely on for paying bills or anything like that can have financial issues as well. Saturn transits a house for about 2 and a half years. The best thing to do for any Saturn tranist is to meditate and keep your energies high. For Saturn transiting eigth house do money meditations and such to balance it out. Venus or Sun square is good for that attracting money.

For me when Saturn transited my 8th it was a bad time especially in the beginning. I had moved away and went to a christian boarding school. Things got worse when it was aspecting my natal Sun, Jupiter, and Mercury. However, I grew up and learned lessons of mistrust and more. The whole time I was very interested in anything occult or spiritual. When summer came around I read a lot of occult related books on my computer since my internet was no longer heavily censored. I read something about demons, sparked my interest, felt right, came across JoS then dedicated about 2 weeks later, all while Saturn was conjuncting my natal stellium in the 8th(for the second time due to retrograde).

Neptune rules lies, hoaxes, weakness and deceit. The nazarene is all of these. I can add that back in. I didn't think it was important when I edited it out. Now, the God Neptune is totally different and rules the oceans, meditation, etc. The nazarene is a very ugly and negative aspect of Neptune.

Subject: Saturn aspected planets
If a planet is nataly aspected by Saturn then aspected by transiting Saturn are the negative effects diminished? I ask because Saturn is opposing my natal Moon right now and I really don't feel anything, my natal Moon squares Saturn. And a year ago Saturn went over my natal Venus which was trine Saturn when I was born, I didn't even notice. However I did notice when it conjuncted my natal Sun, Mercury, and Jupiter, which did not aspect Saturn at my time of birth.

Respected Senior members, moderator and my dear friends,

I am also learner and beginner in astrology. I read all the posts about Rahu in 7H. I came to know many things. I have one doubt can we advice the native to wear Gomedh if Rahu is in 7H. Does it signify a yog for love marriage. Further more if Rahu is in 11H e.g. I am showing my own birth data.

Name : Sumit
Date of Birth: 10 February 1981 Tuesday
Time of Birth: 09:43 PM
Place of Birth: Bhubaneswar (Orissa), India
Latitude: 20.13N Longitude: 85.50E

It is a Virgo ascendant chart, Rahu is in 11th house cancer i.e. in its Mool Trikon sign. Lord of mool trikon sign i.e. Moon is on 8H i.e. my moon sign in Aries. Currently moon mahadasha going on.After this Mars and after that Rahu mahadasha will come. Will this mahadasha be good for me. Sir I know astrology little but a “little learning is dangerous”. So I neither apply it on me nor on others. I am not asking anything personal. Dear senior members and moderator please do not mind I am humbly requesting to educate me. You are the experts, professionals and experienced only you can clear my doubts and teach me well. I see my astrology teacher(s) in you. Therefore I am asking you all. I read Rahu in 11th will be beneficial for money from foreigners or from foreign land. In a site I read Garga hora states that “Yasya labhagato rahur labho bhavati nischayat Mleschadhipatito noonam gajavaja radhadikam (Garga hora)

[For the one for whom Rahu is in 11th house, fore sure gain of wealth would happen (this every body knows - and is a general statement; a known result restated). (A special result to be noted is that) He will gain special rewards (in the form of heavy vehicles) such as elephant, horse, chariot etc from the king (of near by land; adjoining kingdom; place away from native land) who does not follow the vedic path] Now I have following doubts:

Doubt 1: Please whether it is a Raj Yog or not? Some books/sites say it yes some say it no. I got confused.

Doubt 2: I want to know how will Rahu behave for the above native i.e. me. Will it be beneficial fully or partly. Can this person wear Gomedh at anytime or only during Rahu mahadasha. Currently I am wearing a white sapphire in gold ring on middle finger, a pearl on little finger and an emerald on ring finger. Can I wear Gomedh. Can pearl and Gomedh be worn together.

Doubt 3: On one site http://astrobix.com/hindu_astrology/post/rahu-11th-house-11th-house-rahu [dot] aspx. I read this: The eleventh house is influenced by both Saturn and Jupiter. (In my horoscope both Jupiter & Saturn are retrograde and are sitting together on ascendant i.e. on Virgo sign.) A person with an eleventh house Rahu is rich as long as his father is alive. He may face some financial problems after his father's death. He should wear a gold chain after his fathers death. (My father is alive does it mean that I ’ll become
But you see what I mean, gives some Aries traits. Very little can be said about it compared to other houses.

Compare this to say a 11th house emphasis, friends will be significant in the persons life, has a wide circle of friends, depending on which planet, helpful friends, unusual friends, love relationship begin with friends etc.

Basically life events can be predicted from the other houses, first house, the traits of the planet there just gets added to your personality.

Thanks for helping. So what is your chart like? And what do you think of your chart ch_3_coo? I'm not that good on astrology yet but I like learning it with people.

I can relate to all those things you just mentioned btw but there is too much to say on it all, so I won't act too selfishly and give you an essay lol.

Well Saturn is my chart ruler in the 1st retrograde in Aquarius, square Pluto and the Moon, trine Venus. Neptune and Uranus are in the 12th both conjunct ascendant and retrograde, so the energy of those two seep into my personality as well. I've been thinking about that Uranus/Aquarius a lot recently and I think it accounts for my attitude towards "authority", it disgusts me how someone can go on a power trip and get a superiority complex, and it really disgusts me how servile people can be. Anyway, 8th house stellium with Sun, Mercury, and Jupiter in Virgo. Venus in Libra square Neptune.
I think I have a pretty decent chart. However with my chart ruler retrograde I feel like my life hasn't really started, I feel like I'm stuck and waiting for something to shake up my life, I feel like I'm just going through the motions for now. I'd be happy to send it to you once I get home from the holiday.

What does a 1st house emphasis signify exactly? It's puzzling me because all the other houses rule something that a lot can be said for, but the 1st house is just the self pretty much, which seems like not much compared to the other houses. I have Sun, Pluto, Venus, and Mercury here all in Scorpio.

(Jupiter and Mars also in Scorpio but 2nd house)

I have something I need to start on the day one of my current retrogrades ends. How can I find out the exact time the planet will go direct again?
I am using a transit calendar from astro.com, if that matters?

I was thinking about opposites with signs and (traditional) ruling planets. Gemini/Virgo (Mercury) are opposite to Sagittarius/Pisces (Jupiter), and Taurus/Libra (Venus) - Scorpio/Aries (Mars), (Sun/Moon) Cancer /Leo - (Saturn) Capricorn/Aquarius.

The Sun and Moon have some kind of special relationship I guess, since moonlight is from the Sun.

Each planet is paired Earth/Air or Water/Fire, giving them all a kind of balance, or like north pole south pole.
Maybe it has to do with advanced geometry or something.

Another thing I was wondering, if a person is Pisces rising, or Aquarius or Scorpio, do they have 2 chart rulers? Or would Neptune be the main one and Jupiter the co-ruler? Or the other way around.

Try lunarium.co.uk. Just make sure you change the location to yours; but it shows the times.

In traditional astrology, the signs and planets follow some patterns that expand the themes of the Zodiac and are very interesting. Everything begins with the Luminaries (Sun and Moon) and ends with Saturn.
Starting from Cancer/Leo, the rulers of the next pairs of signs follow the natural order of the Solar System: first Mercury (Gemini/Virgo), then Venus (Taurus/Libra), then Mars (Aries/Scorpio), then Jupiter (Pisces/Sagittarius), then Saturn (Capricorn/Aquarius).

The planets do rule opposite elements as you noticed and this particular pattern of sign, element and modality rulership is very important because it reflects the themes of the planets and signs themselves.

The Sun and the Moon (twins and/or lovers in mythology) rule cardinal/fixed signs and form the core inner(yin)/outer(yang) duality present in every living being. They are the givers of life and often represent the early years of development. They complement each other and together they are the basis of the human character.

Mercury and Jupiter (father and son in mythology) rule the mutable signs exclusively, which are mental and philosophical. Together they rule the realm of theories and ideas and work as bridges to the other signs.

Venus and Mars (husband and wife in mythology) also rule cardinal/fixed signs and also complement each other. The duality shows up again, now in the realm of social interactions. Diplomacy, quarrels, sharing and everything "I versus You" is ruled by these two.

Saturn alone rules the last two signs, which are cardinal/fixed as well. As the eldest, the patriarch, the slowest/farthest planet, the bringer of death, Saturn rules the realm of that which is beyond control but also what we strive to achieve. He rules the signs of achievement, higher ideals and wishes, but also of old age and transcendence of the physical body and other limitations. He rules the very boundaries of the system.

Everything is connected, balanced and patterned. There are many other patterns in astrology and at this point I have to say that I just love all this st. One can learn a lot about everything just by looking for patterns, but probably the only reason why someone would write such a ridiculously long post about these little things is because they have Gemini rising.

Now, answering your question: yes, these signs have the outer planets as main rulers but Jupiter, Mars or Saturn would co-rule the chart.

Thank you for answer but i am still confused.

I will make it simple.

Lets say i want to start magical square for Venus TODAY.

According to western zodiac Venus is in Scorpio ( in its detriment ) i should not do it
But when i look at the sky Venus is just entering Libra ( its Ruler sign !!! )

So what's so important about stars structure from the date they were first created ( during ancient Greek Times ) that they override current location in the sky.

It was noticed that people were a certain way or had certain qualities about them when born during certain times of the year. They reflected that upon the sky to create the zodiac.

There should be something in the photos section that I posted written by Albert Pike from Morals & Dogma that discusses the origins more in depth. If there isn't, let me know & I will post them.

The reason the tropical zodiac is used is BECAUSE IT WORKS AND IT'S FOUND TO GIVE ACCURATE RESULTS. That's what's important with it, no other reason. In astrology it only matters when you make accurate predictions and give accurate results with the system you're using, not where are the planets now. In all kinds of divination and magick we use the same principle, do what works. Some things may not make sense with our CURRENT LEVEL OF KNOWLEDGE, but if they use them and they work, hey who argues about that? It's useless trying to understand something that uses your right-brain using left-brained logic.

There are many other things in astrology are different than reality, not just the tropical zodiac. Of course if you think them using left brained logic they are not supposed to work, but they do.

For example, not all constellations are 30 degrees each in reality, some are larger some are smaller even though in astrology they are all treated as the same size. And there's the constellation Ophiuchus between Scorpio and Sagittarius which isn't considered in astrology. Then the aspects, the planets are not actually on the same spot when they're in conjunction. The more distant planet is behind the nearer planet by thousands of miles. If you use left brained logic, it doesn't make sense how two planets being in exactly 120+-5 degrees apart (trine) would affect us. Then the whole diagram thing and rulerships, do you see diagrams and charts in the sky? Do you hear the planets talk and say "I rule over this zodiac sign and I'm the ruler of that house"? Do you even see houses in the sky? No, of course humans made up all of these things.

But this way they are they do work and are found to affect humans, even if you don't see all these using a telescope and even if you can't think logically how all these configurations can affect us. The way we discovered all these is not via left-brained thinking, but via observations and seeing what happens.

For some people, systems do have to make sense if they are to learn and use them. He asked the same questions many competent astrologers still ask, and while it's true that the tropical zodiac does give accurate results (which is why I use it myself, like most of us) it's also true that there's currently no known reason for that at all.

Astrology is different from all the other kinds of divination for it is a system built upon the observation of the celestial bodies and their predictable movements, which relies on pure mathematics. Naturally, when it comes to the practical part of it, astrology is mostly subjective but there's hardly anything "right-brained" in its roots. Besides, incorrect data will certainly lead to incorrect interpretations and, by all it's currently known, using the tropical zodiac is indeed technically wrong. Doubt consequently shows up.

Everyone should argue, especially here, a Satanist group. Don't be unhelpful.

Unfortunately it is much more complicated.

Before Pope Gregory XIII, people were following Lunar calendar (13 month, 28 day lunar cycle) which is 364 long (one day missing), so actual seasons shifted from the time constellation were drawn!!!

Sorry i am not putting a single shred of trust into a XIAN calendar.

Did rules of astrology change when Gregorian Calendar was established ?? if not its probably useless, if it was i am not aware of it then i would like to be corrected in here ( thus all my questions about this subject ), since i consider it important issue and dont want to spread any false claims.

According to western zodiac Venus is in Scorpio ( in its detriment ) i should not do it
But when i look at the sky Venus is just entering Libra ( its Ruler sign !!! )

So what is so important about stars structure from the date they were first created ( during ancient Greek Times ) that they override current location in the sky.

Ok both of you can disregard my previous post now i got it.

According to western zodiac constellations are not signs.

Lunarium.co.uk and also planetwatcher website is good too. If you search online you will find many sites that show you when the planets are retrograde.

The seasons are tied to the Earth's rotation angle in relation to the path of the sun along the ecliptic & nothing else, aka the tropical zodiac. It's not complicated in the least. It's actually that simple, as that is what the tropical zodiac is. That is what creates the seasons.

The seasons stopped being connected to the constellations - obviously. That does not take away from the connections to the seasons, as the season's are a direct result of the tropical zodiac and nothing else.

Unfortunately it is much more complicated.

Before Pope Gregory XIII, people were following Lunar calendar (13 month, 28 day lunar cycle) which is 364 long (one day missing), so actual seasons shifted from the time constellation were drawn!!! true that there's currently no known reason for that at all.

Astrology is different from all the other kinds of divination for it is a system built upon the observation of the celestial bodies and their predictable movements, which relies on pure mathematics. Naturally, when it comes to the practical part of it, astrology is mostly subjective but there's hardly anything "right-brained" in its roots. Besides, incorrect data will certainly lead to incorrect interpretations and, by all it's currently known, using the tropical zodiac is indeed technically wrong. Doubt consequently shows up.

Everyone should argue, especially here, a Satanist group. Don't be unhelpful.

In all kinds of divination and magick we use the same principle, do what works. Some things may not make sense with our CURRENT LEVEL OF KNOWLEDGE, but if they use them and they work, hey who argues about that? It's useless trying to understand something that uses your right-brain using left-brained logic.

For example, not all constellations are 30 degrees each in reality, some are larger some are smaller even though in astrology they are all treated as the same size. And there's the constellation Ophiuchus between Scorpio and Sagittarius which isn't considered in astrology. Then the aspects, the planets are not actually on the same spot when they're in conjunction. The more distant planet is behind the nearer planet by thousands of miles. If you use left brained logic, it doesn't make sense how two planets being in exactly 120+-5 degrees apart (trine) would affect us. Then the whole diagram thing and rulerships, do you see diagrams and charts in the sky? Do you hear the planets talk and say "I rule over this zodiac sign and I'm the ruler of that house"? Do you even see houses in the sky? No, of course humans made up all of these things.

But this way they are they do work and are found to affect humans, even if you don't see all these using a telescope and even if you can't think logically how all these configurations can affect us. The way we discovered all these is not via left-brained thinking, but via observations and seeing what happens.

Sorry i am not putting a single shred of trust into a XIAN calendar.

Did rules of astrology change when Gregorian Calendar was established ?? if not its probably useless, if it was i am not aware of it then i would like to be corrected in here ( thus all my questions about this subject ), since i consider it important issue and dont want to spread any false claims.

I doubt that competent astroglos need to ask those and I doubt these are relevant questions to astrology. Those who are too left-brained are not suitable to practice astrology for obvious reasons. You see the method of testing here is as follows:

1)Try a system
2)Try to make a prediction or an analysis.
3)Is that analysis or prediction correct? If no, try a different system or evaluate different things or make a different calculation. Do that until you're getting correct predictions.

There's no "making sense" involved here, so that's completely irrelevant. Maybe it would apply to other things, but not here. It's because we aim to what WORKS and feels right, and not what makes sense or not. We use our right brains, besides the calculations part.

If astrology made complete sense it wouldn't give any "supernatural" results like prediction, as it means that it's so lowered down to our limited brain and cannot deal with anything higher than that. And it that case we deal with something higher than what we can understand, because we currently can't understand what mechanism causes us to predict the future.

I understand (and agree with) what you're saying, but that's not the point. The topic here is the system which, in the case of the tropical zodiac, is considered flawed according to what we currently know. It's evident that the true astrologer is the one who gives the right answers regardless of the system, however the system itself is intrinsic to astrology and therefore is all-important.

I won't go through the details because for all I know I'm not an astronomer, but anyone wanting to know more about some of the incoherences found in the tropical zodiac should look for the Precession of Equinoxes.

Now, I'm sorry if I seem rude saying this, but though I believe you must know quite a lot about astrology and that you're trying to help somehow, it's really not up to you to dictate what it is about or what anyone needs to care about or not, and that's why you're being unhelpful. For you things work like this, yet for others it may be quite different.

As astrology itself explains, anyone with strong Mercury/Gemini/Virgo placements, for instance, will more than likely want to know reasons, especially the technical.

I am not an astrologer so I can't really tell. All I can do is to take someone else's word for it, thus my constant questions.

As I wrote I finally figure out the logic behind western zodiac, there is no logical contradictions that I see at point and my curiosity was satisfied.

Oh and left brain logic only fails when it is based on wrong assumptions, otherwise it's a wonderful tool.

I know all about both systems and have worked with both systems. I have been an astrologer for close to 40 years. I am a professional and I will tell you, the Vedic/Sidereal for whatever reason is not accurate. I use the tropical. Certain aspects of Vedic astrology are helpful, such as the nature of the planet is more important than the nature of the aspects. For example, squares and oppositions from Jupiter are usually of a beneficial nature, especially with transiting planets, solar returns and such, while trines from Saturn can be a down time.

Firestarter is correct as far as I am concerned. In order to do a competent astrology reading, one must use one's psychic abilities, along with the information given on the planets. This is because no two charts are exactly the same. The astrological chart is a map of the soul and is as individual as one's fingerprints. Two people can have the exact same aspects, but given the affairs of the houses ruled by the planets, and the other aspects and planetary placements, that same aspect will manifest differently in the two charts. In addition, psychic energy must be used in determining how a certain chart pattern or configuration will manifest in one's life.

Science has not progressed far enough [because of xianity and its ilk], to where it can explain the spiritual. Kirian photography for one can photograph the aura, but the chakras still cannot be seen. Science is making great strides in deciphering thoughts and with this, may soon be able to see the energy centers of the soul, but given the jews dominate this field, much of what is given to the public has been corrupted, especially in the way of anything spiritual.

I know all about the equinoxes and the synetic vernal point, and the sidereal aspects of astrology and as I already wrote, I have studied both systems and have found the sidereal system to be seriously flawed when doing plenty of research. The characteristics of the planets in the signs and other given information of the vedic system does not fit me or the many others I have studied.
This has been my own experience. I also came across a woman in an occult bookstore who did not like the sidereal vedic system and told me of an astrologer who read for her who used this system, who was not only 'way off' in predictions, but the entire reading was flawed.

Let's say I want to start a magical square for Venus today.

According to the western zodiac, Venus is in Scorpio (in its detriment) and I should not do it. But when I look at the sky, Venus is just entering Libra (its Ruler sign!!!)

So, what's so important about the stars' structure from the date they were first created (during ancient Greek times) that they override the current location in the sky?

I was misunderstood twice. I don't think the sidereal zodiac provides accurate descriptions for anyone, it's not good for practical use, it's only more _technically_ correct because it uses the real positions of the planets in the sky. I had already said that I use the tropical zodiac as well, it was merely food for thought.

My only concern here was that firestarter completely ignored the possibility that someone might want to know why things work the way they do. I'll naturally disagree with anyone who says that no one cares about these questions simply because in astrology "we" (who?) don't need to know reasons, just work with things as if they were facts. He/she (idk, sorry) dismissed the need for further discussion and acquisition of more knowledge.

As for using the right brain/psychic energy to read charts, well, I never said that's wrong. I only argued that the foundation of a chart is purely mathematical, that this very math is intrinsic to the system used, and that it is from all this data that we put the right brain to work. Again, food for thought.

Subject: Questions For an experienced Astrologist
I have a question regarding south nodes and our loved ones. H.P. Maxine said that often times in the case of love ones there are close connections between our planets and there south nodes. How close is close are we talking conjunction or in the same sign or with in a 5 to 15 degree range? I am asking because there are a lot of people who are in my life who have been in my life a long time. But there south node appears in a part of my chart with no planets; but my south node appears in their charts where there is a planet. Which I feel like that means their supposed to be in my life but I'm not supposed to be in theirs by fate; or it could mean nothing at all. That's why I'm asking.

Hail Satan!

Thank you for answer but i am still confused.

I will make it simple.

Lets say i want to start magical square for Venus TODAY.

According to western zodiac Venus is in Scorpio ( in its detriment ) i should not do it

But when i look at the sky Venus is just entering Libra ( its Ruler sign !!! )

So what's so important about stars structure from the date they were first created ( during ancient Greek Times ) that they override current location in the sky.

It is said that the Vertex and Anti-Vertex work as the other angles in the chart. Any planet or point tightly aspecting or, more importantly, conjunct the Vertex assumes special importance on the chart and the life of the native.

The Vertex has to do with fate, like the Lunar Nodes, but differently from the latter it focuses primarily on fateful meetings or relationships. The reason for that seems to be that it always falls between houses 4 and 9, which concern others.

I have done little research on the practical nature of the Vertex/Anti-Vertex axis but it's commonly accepted that important people on the life of the native will more than likely have some planet conjunct or tightly aspecting his/her Vertex, as with the Nodes. Also, when two people meet by fate, either one of them will have a progressed planet conjunct the other's Vertex or their current Solar or Lunar return (usually both) will show important points conjunct the axis. The timing of these fated encounters always seems to be very precise and they are mostly beyond control.

In my area, the current void course of moon is for 3 days, according to Cronos XP. Is Cronos right? Should I not do any kind ritual or energy work for 3 whole days?

I would look at another source. 3 days is a little ridiculous.

There's something wrong with your statement :/

Chrons XP doesn't report the void courses of the moon!!!
It only reports the planetary hours and the phases of the moon!

So i would suggest using this site for the void courses
http://www.lunarium.co.uk/calendar/universal.jsp

Remember to setup your correct location on the top of the page.

Also...
When the Moon is in a void course you CAN continue rituals you have already started, but DON'T start new rituals during the void course moon.

About energy work...
It seems to me that void course moon is irrelevant. I have started energy workings in void course moon. The only difference is that during the void course you have to try a little harder to feel the energy.

Hope this helps

Subject: Chart Reading Game

This group has been pretty idle lately, and as I always find myself with lots of free time at the end of the year, I tried to come up with a way to learn more, improve my chart reading skills while helping others and increasing group activity as well. I don't know if something similar has been done here before, but I propose a Chart Reading Game:

OVERVIEW

Participants will be divided in Astrologers and Applicants, their roles are self-explanatory. The game's objective is simple: give as many readings as possible with good accuracy and useful insights to Applicants, while Astrologers get to test and hone their reading skills with real charts.

Studying the charts of the rich and famous is good, but reading the charts of anonymous, everyday people can teach much more. Accurately reading any chart is what makes a true astrologer and practice makes perfect.

HOW IT WORKS

Applicants will anonymously send their charts to an email, which will be handled by me and the other Astrologers. The charts will then be picked by the Astrologers, who will compose a (preferably) small, concise reading. As soon as the Astrologer finishes the job, the reading will be posted here for everyone to see and comment.

RULES AND INSTRUCTIONS

For Applicants:
1. Anyone who wants to have their chart read should apply by sending a message to chartreading.game@... with the subject APPLICATION.
2. After applying, you should send your chart ANONYMOUSLY through http://www.astro.com

3. Applicants can send their charts until December 21st, 2012.
4. ONLY ONE chart per Applicant. If the number of applicants and charts aren't equal, the odd ones will be left out.
4.1. Should this happen, the latest charts received and not yet read by an Astrologer will be left out.

For Astrologers:
1. Anyone who wants to be an Astrologer may apply HERE, in this thread and then send a message to chartreading.game@... with the subject ASTROLOGER.
1.1. Astrologers will be given access to the email account and will find further instructions therein.
1.2. Astrologers MUST apply here as well. Anyone who fails to do this won't be given access to the account.
2. Anyone may apply, but please be reasonable. Only those who really think they can give helpful readings should opt-in.
3. Astrologers who also want to have their charts read should follow the rules for Applicants.
4. If possible, all charts should be processed until December 31st, 2012.

NOTES

This is a GAME with educational and entertainment purposes. All participants should take the readings given here as amateur. Anyone who wants to have their chart read by a professional should refer to High Priestess Maxine's services.

I have run some tests with Astrodienst's systems and everything seems to be fine and working well. I believe we can trust the system for securely and steadily sending and receiving charts, as well as maintaining anonymity.

Please let me know if you have any question or something to add.

Just talking my conspirator brain here, none should give their birthchart anywhere, for obvious reasons. I would say just try to read other person's charts, or just guess dates. As to not expose pesonal information.

I have another question, does new moon affect workings in any way?

In the books, astrologers have always used clients' charts to teach analysis and techniques. Of course, all charts are anonymous and people usually agree with that beforehand, which is one of the reasons why everyone must apply before sending the charts.

This isn't just for those who want to read charts, this is especially for people who can't read their charts or just want to gain new insights they wouldn't have had themselves.

I designed the game to be as secure as possible for everyone. No one besides the Astrologers will ever know who applied for the readings and the charts will be sent anonymously through a 3rd party website everyone knows well. There will be way to tell who the charts belong to.

The readings posted here will not contain the charts themselves because I couldn't find a way to get rid of the birthplace (which is sensitive information) in the chart and doing this by other means would take just too much time, so there will be just some delineations so that we can understand the chart and so that the sender may know that the chart is theirs. After the game is over, the email account will be deleted as well.

Also, Astrologers must apply here on the group, so if anything goes wrong, we will have a very limited and explicit group of people to look for and take appropriate measures. I'll probably be the one to blame in the end anyway.

I'm sure things won't come to this, however.

Subject: Re: Ritual or any working during void course of MOON

No problem, don't worry about it.

When the moon is new... is the phase which is starting to fill again.

Generally, from new moon until full moon, it's the period to start beneficial workings/rituals. For example workings/rituals to attract money are started during the filling of the moon.

From after the full moon till the next new moon, it's the period to start destruction workings/rituals. For example starting a ritual to destroy your enemies, or breakup a relationship (of your enemies).

The above are just general guidelines. As you learn more and more about astrology, you can use the stars /planets to your advantage. This way your workings/rituals can be more powerful.

Hope this helps

Hail Satan!

What can your chart tell you about who your significant other will be? I have Venus in the 9th, so someone not from the US is all I've figured so far. How can transits indicate a potential soul mate? Solar returns, etc? If you have a majority of Earth signs do you attract Watery people? If Air do you attract Fire? Would the 8th house of deep soul mate contacts tell you anything?
Sorry if I'm sounding like a teenage girl, I have Venus in Libra closely squaring Neptune conjunct my ascendant. I think about it a lot, needless to say. Any input is really appreciated.
I have a question regarding my date of birth. I was born: Capricorn, Day: 11 Hour: 2:40
Now my question is, if it is coincidence?
the numbers are of Satan. but when I think of it, Satan does not do such things, or does he?

That's nice! It's fun finding such combinations! :)
It may have a special meaning like you said, but there's no reason in my opinion to look for these (if it's not just for fun).

What i mean is... don't get too obsessed with such things (i was too in the past) as they may cause you to think too highly of yourself. Even though self confidence is not a bad thing, by thinking too highly of yourself, the enemy might use this and lead you to delusion. Many brothers and sisters have fallen victims to this tactic (and me too, i'm talking from personal experience). So be cautious of this!

I think the most important thing is to check your Natal chart and see the possible planets (or combinations) that might cause you problems and counterbalance them with meditations.

Hope this makes sense

Thank you brother, I'm not too obsessed at all, just trying to figure out if Satan relate to this.. because if he does, most probably I was a Satanist in my past life.. just out of curiosity..
By the way I was trying to learn Astrology, and I find it very hard to learn, I don't know if it just me, or .. I don't know..
Well it's not hard in a way that it's too complicated, but more in a way that I don't understand some terms, like Retrograde etc..
I was searching some sites and books on the subject, also looked in the Files section here, but it doesn't really clear to me I don't know, maybe because my main language is not English.. idk..

Yes, i can understand...

I still have trouble grasping the full picture of astrology. It's just like you said... there's so much information and it's difficult to realize the real meaning. (english is not my first language too)

What i mean is... you read a word.. but it's difficult to understand and imagine it's meaning. And most books take the meaning of the word as a given (they don't explain it and you get lost).

I don't know if this will help you... but search for the book "The only astrology book you'll ever need" by Joanna Martine Woolfolk. It would be easy to find a pdf version online.

It helped me get a basic idea about understanding a natal chart.

What helped me understand even more (with the help of the book) is by studying the charts of my close friends and family. People that i know very good to be sure that what a read in their chart is true or not.

Also since you've mentioned the "retrograde" i think i can explain it with a simple example.

Imagine that we are running around a circular track. For the sake of this example lets say you're more athletic than me. So you run faster around the track, and i'm running slower.

After a while you'll run all the way around the track and start approaching to pass me. We both run in the same direction but as you pass me, IN YOUR POINT OF VIEW it seems as though i'm running backwards.

If you are the planet earth and i am the planet mars, this is retrograde motion of mars FROM THE POINT OF VIEW of earth.

see this video that illustrates the above: http://youtu.be/72FrZz_zlFU Retrograde venus and retrograde mercury are similar to this. Though when the outer planets turn retrograde it's a bit more complex. If you want i believe a can explain them also.

Hope this makes sense

Yes, basically. Though your soul is the same, the personality changes every lifetime. We do carry, however, energy and memories from past lives in our souls. Some inborn abilities, fears and desires are actually past life memories. We are different yet the same.

In astrology, the Lunar Nodes (especially the South Node) provide strong past life information. The South Node is where we have (metaphorically) been in the past, and it usually shows hidden issues and repetitive patterns of behaviour that we may have brought from a past life. It's extremely important to know and understand your past selves to get to know your current self better and to solve whatever hasn't been solved in the past.

We can also access past life memories and information through meditation.

Many brothers and sisters have fallen victims to this tactic (and me too, I'm talking from personal experience). So be cautious of this!

I think the most important thing is to check your Natal chart and see the possible planets (or combinations) that might cause you problems and counterbalance them with meditations.

Hope this makes sense

Thank you brother, I'm not too obsessed at all, just trying to figure out if Satan relate to this because if he does, most probably I was a Satanist in my past life.. just out of curiosity.

By the way I was trying to learn Astrology, and I find it very hard to learn, I don't know if it just me, or . I don't know.

Well it's not hard in a way that it's too complicated, but more in a way that I don't understand some terms, like Retrograde etc.

I was searching some sites and books on the subject, also looked in the Files section here, but it doesn't really clear to me I don't know, maybe because my main language is not English.. idk.

It may have a special meaning like you said, but there's no reason in my opinion to look for these (if it's not just for fun).

What i mean is...

don't get too obsessed with such things (i was too in the past) as they may cause you to think too highly of yourself. Even though self confidence is not a bad thing, by thinking too highly of yourself, the enemy might use this and lead you to delusion. sure the location is right (I've noticed that sometimes it changes back to default), and use the scroll boxes to change the year and month to when you were born, look at the day and time you were born, and there you go :)

There are Moon calendars on the internet. You can check your birth date and hour to see if the Moon was void of course then.

http://www.lunarium.co.uk/calendar/universal.jsp

They give a very good calendar on this site.

A void of course moon occurs when the moon has completed its last major aspect with the planets. These aspects are, conjunct, opposite, trine, square and sextile. There are no orbs in a void of course moon as it happens once it passes the exact degree of the planet being aspected.

To find this out you need your birth time and apply this information.

You can also find things like this out using a simple search of the internet.

Go to Lunarium.co.uk, input the location of your birth, click on calendars -> universal lunar calendar, make sure the location is right (I've noticed that sometimes it changes back to default), and use the scroll boxes to change the year and month to when you were born, look at the day and time you were born, and there you go :)

If Mercury goes retrograde during a void of course Moon, and it goes into the preceding sign would this unvoid the Moon? This happened recently when Mercury retrograde went into the 29th degree of Scorpio after the Moon had gone void of course in Scorpio. I put my energies into something important and I want to know if it still went through.

Yes. My boyfriends ex-girlfriend has her sun in pisces, (I don't know where her venus placement is, since I haven't done her chart), but he told me she had this sexual thing with mens feet. I knew it was because she's pisces. My boyfriend is born on the aries/pisces cusp, and he loves both head and foot massages.

I don't think it's common but Pisces does rule the feet so I guess it's possible. Venus in Scorpio is generally kink, the aspect probably acted as a trigger.

More importantly, this means you're turning 19 (or 38) years old now, which is an important turning point in life, because both your Solar and Lunar return happen at the same day and your Lunar Nodes have also been transiting their natal position. You may go through some life-changing events and the qualities of your Sun and the Moon will be heightened throughout the year, especially since you were born in a Full Moon and, if that weren't enough, Pluto has been conjunct your Sun. In fact, from now on you'll probably feel their qualities and rulerships much more strongly in your life.

Give special attention to the houses they're in and the ones they rule, there may be some kind of crisis coming to them. After that, you may start to notice that you have come in contact with your real powers not only spiritually and that they have increased significantly.
We all know that Satan's most Important Day of the year is December 23, when the Sun is one degree into Capricorn. The day following the beginning of the Winter Solstice/ YULE is celebrated.

In South-India there is a festival similar called Vaikunta Ekadashi or "the gate to Lord's Inner Sanctum". According to vedic astrology sun enters Sagittarius on 23rd. I know vedic has been twisted and corrupted, which makes it unreliable and inaccurate.

My point being is Dec 23rd is only cherished as Enki's day. Is Enki also Krishna? I had strong feelings( 90%) they both are the same.

Hail Enki!!

I have heard that Krishna is the Hindu form of Jesus. I can't remember my source, but I'm just stating it here in case anyone else remembers or if nobody else replies. Shiva is said to be Satan/Enki.

Hail Satan!

Krishna Cares for his Children, That is basically Enki. They share similarities however a bit corrupted but I believe yes.

Danielou, a great scholar, Indologist and initiated Sivite, who teached and lived in India for two decades. Stated on this subject that Krisna is the Vasnava version of Siva. If you note also of Sanat Kumara.

Krisna is an ancient universal title for the symbolic sol God. Of which Satan represents. However the Vasnava's have corrupted this symbolic form and mytho's into a xianized program of lunacy.

My venus is in Leo, and its caused me to be quite the kitty in the bedroom. Thankfully Leo rules over small children so being pregnant hasn't stunted my sex drive, but rather sent it into overdrive!

I don't think it's common but Pisces does rule the feet so I guess it's possible. Venus in Scorpio is generally kinky, the aspect probably acted as a trigger. --- In JoS_Astrology@yahoogroups.com, "Anathematization from the Light" <gethigh1211@...> wrote: > > i have a pisces aspecting my venus and on rare occasion i do have a foot-fetish > > am i the only one? > or is it because my Venus is in Scorpio? >

Is the Hindu calendar completely wrong? and is the Western calendar that accurate?
Krisna is an ancient universal title for the symbolic sol God. Of which Satan represents. However the Vasnava's have corrupted this symbolic form and mytho's into a xianized program of lunacy.

"The letter G in masonry has to do with the silver element which rules the pineal gland. You will note that there are three male chakras; chakras 1, 2, and 3, and three female chakras 5, 6 and 7; with the heart chakra being neuter. Each male and female chakra are planetary opposites, such as the male sun [666] chakra connects with the female moon [6th chakra], the male mars chakra which is the sacral chakra, connects with the throat chakra [which Lilith informed me recently is ruled by female Venus]. The male base chakra ruled by Saturn, connects with its opposite; female Jupiter at the crown. The 'heart' chakra is neuter and a connector, ruled by mercury. Mercury is often called 'quick-silver' but is not silver. The heart chakra is an important connector for the male and female chakras.

This makes a lot of sense, especially because Mercury is the only Metal that will Flow in its natural state and conform to any object just as a liquid. From what the image below shows the Heart Chakra isn't complete until the Ida and Pingala (Make and Female) have merged. This is done on the Face, making a heart shape, and deals with the 6th chakra. I have been doing some research with my Birth Chart, looking at the Planets and which Sign they are in. For instance my Mars is in Capricorn. Then I looked at Satan's Magickal Squares as a reference for what signs you Should and Shouldn't empower certain chakras in, and when it is the best best time to do so. I did this for each of my chakras. Each of the Chakras is ruled by a Planet. As my Mars is concerned, being that Capricorn is the Exalted sign for Mars, then I came into this life with a Decent Sacral Chakra, good but not great. If my Mars was in Aries it would have been Great! Do you see what I mean?

I'm not sure which is worse, fall or detriment in Astrology. Consequently I have two Planets, that are both in Detriment. So those Chakras need the most work. Is this research valid? Is this true? I hope this isn't too confusing.

Exalted = Capricorn Detriment = Libra or Taurus

If these Chakras, Planets, Days, Hours are switched around, then does this also affect the Satan's Magickal Squares? I would really like to know this.

In my solar return for this year there's a 10th house emphasis and Saturn is transiting into my 10th house conjuncting my midheaven. So it seems obvious to me that I will start a career. But my question is how can I find out what kind of career I'd likely get involved in? Do stars have an effect if conjunct an angle? What about degrees with the ascendant and angles? Scorpio is my MC natally also. I took like 3 hours to teach myself how to read a solar return by reading what I could find online, so I'm not too confident in my ability...
The 10th H is the house of public standing & government, not career. Not everyone has a career. Everyone does have public standing & a relationship with the government. However, if you have a career, then that is part of public standing.

Like everything else in astrology, nothing operates in isolation. You have to look at everything else in your chart to understand what is going on.

The fact that you are asking about starting a career because apparently, you don't have one, means that you have nothing even going on either that even points to having a career in the future. Therefore, you need to look at the this placement from another perspective. And if you want a career, do something first that will eventually get you a career. It is doubtful you would start one this year if you don't even know what it is that you would do to even have a career. Now it could mean that you will start one, but seeing that this a solar return placement & not a natal one in transit etc, I doubt it. If you do, then great. Look at other things in your chart that would indicate what you might do. There is no one single thing in your chart that says what you might/could or will do. Sometimes people have an aptitude for more than one thing. There are astrology books on this topic.

There is a book on solar returns by Mary Shea. I suggest buying that. I have found very little on the net for solar return placements or transits that is of any real value. There are also very few books on the subject as well. Partially because so much of the solar return depends on the natal conditions in progression, transit, etc. Which is really where you should focus your solar return issues on. Most of the ones out there are not very good & are over-priced if bought new.

Also, did you get your solar return chart done for the location that you were in on your solar return vs where you were born?

Look to the JoS site for the fixed stars info.

In addition, you return's Midheaven is 0 degrees Virgo.

Zero degrees of any mutable sign in prediction means beginnings that are likely to change or will not last. Important, strong (sometimes sudden) beginnings are given by 0 degrees of cardinal signs, and permanent beginnings by the fixed signs. Often a combination of both cardinal and fixed influences is needed to imply that something really important will begin in the life. While having an important point at 0 degrees of a sign in prognostic charts isn't actually necessary for something to start or change, having one gives a clear idea of how that will be. Mutable signs usually lead to indecision, trying many things at once (especially with Gemini) or endeavours that end up in nothing (especially with Pisces).

Mary Fortier Shea's Planets in Solar Returns is a good book indeed. I actually started studying returns with it and it gave me a very good base to look for other stuff later on. Celeste Teal's Predicting Events With Astrology is also a very good read, it provides information on all major prediction techniques. They are available at amazon.com in Kindle format for $25 together.

Death is probably the hardest thing to predict in anyone's chart.

Use the solar return transits to help you work out what is happening in your natal chart at the time of the corresponding natal transits. The solar return chart shouldn't be used in isolation. Also do a Venus return chart. The Venus Return transits, I watch almost daily. More so than the Solar return transits. But that is for a particular reason for things going on in my life now. But Venus rules money. Some will argue otherwise (Robert Hand), but my experience says that it absolutely, without question, does rule money. At least money that YOU personally generate. (2nd H)

If you are out of school now, then what did you go to school to learn how to do? Based on that, your questioning seems confusing. Now perhaps there is more than one thing that you can do with your education? Since you have finished school, then perhaps that time might very well be fitting.

Use the Venus Return transits to negotiate money. Having the transit cross the MC is not the sole basis of timing. Look for other factors near that time & work with them. Starting a job & getting a job are 2 different things. Get the job first & then try to start at the best time that you can that is available to you. Your job will also have a chart as well. If the beginning of a career, then that job chart will also be your career chart.

Mars Returns seem to be, for me anyway, the most common way of determining new beginnings.

The 6th H describes the working conditions/circumstances of your actual job.

I did the solar return on astrotheme I put where I was born and where I was for the return. I was thinking I would start something since there is a new moon and because the MC is 0 degrees. Also it's in Virgo for work. And I'm done with college and will have to start working soon anyway. But that is interesting you mentioned the death of a parent because Saturn will be going over my fathers ascendant pretty soon and I did wonder if that could indicate death. Especially when it goes retrograde this February.

Use the solar return transits to help you work out what is happening in your natal chart at the time of the corresponding natal transits. The solar return chart shouldn't be used in isolation. Also do a Venus return chart. The Venus Return transits, I watch almost daily. More so than the Solar return transits. But that is for a particular reason for things going on in my life now. But Venus rules money. Some will argue otherwise (Robert Hand), but my experience says that it absolutely, without question, does rule money. At least money that YOU personally generate.

Ok, so I'm still trying to learn everything about astrology and I'm having relative success through Azazel's Astrology for Satanists on the JoS site (mainly through repetition). I've learned recently that the color coded tangle of lines in the center has meaning and I know that red=square and blue=trine. Now for my questions, what is the significance of squares and trines and what are the green and black lines? Any input would be greatly appreciated. Hail Satan! Hail Stolas! These are basically aspect :P Sorry to disappoint you but different astrological programs will have different colours do depict a particular aspect.

Subject: Re: Mercury retrograde and a void of course moon

In a few words... i don't know!

But that's a very good observation. I'm guessing the retrograde isn't related. I think that the conjunction of Moon and Mercury is was cancels the VoC.

The way i imagine it, is that the energies sent to the Moon are blocked because of the VoC, but they connect/link with the conjunct Mercury and transfer through this planet.

This creates another question to my mind. Could this be happening with any planet? Or does the sent energy is filtered by the attributes of the conjunct planet?

For example you said Moon and Mercury in scorpio... so you energy gets to the Moon... from the Moon to the conjunct Mercury... and then reaches the universe (i don't know). But at the same time it's enhanced.filtered by the Mercury attributes (communication, travel etc.)

If for example if the Moon is VoC and is conjunct Saturn... then the energy will manifest in a different way than conjunct Venus or Mars.

I'll make sure to take a note of this in the future and see if i can confirm it in any way!

Hope this makes sense

It's similar to what I was thinking. I haven't run across anything like this on the internet and was hoping someone here could answer it. Either way it would be fairly rare for any retrograde planet to unvoid the Moon. Don't forget that when this occurs the retrograde planet will always be on an anaretic degree, a degree of endings, the 29th degree so it would be colored not only by the sign, planet, and aspect/aspects, but also by this degree.

What does this mean? How can it be harnessed?

Maxine mentioned something to me when I bought a reading from her about a permanent ending. Given that these transits affect a whole lot of people, what are your ideas on what it could be?

I'm attaching what is supposed to be Barack Obama's natal chart (found on Google). The lines in the central circle on this chart are what I meant, yes. And his chart has the same colors though these were prepared with different websites. His contain red (squares as I understand), blue (trines as I understand), as well as green and black. Mine contains maybe 2 greens and only 1 black line and it's nowhere near as busy as his is. As you can tell, I'm still very new to astrology :-) but I know this is important and I look forward to getting into our new place so I can focus and learn more. I got my chart with astrolog and have been looking at it with Azazel's Astrology open on my phone to learn things like what does it mean if your Venus is 33° Pisces.

I wouldn't say you're denying yourself, but only controlling self-destructive impulses which are common with Scorpio, Pisces and Aries combined. Self-destructive tendencies are a constant problem to anyone with Saturn in Pisces, which I also have, but by no means should this be let run unchecked.

Everyone has fantasies, and their actual content doesn't matter as long as they are kept in check. Anyone with strong Aries and/or Scorpio placements will have violent tendencies, yet not everyone with these placements will ever actually do something violent. How many times have some people thought of killing in extremely gory ways, but never actually killed anyone? Most of these people wouldn't even be able to carry on with the act. Pluto/Scorpio deals with all these dark impulses, gore itself, but also power and control, including self-control, which is necessary. These people aren't denying themselves, most of them find outlets for such energies. Check your Mars sign and aspects to gain more information on how to deal with this.

Neptune in the mix can be dangerous since it rules fantasy, self-undoing, lack of boundaries (especially in Capricorn) and aberrations (I don't mean to sound offensive with this). There's a very faint line between extreme fantasies and mental pathologies, and Neptune also rules this.

It seems you've solved your own issue ⌋ you know what not to do, and for that you're as healthy as anyone. Besides, you're not reaching godhood if you can't control and discipline yourself.

I just did a natal chart for a friend and saw a few interesting aspects.

North node, Mars, Mercury all conjunct within 1/2 degree orb in Taurus 12th house (exact conjunction to Caput Algol btw). 3 degrees from that is ascendant (still Taurus), 2 more degrees from that is Sun in 1st house Gemini.

Moving on over to 5th house, Uranus and Pluto exact conjunction.

Thoughts? I’m also posting this to keep this group active and thinking :)

These people aren't denying themselves, most of them find outlets for such energies. Check venus in the 10th house means i like bossy women aries hitting means i like aggressive sex pisces means i am nice...

Believe it or not, occasionally i like women to rape me...
a saturn and neptune aspect is bad. and both of those two planets hits my venus. and saturn and neptune hit each other i also got:

pluto 28 scorpio
mars 29 leo
jupiter 00 sagittarius

mars squares both pluto and jupiter

the war planet (mars) gets the courageous sign (Leo)

Jupiter conjunct Pluto, squaring Mars and Saturn can be a big problem. Anyone with Mars-Pluto squares NEED to practice self-control, it's too much explosive energy together, especially with Jupiter. Jupiter exaggerates, and your Sagittarius Sun/ASC doesn't help at that. Luckily Saturn should help squaring them, but since it's in Pisces and you have two planets in the 12th house, you can't really count on that.

I can't state this in any other way, sorry for the bluntness: if you don't control yourself, you will end up destroying your life very soon, very quickly. Not through your sexual issues, but by any mean available. You need to learn how to deal with Mars/Pluto energies, even if they apparently aren't there. Scorpio, Pisces and the 12th house rule everything that's hidden, these things probably won't show up in your daily life, but given an ideal planetary trigger or event, they can explode all at once.

This is all very dangerous, but remember that no one's given this much energy (and power) without a reason. If you can control that through meditation and help from the gods, you might even do great things. With Pluto/Scorpio it's all or nothing, so I suggest you start working on this asap.

I wouldn't say you're denying yourself, but only controlling self-destructive impulses which are common with Scorpio, Pisces and Aries combined. Self-destructive tendencies are a constant problem to anyone with Saturn in Pisces, which I also have, but by no means should this be let run unchecked.

Everyone has fantasies, and their actual content doesn't matter as long as they are kept in check. Anyone with strong Aries and/or Scorpio placements will have violent tendencies, yet not everyone with these placements will ever actually do something violent. How many times have some people thought of killing in extremely gory ways, but never actually killed anyone? Most of these people wouldn't even be able to carry on with the act. Pluto/Scorpio deals with all these ch_3_coo the ascendant sign alone is of equal importance in a chart as any stellium of planets in a sign. So the short answer is yes.

I would have to disagree. The planet ruling the ascendant is the chart ruler. A stellium is 3 or more planets in a same sign. I have a gemini stellium in the 4th house inconjunction with my yod.

Everyone has fantasies, and their actual content doesn't matter as long as they are kept in check. I wouldn't say you're denying yourself, but only controlling self-destructive impulses which are common with Scorpio, Pisces and Aries combined. Self-destructive tendencies are a constant problem to anyone with Saturn in Pisces, which I also have, but by no means should this be let run unchecked.

Everyone has fantasies, and their actual content doesn't matter as long as they are kept in check. Anyone with strong Aries and/or Scorpio placements will have violent tendencies, yet not everyone with these placements will ever actually do something violent. How many times have some people thought of killing in extremely gory ways, but never actually killed anyone? Most of these people wouldn't even be able to carry on with the act. Pluto/Scorpio deals with all these dark impulses, gore itself, but also power and control, including self-control, which is necessary. These people aren't denying themselves, most of them find outlets for such energies. Check your Mars sign and aspects to gain more information on how to deal with this.

Neptune in the mix can be dangerous since it rules fantasy, self-undoing, lack of boundaries (especially in Capricorn) and aberrations (I don't mean to sound offensive with this). There's a very faint line between extreme fantasies and mental pathologies, and Neptune also rules this.

It seems you've solved your own issue [] you know what not to do, and for that you're as healthy as anyone. Besides, you're not reaching godhood if you can't control and discipline yourself.

Stellium concerns only planets, dwarf planets, asteroids, centaurs... yeah. At least 3. I'm not sure as to the Nodes.

Just a hint - listen, we are all happy we have this group, but one has to remember that infiltrators are everywhere, so please be careful.

Possibly. My GD is Aini and his planet Neptune isn't in my 7th house but it's in my 11th house which is another relationship house, ruling friendship. So I am not sure but it's definitely a possibility.

Thats an interesting note Djinn :)

Thanks Shannon. This is an interesting topic you have brought up here all by itself, I hope HP Maxine will mention something about this in a sermon sometime. I'd like to know more about it.

Ummm... and where did you find this info Shannon? Because I couldn't find it on JoS...

You know what, let me clarify sorry. I read on the jos website from HP Maxine or one of the HP's that their gd's planetary rulership was in their seventh house. I apologize for not being precise but I guess I was trying to see if it was a coincidence or if any of my brothers and sisters had this placing. :) Do you?

Believe it or not, occasionally I like women to rape me...

A Saturn and Neptune aspect is bad. and both of those two planets hits my Venus. and Saturn and Neptune hit each other Capricorn rules restriction (I am not allowed to do this sexual fetish?), and is in the 1st house: can indicate mental insanity...

Subject: [JoS_Astrology] Guardian Daemons and Seventh house

Hey guys im not trying to get deep into everyones birth chart but I read that the planet in the seventh house of partnership/relationship can be the planet associated with your gaurdian Daemon. I have Moon and Jupiter in seventh house. Haagenti's planet is the Moon.

Anyone else have this coincidence? I think its pretty cool. I noticed my SS friend has Saturn in the seventh house and her GD's planetary rulership is Saturn. :)

My understanding is that everyone who is dedicated as a GD but I think they are talking about one way you can know who it is.

What of one who does not have any of the planet in 7th and 11th house, does that mean you have no GD. Hail Satan!

i got the sun and mercury conjuncting in 12th house (i am sagittarius) and the 12th house cusp is in sag if you want to count Hygiea as a stellium, then yes i got a sagit stellium some people dont realize that a 12th house planet will cause the person to be nice more maybe of equal value...

if what they sayy about chiron is true:
it is about 1/2 - 1/3 the size of pluto and it orbits between saturn and uranus chiron is closer than pluto meaning that it would be stronger than pluto

This is not about the proximity but about placement.

If a asteroid like 1 Ceres (astronomically a dwarf planet), 2 Pallas, 3 Juno, 4 Vesta, other asteroids, depending on who wants to incorporate which in his or her chart - http://darkstarastrology.com/asteroids/) or a centaur - 2060 Chiron being their leader, with the remaining ones (Nessus, Pholus, Asbolus, Chariklo) is placed in an angular house (1st, 4th, 7th and 10th), or is conjunct the axes (AC/DC, MC/IC, the Lunar Nodes) or being heavily aspected to personal planets, including Luminaries, it can have a more significant meaning. However, it is dubious that they will TOTALLY overshadow the major planets.

The matter of size did trouble astrologers for some time, thus some of them re-considered the planetary influences and significance, hence why the 4 Ladies became used in contemporary astrology.

I managed to figure out my parent's birth times by going over the descriptions of planets in houses on Azazel's Astrology (yes it took me a few hours spread over a few days), and it got me thinking about my own chart, as my mom wasn't sure of my exact birth time. And sure enough, there was one glaring mistake. My Mars was in the wrong house. Very, very much wrong. It was basically the opposite of my personality. So I tweaked my birth time by 6 minutes and found the placement that suited my personality (it was only 1-2 degrees from the next house cusp), while keeping the rest of the chart the same.

Well, mostly the same. It now places my Venus in 5th house instead of 4th, but as I already have Sun in 4th house, that stays in accordance with myself (both Sun and Venus in 4th house are love of home and family), and Venus in 5th house also suits my personality perfectly.

So now, I get to re-do my solar returns. Fk. Hopefully there won't be too much of a difference, as I quite like my current and next year's solar returns. Oh well, we can make our own paths in life with magick.

On the bright side, my children are likely to be beautiful and talented. Which I knew they would be, since I am, lol. And with Mercury in 5th house, they'll be smart too lol.

I think it's neat how my Dad has Mercury in his 5th house, and my Mom has Venus in her 5th house, and I have both in mine! My Dad also has Neptune in his 5th, and it really showed in my brother, and he also has Mars in 5th, and that shows in me.

I've spent like all day (well a few hours) obsessing over my parent's natal charts and transits. I found their meeting, and the birth of me, via their transits for those times in both their charts :)

or if i dont like something, i may lie. But this can be because my sun is in sag in 12th house and that can lead to me being shy and not wanting to hurt the other person (or something?) that causes me to be secretive and an escapist my brother has 5 sagittarius (idk the houses) as well and he is liar as well. But he lies more and his lies are worser than mine.

i don;t normally lie and i dislike lying and liars, but sometimes i lie (and for other reasons i didnt mention)

i can turn nto a prankster if i get wilded up and get carried away in the moment. and i pull pranks if i know nobody will be hurt or if it doesn't harm anyone

I'm a Sagittarius with two planets in Sagittarius besides my chart ruler.

I usually don't lie, but it can be a guard if I need it to be. But when I lie it must be a soft lie, and usually not to someones face unless I have Really though it out. But I can also keep a lie going for Years, decades even, especially to family members.

On the other side of the coin though, I am so much of an honest person that I can be Overly honest and say too much. If I want something I do this as well. Almost as if trust and honesty are bargaining chips or wavers in a relationship. I am being too honest right now.... Why? Because I want to have interaction with my Satanic Family- My Real Family; Who btw I do Not lie to.

I do these things a lot, yes I am a Saggitarian, we hate lies, yet we lie a lot our selves especially to avoid hurting people. I can also be shy towards others, especially when new opportunities are opened to me, I am rather shy to them as well, is this the same with you?

Sag is a major emphasis in my chart I have Aquarius as ascendant and both Saturn and Uranus (rulers it forms a stellium) in Sag as well as venus well I also have retrograde Jupiter (in Aries) possibly a ruler as I thought a Stellium made it a co-ruler as all three planets are connected via conjunctions 2 in the tenth house (well trying to learn) I like shocking people in a good natured way, and pranks, and yeah I have a tendency to exaggerate things then play it back in my mind almost like I am trying to entertain myself off of peoples reactions but I never intend to harm people with it. I can kind of take being shocked or pranked in the same way too and like it. I do not like liars but I do not mind people that exaggerated things in a good natured way (or are prankster) in fact I had a friend who always exaggerated things years ago until I moved. I found it entertaining to no end some of the time but didn't want to let her in on that as I didn't want to hurt her feelings. I think I like being pranksd as much as I like pranking other people from both sides as long. I also can joke around a lot. I am not sure if this is Aquarious or Saggatarious that influences this. I can be shy but it comes when I don't know anyone in the situation I can be a social butterfly around people I know and feel comfortable with. I like people to initiate conversation first in that case I don't get uncomfortable if it is someone new to me even the second time meeting them I can be shy. That is where I get stuck often and sounding award in new social situations or around new people.I wish to overcome that somehow and was and am still working on it. I do not see it as positive or helpful for my current situation in life but I accept it as part of my personality. However I don't have a problem with shyness if I have been around people and interacting for awhile as much as if I was by myself a lot I can be very confident then after a few days I lose that somewhat or totally after awhile its like my mind gets stuck in its own little place in the world. Yeah to answer your question I do end up lieing sometimes especially when I feel threatened or in a situation where I feel I will hurt someone but that also I don't intend harm with it. I never like to say negative things to peoples faces or be critical of them, I generally love helping people and niceness/being nice to people, as it is so much easier at least in my view.

I also avoid telling the whole story, if it's none of the other person's business, usually about my personal life. I'll brush it aside and give a vague answer. I think that's how I get "caught" though lol, I usually give long detailed answers about many things (like what I'm doing right now lol), and then I give the occasional short vague answer/explanation which means it's nobody else's business but I don't know how else to say it.

Subject: Help Intercepted Pisces in First House Virgo in 7th What does it mean

I am confused spent several hours trying to find info and could not figure it out If I have intercepted Pisces in first house Aquarious Asc Intercepted virgo in 7th house Leo on cusp what would that mean (note I never had a real relationship and that has been a common theme I always longed for it) well I looked around for it on JOS site.

Planetary Rulers

Uranus in Sagittarius Uranus Semisquare Pluto Uranus in 10th House
Saturn in Sagittarius Saturn Conjunct Uranus Saturn in 10th house
Neptune in Capricorn Neputne Sextile Pluto Neptune in 11th House Jupiter in Aries Jupiter Trine Saturn Jupiter Trine Uranus Jupiter in 2nd house.

Why I want to know about this is I am trying to figure out how to sublimate some push pull aspect as I wish I wasn't pulled in many different directions in given situations by different forces (also Jupiter conjuncts Saturn). I tend to be relaxed calm yet somewhat childlike sometimes and joking around, before I go on I should note there is always an independent streak to just about everything here this is most prominent and said to be very prominent by anyone I have known I can choose to desire freedom in ways that might even be harmful (with the harmful part there is something underlying that feels like it could be very destructive to me as an individual and possibly others around me that can come out if I feel confined or trapped by something or someone btw this varies from situation to situation and is mutable and bottle it up too long) or to do something seen as dumb in a social sense just for the heck of doing it, I also don't understand or fully go for Social manners and have my own individual outlook on how people should interact but can completely adapt in just about any situation to what is around me so it doesn't cause problems around people who do not understand, and enjoy life go with the flow and idealistic/artistic but have a serious freedom fighting side to myself that will not give into anything I percieve to be "unfair" or not "ideal" but that is not mutable and very intense and can lead to outbursts or in the case of around my parents who are xtian even violence although I tend to not like agression but don't like passiveness either I am like if its either extreme same reaction. I hate imbalace above all, I am very strong on being open to anything I do not like to commit and I can take on characteristics of others around me mirroring them either unconsciously or if I desire, however most the time people would think of me as calm adaptable to just about anything and nice to just about everyone, I have been victimized by some people because I like to think people are good and have a very idealistic streak about me that I in the name of freedom often say I refuse to change, I have my own unique personality seem to be able to be in just about any situation or around anything without being pulled away from what to be true (either in a philosophic or spiritual way and as a sagittarian stellium I have a tendency to have my own philosophy) or have as a goal. I can sometimes be shy and lack confidence othertimes I am a complete social butterfly and over confident. So there is a lot to me as an individual some things seeming opposite of others. Sometimes I do have issues with social things and suffer anxiety the Mercury square really helped with the anxiety part Sun and Mars a lot on social things and confidence (all Squares Spiritual) and I am still doing these squares as much as possible.

Well, the Gemini-Sagittarius axis is known for this, but lying and tricking are more common with Gemini than Sagittarius. I guess Gemini does it as part of its own nature and Sagittarius tends to do it for fun, though Gemini does seem to enjoy this as well.

All mutable signs, however, will seek the easy way out of everything, with the possible exception of Virgo. When they feel the pressure, they might do things that aren't really morally correct to get away, letting people down and thus tend to be considered unreliable. I have found Pisces to be more inclined to lie and escape, since it's its very nature, and Sagittarius might sometimes have the benefit of believing and/or adhering to a philosophy or moral code that prevents itself from doing this.

I don't have any planets in Sagittarius, but my rising sign is Sagittarius. I can see that I am shy with new situations, and I fib to not hurt people's feelings.

I do these things a lot, yes I am a Saggitarian, we hate lies, yet we lie a lot our selves especially to avoid hurting people. I can also be shy towards others, especially when new opportunities are opened to me, I am rather shy to them as well, is this the same with you?

I got major sag emphasis in my chart and when i feel threatened i can be a good liar or if i dont like something, i may lie. But this can be because my sun is in sag in 12th house and that can lead to me being shy and not wanting to hurt the other person (?or something?) that causes me to be secretive and an escapist my brother has 5 sagittarius (idk the houses) as well and he is liar as well. But he lies more and his lies are worser than mine.

i don't normally lie and i dislike lying and liars, but sometimes i lie (and for other reasons i didnt mention)

i can turn nto a prankster if i get wilded up and get carried away in the moment. and i pull pranks if i know nobody will be hurt or if it doesn't harm anyone
