

Re: Why almost all gods are male ?

Reply by HPS Maxine

Miuodeus Wrote:

Hi ! I am new in here.I have been reading and following JOS and i am very happy of it also i feel satisfied about Theistic Satanism....but i wonder and it craves my brain in every subject since i born in a counry where women undrestimating and be seemd 2n class human being.I have been loking for equality and justice in every aspect of life...i think spirituality must have no sex.But when i am reading about Satan,you always mention him as "father" and it makes me little bit annoyed.In Islam people do not say Allah is male but it is also emphasize its force,strenght,dreadfullnes and when i hear and read all of the religions words and sentences i feel it is man made and feel annoyed too....So my main problem is why Satan is male, i want to believe Satan has an esoteric sex like he appears in male form or mentioned in male form but also has a female side in deep...Sorry if i get you wrong.And also sorry about my English if i made a mistake....

HPS Maxine Replies:

That's not true. Some of the most powerful are Lilith (She will destroy communism and the enemy), Astaroth, Mastema, Maat, Nephthys, Sekhet, Seshat, Agares, Byleth, Bune, Crocell and many more.

In Ancient Paganism (Satanism), both men and women worked together. Unlike the Judeo/Christian/Muslim excrement that in its fear and hatred of women, has nothing but male angels, a male "god" etc.

In the legends of our Gods and Goddesses, the females had every bit as much power as the males. Our Gods were never insecure or fearful about our Goddesses having power.

Also, never in our Pagan Pantheon, did our male Gods treat our Goddesses condescendingly, or as inferiors. They worked together.

In addition, they never covered their bodies in shame like those abominable Muslims.

It is glaringly obvious just how much the alien vermin that promotes and runs those foul programs that are ignorantly called "religions" fears anything human.

High Priestess Maxine Dietrich

www.joyofsatan.org