

Up in the Sky

Mankind has done something. They have painted paradise up in the sky.

They have painted paradise on the canvas of the sky because it's unreachable in their hearts.

It's an admission of defeat of the human heart.

What is human paradise? The perfection of human desire.

What is the perfection of human desire? The perfection of life.

Desire is the fire of life, its perfection is the fulfillment of life.

Life is its own agenda, its own will and power. Its goal is perfection.

Paradise is the one and true goal of mankind. Its true place is on Earth.

On Earth, not up in the sky, is where paradise dwells.

The King of the world's paradise is on Earth.

I see you have went from kinda Schopenhauer to kinda Zarathustra and I personally find this very nice.

It is not a coincidence all the Pagan manifestations always wanted to make the earth better. To better the earth and perfect life is a most valid and meaningful mission. For the person and the world as it is, everything is included.

I think Schopenhauer will also see this in his next reincarnation or maybe he did in the one after.

Given we have made many paradises before, we will just make one again, but only this time it will be quite permanent with no strange alien intruders allowed.
